Final Action Due Today in Capitol On 10 Billion War Fund Bill

A program of tremendously far-reaching war legislation faces Congress today as the two chambers seek to implement and expand the Executive branch's authority for waging the Nation's greatest war.

A 10 billion dollar appropriations bill for great numbers of planes, ships, guns and other weapons to further equip the fighting forces is expected to receive final approval on both sides of the Capitol before the day's session ends, and to be sent to the White House for the President's quick signature.

Registration of the country's manpower, between the ages of 18 and 65, will be receiving consideration, meanwhile, from the House and Senate Military Affairs Committees, and leaders hope to have the measure ready for presentation to the House tomorrow.

More Power For President

Quickly following will be legislation granting President Roosevelt vast powers voted for Woodrow Wilson during World War No. 1.

And, added to these moves, the naval committees of House and Senate will act on legislation to provide a 20 per cent increase in the Navy's strength and tonnage.

The appropriation bill, in addition to carrying funds to equip an Army of two million men and supply essential material for another 1,200,000, also will provide more materials for lease-lend aid to the nations allied against the Axis powers. Both the Senate and House already have acted on the appropriation legislation, but because there were minor differences in the two bills both branches must approve the final, compromised version.

Draft Bill Up

Both the Senate and House Military Committees have called meetings for today to consider the draft extension legislation which would require registration of all men 18 to 64 years of age, inclusive, and would make those aged 19 to 44, inclusive, liable to military service.

New war powers likely to be voted would permit the President to centralize control of all communication and transportation systems, put a statutory ban on trading with enemy aliens, and to shift various functions of Government agencies to coordinate the war effort. Committees on both sides of Congress are at work on this legislation.

The Senate and House naval committees have before them bills to authorize construction of 900,000 additional tons of fighting ships. The legislation mentions no cost limit and leaves to the Navy Department's experts allocation of the tonnage among the various categories.

Vast Slide Engulfs Peruvian City, Takes 500 Lives

Lima, Peru, Dec. 14 (AP).—A tremendous waterslide which struck the departmental capital of Huaraz yesterday took a toll of more than 500 lives and wiped out the city's entire residential section, according to reports reaching here today.

Manuel Palma, owner of a Lima-Huaraz bus line, told the Associated Press by telephone that conditions were "indescribable"; that the slide of water, mud, rocks and volcanic lava was 150 feet high and more than half a mile wide when it hit; that 500 bodies were in the local hospital and hundreds of others were strewn along the roads for as much as six miles outside Huaraz, and that bodies were being brought to the hospital in truckloads.

"No one living in the northern residential section is believed to have escaped alive," said Palma. He added that so far it had not been possible to ascertain the cause of the catastrophe. First reports said it might have been due to an eruption of the nearby Rataquenhua Volcano, but Palma reported the volcano showed no signs of activity.

He said many small Indian communities had been wiped out.

Citizen Groups Will Stress Civil Defense

Programs This Week Include Observance Of Rights' Anniversary

Celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights, and civilian defense organization to help protect the liberties it guarantees, will occupy citizens associations meeting this week.

The District Commissioners have asked local groups to set apart a portion of their meetings for consideration of the benefits derived from the first ten amendments to the Constitution.

The Interfederation Conference meeting for its monthly dinner tonight will hear Mrs. Florence Cannon, new president of the Arlington Federation talk on this subject, Secretary E. L. Bennett has announced. Selection of a nominating committee will be made tonight and election of officers will be held at the January meeting.

The Citizens Association of Chevy Chase, D. C., will meet tonight instead of Wednesday, Secretary George E. Dieffenbach said. This is because of the Bill of Rights anniversary. Deputy Warden Charles C. Sellers will outline progress of the local defense organization, and arrangements will be made to register volunteers.

Persons living in the Dahlgren Terrace area are urged to attend a

Relatives Join Navy Men in Prayer for 100 Victims of U-Boat

By the Associated Press

Aboard the United States Frigate Constitution at Boston, Dec. 14.—On the rain-pelted quarter-deck of "Old Ironsides," the most famous warship in American history, the Navy held memorial services today for the 100 hero dead of the destroyer Reuben James, first American craft lost in the conflict that now has engaged the United States.

Relatives of the men who lost their lives when the Reuben James was torpedoed while on convoy duty west of Iceland in October joined in prayer with officers and seamen of the Navy's fighting forces of the present day, in the very place that once ran with the blood of fighters of another day.

While the wind strummed through the shrouds of the 143-year-old square-rigger and drops of rain fell softly through openings in a wooden covering over the deck, tear-stained, tight-lipped faces were raised as flowers were dropped through a gun-port onto the waters, and a chaplain prayed—

"Let Thy benediction rest upon their graves. May the solemn surge of ocean, music they loved in life, be their never ceasing requiem."

Bluejackets, with heads bowed, stood near 32-pounders that once barked their challenges in the bloody conflict with the pirates of the Barbary coast and in the war with Britain in 1812. A tow-headed boy among the relatives clenched one little fist, and with the other jammed

The Neediest Families

Ill Mother Must Leave Babies Alone at Night as She Works

By Bill Brinkley

Her legs ache with arthritis and her mind with worry over her two babies as she rushes loaded trays to waiting merrymakers in a local night club.

All during her 7:30 p. m. to 3 a. m. shift as a waitress, Mrs. D. is plagued with fear for the babies, Beth, 3 years old, and Jeannette, 1, alone in their small room while she earns money to shelter and feed them. There's no one to care for them while she is working. She puts them to bed and hopes they will be safe.

While Christmas lights are bright in Washington, there is no light in this family, one of the neediest here. Only to Post readers, through The Post's Neediest Families Fund, can it look for the hope which will make life something worthwhile instead of a bitter, crushing struggle.

Contributions to the fund to help this and other families will set them again on the road that leads to self-support. These gifts will spread a world of cheer not only this Christmas but also through many Christmases to come.

It is imperative, however, that contributions be prompt because the families have reached the point where it is doubtful whether they can go on much longer on their own resources.

British Planes Hurled at Japs To Stem Drive On Singapore

By the Associated Press

Singapore, Dec. 14.—British and Australian airforces credited with smashing Japanese landing attempts on the east coast of Malaya were reported tonight hurled against Japanese tanks and armored cars in an attempt to stem the drive southward from Thailand on both sides of the Malay Peninsula.

A major battle apparently was shaping up along the jungle frontier. A terse British communique reported sharp fighting in Kedah Province of northwestern Malaya and in the Kelantan area of the northeast.

"On both fronts," the war bulletin declared, "fighter aircraft are supporting our troops."

British Admit Burma Advance

(In London an authoritative British source said Japanese troops also had struck across Thailand into southern British Burma near Point Victoria.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation, quoting dispatches from the Malay front, said the frontier defense line was held by English, Scottish and Indian troops.

(The broadcast said they held positions north of Alor Star, less than 20 miles inside Malaya at the northwest, and that some of the fighting was taking place north of the frontier, in Thai territory.

(The British radio emphasized the transfer of air units to the border defense and pointed out that earlier in the fight they had been mainly occupied in battering Japanese landing attempts.)

Bombers Beaten Off

Singapore had another air raid alarm during the day but no bombing was reported.

British fighters were said to have beaten off Japanese bombers which tried three times to continue last week's raids on the west coast part of Penang.

Singapore prepared housing facilities for approximately 600 European women and children removed from Penang.

Moscow Says Army Presses Foe Back on Every Front

Ebb Tide

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Monday), Dec. 15.—Rampant Red armies declared today they had the Germans on the run in a retreat approaching the scale of Napoleon's cold and dismal retirement from Moscow and had overtaken the back-tracking Hitler legions with a headling campaign of extermination.

With unspared phrase, the official Communist organ Pravda claimed the Russian armies already have destroyed an "entire generation of Nazis."

From one end of the broad snow-crusted front to the other the Russians reported success after success; the threat to Moscow eliminated by the rout of the Nazis in the greatest debacle yet to befall Hitler, his efforts to encircle Leningrad smashed, his hopes of getting at Caucasia's rich oil fields thwarted.

May Soon Free Leningrad

The British radio broadcast a Moscow announcement tonight saying the entire line of communications between Moscow and Leningrad soon would be reestablished by advancing Red forces, indicating the siege of Leningrad might thereby be lifted.

Since the start of the German invasion last June 22, the Russians reported, Hitler has lost six million men, more than 15,000 tanks, 13,000 planes and 19,000 cannon.

Pravda attributed the German failure to encircle Moscow to insufficient Nazi forces and miscalculation of Russian strength.

The extent of the danger which hung over Moscow at the height of the Nazi campaign against the capital was disclosed today by Lieut. Gen. Leonid Govorov, Soviet commander in the sector to the south-

Knox Back, Sees Roosevelt at Once

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox returned to Washington late last night from an airplane dash to Hawaii following the Japanese attack there a week ago. He was said to have talked immediately with President Roosevelt but neither the White House nor the Navy would confirm it.

Knox will make a detailed report to the President today on his inquiry into conditions in the Hawaiian Islands.

Sentries Shoot Woman

California, Fearing Invasion, Put in State of Emergency

Special Dispatch to The Post

Sacramento, Dec. 14.—Gov. Culbert Olson tonight proclaimed a state of emergency in California and designated law enforcement officials to place in effect emergency orders of the State council of defense.

The action was taken after a socially prominent woman had been killed by soldiers who were halting motorists near the Redondo Beach Airport and ordering them to remove blue coverings from their headlights, and after Army officers had issued a statement that "flares were seen in the sky, apparently dropped by enemy aircraft" during the Friday night blackout of the San Francisco area.

"With a thousand miles of coastline along the Pacific," Gov. Olson said in his proclamation, "The geographical position of the State of California places it in the first line of defense against invasion, and this State may at any time become a theater of war.

"Already enemy reconnaissance, if not bombing, planes are known to have passed along our coast and to have covered a part of the interior areas. Our great natural resources, our huge oil supplies, our enormous agricultural and industrial production, our numerous aircraft factories, shipbuilding yards, and other facilities needed to sustain our Nation in the winning of the war, are the natural objectives of attempted aggressions of our enemies."

The woman killed was Mrs. Adele Brandel, 52, who was hit in the lung by a bullet fired by soldiers when her husband, Dr. Harry M. Brandel, failed to stop his car as ordered. He said he saw two soldiers waving at the side of the road but thought they were hitch-hikers and did not hear any order to stop.

Army officials said they had no orders to stop cars with the "blued" headlights, first used during last week's blackouts, and an Army board of inquiry tonight was reported investigating the shooting of Mrs. Brandel.

At Los Angeles, meanwhile, there were reports of antiaircraft firing in the northern part of the city but authorities refused to comment on the reports. Albert Koons, of the Highlands Park section, said an unexploded 3-inch antiaircraft shell fell in his yard

'Well in Hand'

By Frank Hewlett
United Press Staff Writer

Manila, P. I. (Monday), Dec. 15.—Two more Japanese transport ships have been bombed and left badly damaged, this time off the Legaspi area of southeast Luzon, the Army announced today in a communique which said the situation in other Philippine areas remained unchanged.

Four Japanese fighter planes were shot down in the same attack.

The damaging of these two transports yesterday brought the punishment inflicted on Japanese ships attempting to land troops in the Philippines to four sunk and five badly damaged since the war began.

The communique left unchanged the figures of two Japanese battleships knocked out of action and at least 40 airplanes shot down given in official Army and naval reviews of the first week of hostilities issued yesterday, which said "the situation is well in hand."

Suggesting that there would be more to tell about the bombing of transports off Legaspi, about 200 miles southeast of Manila, the communique said "further details will be given later."

Navy Hits Back

Beyond the 150th hour, a handful of United States Marines yesterday continued to beat off repeated Japanese attacks on tiny Wake Island, as the war in the Pacific roared into its second week.

"The Marines on Wake Island continue to resist," said a Navy communique issued at 5:30 p. m. as of noon yesterday. And it added that forces on Wake had stood up under two more bombings from the air, the first light, the second "in great force." Only "inconsequential damage" was done.

There was no further news of the situation on Midway Island and at Guam, both of which have been under attack from the Japanese with small American forces defending the islands.

From Hawaii, where the naval base at Pearl Harbor was assailed from the air in Japan's "stab in the back" assault a week ago yesterday, came indications of renewed enemy activity. The Navy Department reported "vigorous attacks" against enemy submarines operating in the vicinity of the Hawaiian Islands.

Attempting an Offensive

While no details of these operations were given, it was evident that Japanese undersea boats had assumed or attempted to assume the offensive against United States movements in those waters.

On the Philippine Island of Luzon, where American and Filipino forces are standing off a three-pointed Japanese thrust at Manila, the War Department, as of 4 p. m. yesterday, reported "no change in the general situation." In an earlier communique, from Manila, the situation on Luzon had been described as "well in hand."

No Cause for 'Hysteria'

Army May 'Never' Need Men Older Than 35, Hershey Says

War Department officials made clear yesterday that it would be a long time—perhaps never—before any men outside the 21-35 age group are drafted for the Army despite the proposal to require all aged 18 to 64, inclusive, to register.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, warning against any "hysteria," in connection with the draft extension, said there was no way of telling when it might be necessary to tap the reservoir of men outside the 21-35 group.

"We can meet the situation today and tomorrow with the present draft age limits of 21 to 35," Hershey said.

Secretary of War Stimson requested Congress last week to enact legislation for the registration of all men from 18 to 64, inclusive, and making those from 19 to 44, inclusive, subject to military training and service. This registration, Hershey said, would apply to 41 million men, including the 17,500,000 who already have registered.

But the program as of today, Hershey explained, calls for the induction of the remaining one million in the 21 to 27 age brackets; then eligibles in the group from 28 to 35 will be called up, and next the one million who become 21 each year.

"Having done that, you ought to have a full year's supply of men," Hershey said.

In the meantime, there will be a continuing reexamination of men deferred because of dependency, employment in vital defense industries and minor physical disabilities.

Hongkong Division Destroyed, Japs Say

Nipponese Troops Open Offensive Against British Stronghold

Tokyo, Dec. 14 (Official Radio Received by Associated Press).—The Japanese opened a general land and air offensive against Hongkong at dawn today in an all-out effort to take the British colony after rejection of an ultimatum for surrender, it was announced by radio.

At the same time, Japanese headquarters declared an entire British mechanized division had been destroyed in a Japanese advance over the Malayan frontier toward Singapore, and the Japanese press claimed that 21 American and British naval vessels had been sunk or put out of commission in the week-old war of the Pacific.

Destruction of the British mechanized division was said by headquarters to have occurred on Friday. Twenty tanks and 60 trucks were captured in the advance, the Japanese said.

Mass air raids also were made on Mergui and Victoria airdromes in British Burma by army planes and two transports were sunk in an attack on Penang Island, off the west coast of Malaya, said the communique.

Kuantan airdrome on the east coast of Malaya also was raided.

British Admit Advance

Victoria and Mergui are on the west coast of the narrow Malay Peninsula, which is divided for a large part of its length by the Thailand-Burma border. Victoria is at the southern extremity of the tongue of Burma territory about 150 miles south of Tenasserim; Mergui is about 170 miles north of Victoria.

(Military quarters in London said the Japanese had made an advance over the Burma border in the vicinity of Victoria. The Japanese evidently were attempting to broaden their hold on the narrow Kra Isthmus of the Malay Peninsula in order to widen the land space separating British forces in Malaya in the south and Burma in the north. Japanese already are in full possession of southern Thailand, which occupies the whole width of the peninsula south of Victoria.

Considerable damage was done in Burma and Malaya raids, the Japanese said. Four small fighting planes were set ablaze on the ground and troop concentrations punished at Penang and Victoria despite intense antiaircraft fire. Airport facilities were smashed and fuel tanks blasted at Mergui, and at least one large bomber wrecked at Kuantan, all at the expense of three Japanese planes.

Nichi Nichi estimated that the 21 American and British naval vessels sunk or put out of commission totaled 350,000 tons—270,000 tons from the American Navy and 80,000 from the British fleet.

Nichi Nichi listed three United States capital ships, an aircraft tender, a submarine and a small naval vessel as sunk, and two British capital ships, a destroyer and a small naval vessel as sunk.

Extravagant Claims

(Japanese claims of United States ships sunk include the battleships West Virginia, 31,800 tons; Oklahoma, 29,000; and Arizona, 32,600, and the plane carrier, Langley, 11,000, totaling 104,400 tons. This would leave almost 166,000 tons of the American Navy counted by Nichi Nichi as damaged.)

(British ships sunk by the Japanese include the 35,000-ton Prince of Wales and 32,000-ton Repulse, leaving about 10,000 tons damaged, as estimated by the paper.)

The newspaper Kokumin placed United States naval losses at eight warships destroyed and 16 damaged, and British losses at six sunk and seven damaged.

The paper estimated that the Japanese navy had seized 225 British and American merchant vessels and also a gunboat, and declared the two countries had lost 364 military and naval aircraft in the war so far.

[These claims may merely represent the Axis technique of making extravagant claims in the hope that corrective denials will show the actual results of attacks—Editor's note.]

From Shanghai it was reported that the United States gunboat Wake captured there had been renamed the Tar and put into Japanese service.

Chinese Attack 8 Miles North Of Hongkong

By the Associated Press

Chungking, Dec. 14—Chinese troops pressed their attacks on the flank and rear of Japanese forces threatening Hongkong with fighting going on at Tamshui and Pingshan, said front line dispatches today.

Pingshan is about 8 miles north of the mainland frontier of the British colony and about 13 miles west of the Canton-Kowloon Railway. Tamshui is a few miles northwest of Pingshan.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that American and Chinese pilots, taking off and landing in the face of possible Japanese air attacks, ferried more than 275 persons out of beleaguered Hongkong during the first two nights of the Japanese siege.

The news was withheld from publication until today to safeguard all concerned in the operation.

The pilots, employed by the China National Aviation Corporation, which is operated jointly by the Chinese government and Pan-American Airways, made 16 flights out of Hongkong, landing most of their passengers at a point about 200 miles inland from the British colony. Some planes flew all the way to Chungking.

Among those rescued were H. H. Kung, Chinese finance minister; Mme Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic; American and British members of the Chinese Currency Stabilization Board and C. P. Chen, head of the board, and the staff and families of the aviation corporation, with the exception of Schafer Paas, district traffic agent, who volunteered to supervise arrangements at the Hongkong end.

The pilots also managed to save five of seven of the lines' planes which were at the Hongkong airdrome when war broke out. One of these, forced down at an inland airfield by engine trouble on Wednesday, was machine-gunned and destroyed by Japanese planes.

efforts by Germany and Britain to secure her as an active ally.

Great Britain in October, 1939, extended credits of 40 million pounds to the Turkish government to stabilize Turkish currency and to provide approximately 100 million dollars for the mechanization and modernization of the Turkish army and the strengthening of fortifications in the Dardanelles, the strategic strait between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

The United States recently revealed that lend-lease aid had been extended to Turkey since last May.

The lend-lease aid was given to enable the British government to make good its commitments under the Anglo-Turkish pact.

Great Britain had pledged itself to deliver to the Turks specific arms and munitions, including planes, antiaircraft guns, tanks and other weapons and supplies. But because of the rapid extension of the conflict on many fronts, the British were unable to deliver, and turned to the United States for assistance.

The Anglo-Turkish pact provided also that Turkey, in return for the assistance, would maintain a benevolent neutrality, and would not permit the Germans or any other military force to utilize Turkish territory equipment through Turkish territory, in what might be hostile acts against Britain.

The President's Day

By International News Service

MAN AT WORK: Leisurely Sunday morning breakfast being out "for the duration," the President got his tray at the workday hour of 7 a. m. yesterday, was in the Red Oval Room study by 9 a. m. A call to the British Embassy brought Lord Halifax at midmorning for a lengthy conference, punctuated with phone calls and the latest dispatches out of the Far East.

READY: With Sunday dinner brought up to the study, the President put the final touches and proofreading on the completely documented chronological report to Congress and to the American people on the United States relations and negotiations with Japan prior to the stab in the back. Voluminous and detailed, the report has all the earmarks of a document destined for the history books. Also ready for the mill was the third lend-lease report—but the President was undecided whether or not to load it on top of the Jap time-table; he called Congressional leaders, told them it was all set for delivery whenever they wanted.

WAR IN THE AFTERNOON: Within an hour of the time the President one week ago learned the bomb bursts in the Pacific had blasted America's peace, Secretary of War Stimson once again arrived for a Sunday conference. In midafternoon the President called Acting Secretary of Navy James V. Forrestal to the White House.

MORE HISTORY: After the Stimson-Forrestal powwow and a quiet Sunday supper in the small downstairs dining room had been polished off, Mr. Roosevelt went back to his room, worked steadily at another historical bit of writing: His speech on the Bill of Rights to be delivered tonight. When Judge Samuel Rosenman arrived they fell to, cutting and timing the speech. The President's usual Sunday evening swim in the basement pool was skipped—along with the usual Sunday evening gathering of the clan.

U. S. Fliers Sink Four Transports

Sinking of the transports was announced Sunday night in an Army Headquarters communique which asserted that "the situation both on the ground and in the air was well in hand as the first week of military operations came to a close."

The Japanese transports were sunk by American fliers off northern Luzon, and are in addition to four Japanese transports sunk December 12 by Dutch submarines in the Gulf of Siam off Malaya, with the loss of about 4000 lives.

The Dutch last night added to their toll, announcing the sinking of two more vessels, a tanker and a freighter, off Malaya.

Yesterday's communique did not give the dates of the American action.

It said the Japanese already had paid dearly in troop, plane and shipping losses and indicated that the start of the second week of the new war in the East found Japanese landing forces held in tight check.

The war resume from the office of Lieut.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the Japanese transports were attacked north of Luzon in waters through which the Japanese tried at heavy cost to reinforce landing parties near Vigan and Aparri.

Legaspi Force Isolated

It was in these waters that Army bombers sank the Japanese battleship Haruna and Navy bombers crippled a second capital ship of the Kongo class.

Gen. MacArthur's report said the Japanes carried out 14 major air attacks on the Philippines with losses of at least 40 planes.

He credited a Philippine army division with smashing a Japanese landing at Lingayen, 100 miles northwest of Manila, and said bombers seriously hampered the other forces which reached shore "in limited numbers" at Legaspi, 250 miles southeast of Manila; Vigan, 200 miles north of the capital, and Aparri, Luzon's northernmost outpost.

An Army spokesman said the Japanese had been unable to reinforce the landing party at Legaspi and that only local activity, regarded as well in hand, continued at Vigan and Aparri.

Attacks by American planes on the Japanese-seized areas at the far north of the island were said by other sources to be aimed at wiping out an air base the Japanese were trying to establish there.

Japanese bombers were seen flying southward at high altitude over Manila shortly before noon yesterday after the quietest night the capital has had since the start of bombing.

No bombs fell near here during the night and the only alarm came about dawn, lasting 55 minutes, when a few planes reported headed for Manila apparently turned away.

No bombs were dropped by the planes which winged over the Capital before noon. An alarm sounded at 10:50 a.m., was ended with an all clear at 12:35.

The population of the city seemed in better spirits for the uninterrupted night's rest, and morale remained high.

All newspapers continued publishing daily although reduced in size and most newspapermen slept at their offices on 24-hour duty.

The Japanese radio, meanwhile, is keeping up its strenuous propaganda effort, broadcasting speech after speech appealing to the Filipinos to lay down their arms.

The broadcasts have been without noticeable effect, and so far there has been no attempt by the Manila radio to jam the Japanese shortwave broadcasts.

There has been no food shortage but there has been some difficulty in buying gasoline for civilian purposes. Prices of all commodities generally are rising despite Government efforts at control.

In an unceasing drive against Fifth Columnists, customs agents have seized two Japanese whom they said had home-made bombs and dozens of lamps.

Cavite Casualties Few

Rear Admiral Francis Rockwell, commandant of the Cavite Navy Yard, said yesterday casualties there during a sustained 40-minute Japanese bombing attack on Wednesday were "extremely low."

Fire fighting was seriously hampered, he said, because the first bomb struck the Cavite powerhouse.

The commandant took shelter in an air-raid ditch.

"Near me," he said, "were two Filipino yard workers, one of whom was killed and the other injured seriously. Both men were calm and in their assigned place for air raids."

Rockwell, who lost all his possessions in the fire, praised Navy Yard and Marine officers and enlisted men stationed at the yard.

"They did their duty in accordance with the best traditions of their services," he said. "Special tribute is due the yard's Filipino workmen and the Navy's insular force. My cook was killed. He had been permitted to go home to evacuate his family, had returned on time and was at his post when he was killed."

Rockwell advised residents of Manila and other places which might be bombed to seek shelter in open ditches during air raids. "Even a hole no more than 2 by 3 feet will afford protection against anything but a direct hit," he said.

Marines Beat Off Strong Attacks on Wake

Landings Made Thursday

These points were Aparri, on the north coast; Vigan, on the west, and Legaspi, at the tip of the mountainous peninsula which thrusts into the Pacific southeast of Manila. Japanese forces made landings at Aparri and Vigan last Monday and at Legaspi Thursday.

Japanese bombing of Manila was reported in dispatches from there as ineffectual. All bombs dropped before noon were said to have landed harmlessly in the water along Manila's waterfront. The evacuation of Manila was continuing under difficulties of limited and disorganized transportation.

Navy Dept. Communique No. 7

There have been two additional bombing attacks on Wake Island. The first was light, the second was undertaken in great force. Two enemy bombers were shot down. Damage was inconsequential.

The Marines on Wake Island continue to resist.

Emeny submarines are known to be operating in the Hawaiian area. Vigorous attacks are being made against them.

The above is based on reports up until noon today.

War Dept. Communique No. 9

Philippine Theater: Enemy air activity continues. Ground operations are confined to the Aparri, Legaspi and Vigan areas. No change in the general situation has been reported.

Hawaii: No further reports have been received.

West Coast, United States: Extensive air reconnaissance by American Army units is continuing.

Army Communique at Manila

A communique issued at Manila yesterday at headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the United States Far Eastern Army follows:

The situation both on the ground and in the air was well in hand as the first week of military operations came to a close.

A retsume of operations during the week follows:

The enemy carried out 14 major air raids on military objectives in the Philippines but paid dearly in the loss of transports, planes and troops as a result of action by our air and ground forces and the damaging of two battleships.

The enemy attempted to land in the Lingayen area but was repulsed by a Philippine Army division.

The enemy effected unopposed landings in limited numbers at Vigan, Legaspi, and Aparri. There were only local activities in those areas.

Enemy naval units and troops and materiel on the ground were bombed effectively in the Vigan and Aparri areas, hampering landing operations.

Four enemy transports are known to have been sunk and three others seriously damaged by our force off northern Luzon.

Individual deeds of heroism and bravery on the part of American and Filipino ground troops and air units marked the week's operations and accounted for the destruction of 11 enemy planes in the air and on the ground Thursday. The total enemy air losses from all causes during the week were not less than 40 actually accounted for and probably many more which could not be verified.

As no reports of damage have come, it is assumed casualties and property damage were negligible. Lieut. Gen. MacArthur has expressed favorable comment upon the splendid morale which exists not only throughout the military forces but throughout the entire population.

He states "the national effort is completely coordinated and responds promptly and efficiently to military direction."

"Everyone," he is quoted as saying, "is responding not only courageously but what is equally important, intelligently."

Reds Incessantly Press Back Foe

From December 1 to 4, Govorov said, in a Pravda interview, the Germans attacked the Minsk-Moscow highway threatening Golitzi, little more than 20 miles west and almost within artillery range of the capital.

A wall of fire from a long pile of straw and dry sticks, a third of a mile wide, sent flames skyward and blocked a German tank advance in this sector, he disclosed.

"Finish the Enemy"

Then the tables turned with Red army counterattacks which threw the Germans behind the Nara and Moscow Rivers. Other counterattacks at the same time along the arc about Moscow sent the Germans reeling in retreat which at some points turned into disordered flight.

Confusion in the Nazi ranks spread, Govorov continued, when Soviet infantry, cavalry, artillery and planes saw their chance and threw everything they had at the Germans.

Coupled with the official announcement that the Nazis were being blasted back from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the army organ, Red Star, exhorted Soviet forces to a supreme victory effort with the declaration:

"It is necessary to finish the enemy and administer such a blow that he will never be able to rise again. Complete extermination of Hitler's hordes, complete extermination of every German occupant to the last man is our objective."

A broadcast war bulletin of the official information bureau declared the Red army had recaptured the railway station of Uzlovaya, 40 miles southeast of Tula, Dubna to the west of Tula, and Verkhove, northeast of Livny, in day-long battling which raged on all fronts.

Ulovaya and Dubna are in the sector about 100 miles south of Moscow, and Verkhove is in the Orel sector about 200 miles south of the capital. Capture of Verkhove followed the announcement yesterday that the Germans had been driven out of Livny.

France Protests Against German Order for 100 More Reprisal Executions

Results of New Stand May Be Far-Reaching

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Dec. 14.—"The French government has made known its sentiments regarding the latest measures of repression taken by the German occupying authorities."

Thus does one news agency title a document of the greatest importance—possibly the most important since the armistice in June 1940—issued here this evening in reply to a notice in the occupied zone emanating from Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, commander in chief of the German forces in France, announcing reprisals against "Judeo-bolshevists whose purpose is to sabotage reconciliation between Germany and France."

The "sentiments of the French government" read:

"The French government has taken cognizance of the notice just published by the German authorities with all the more emotion, seeing that,

"First, it has always affirmed its reprobation, as well as that of the French people, for the outrages committed;

"Second, in fact through its police it has been able to arrest those guilty of several of these outrages;

"Third, this week, in the course of anguishing and repeated demarches, it had solicited and thought it might expect a notable reduction of the number of men to be shot.

"Although on this occasion the men concerned are not hostages but offenders, the very high number of those condemned nevertheless causes deep uneasiness among all the French people.

"The Government has made known to the German authorities its sentiments regarding such massive repressions."

The German note to which this is the reply began by recalling recent outrages against the Germans in the occupied zone—shooting and bombings—which are ascribed to "elements, some 'young,' in the pay of Anglo-Saxons, Jews and bolshevists, and acting on their infamous watchword." Gen. von Stuelpnagel then wrote:

"In no case have the murderers been arrested." (On this specific charge the French government replies that it has been able to arrest several of the guilty.)

The notice enumerates the measures taken in reprisal, namely, one billion francs fine imposed on Jews in the occupied zone, deportation "eastward" of a large number of Judeo-Bolshevists for forced labor, with the threat of "large-scale deportations" should further outrages be committed, and the execution of 100 "Jews, Communists and anarchists certainly connected with the authors of the outrages."

Ashamed for Japan

Domei Reporter Here Resigns And Offers to Fight for U. S.

SHAMEFUL PAGE—Clark Kawakami reads the war news with his wife after his denunciation here yesterday of Japan's attack as "the blackest and most shameful page in Japanese history." An American-born Japanese and United States citizen, Kawakami served as correspondent for a Japanese news agency. He plans to enlist in the United States Army

Clarke H. Kawakami, Washington correspondent of the Japanese Domei news agency, announced yesterday his resignation last Sunday from his agency, condemned Japan's "double dealing" as "the blackest and most shameful page in Japanese history," and offered his services to the United States.

Kawakami is an American citizen, born in this country. His father is a Japanese, but his mother and his wife are Americans. He has been a correspondent for Domei in various capitals of the world for seven years. His work in Washington took him particularly to the Department of State, but he also was frequently present at President Roosevelt's press conferences.

In a letter made public at the State Department, he informed newspaper colleagues that he planned to enlist in the American Army to do his bit toward "crushing forever" the type of "militarist rule which drags and drags peaceful people into war, wherever it exists."

"It seems clear," he wrote, "that throughout the last two months, since Tojo became premier, Japan's mind was already made up for war, and that she kept up the pretense of negotiating with this country only in order to gain time for the completion of her war preparations.

"That shameful double-dealing, coupled with the equally shameful manner in which she launched her attacks on Sunday, without warning, indicates how completely the militarists in Tokyo have gone over to the methods of Hitler and the Nazis. Not only I but my father, too, feel that these acts constitute the blackest and most shameful page in Japanese history."

His father, K. K. Kawakami, a Japanese subject, has resided in the United States for 40 years, writing for Japanese and American newspapers and magazines, and is the author of several books. Kawakami, sr., was taken into custody for questioning and is under detention by the immigration service at Gloucester City, N. J. Mrs. Kawakami is an American.

Young Kawakami asserted he had many friends in Japan who would be deeply ashamed if they knew the facts, but that he knew that "very little of what we have reported ever came to the knowledge of the Japanese public."

Encircling Net Imperils Axis' Libyan Troops

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Dec. 14.—German and Italian forces stubbornly withdrawing from eastern Libya turned about and fought savage rear guard actions southwest of Gazala, the British reported today, but their positions were said to be threatened by an encircling movement.

Military quarters said tanks and infantry were about three-quarters of the way around the Axis string of defensees stretching 40 miles from Gazala on the coast into the desert.

Hard fighting was said to be taking place at two main centers of resistance, at Gazala itself, which is about 100 milese west of the Egyptian border and southwest of Gazala.

The communique still said the British were closing in on Gazala.

In fighting farther east, about 500 troops were captured, 18 guns taken and a number of Italian tanks destroyed at Bir Hachiem, 40 miles southwest of Tobruk.

(A London military spokesman also reported the capture of the Axis frontier post of Ghirba in the Salum area, where a few beleaguered Germans and Italians still are holding their barbed wire and trench systems despite their shortage of water.

(German and Italian communiques declared the British had been repulsed in their attacks "west of Tobruk.")

The R. A. F. admitted the loss of 16 planes from its British, Australian and South African forces but declared 18 Germans and Italians were shot down.

(The Italian communique said 10 Italian fighters and an unstated number of Germans attacked a formation of 50 British planes, and shot down 24 of them. The Italians claimed 10 and admitted losing three of their own. The Germans, however, claimed 15 and said they lost none.)

The British bombed Axis transport heavily along the Bomba-Derna road west of Gazala, the Derna airport, and three southwestern Greek ports, Argostoli, Methone and Navarino.

Results of the Greek raids were not observed, the communique said. (The Italians said they shot down five of the bombers at Argostoli.)

Enemy Driven Back 50 Miles, Say British

New York, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—(The British radio, heard here by N. B. C., claimed that 2000 square miles of Libyan desert had been cleared of all Axis troops in the last few days. British forces, the radio said, have driven the enemy back to a depth of 50 miles on a front extending 40 miles.

Dutch Sink 2 More Japanese Ships, Raising 2-Day Bag to 6

By the Associated Press

Batavia, Java, Dec. 14.—Helping pyramid Japan's losses on the reinforcement sea lanes to Malaya, the Royal Netherlands Navy reported tonight sending two more ships to the bottom for a two-day total of six sunk by the Dutch, alone.

A communique reporting the new action off the east coast of Malaya identified the latest two ships to go down as a tanker and a freighter. It credited the sinking only to "our naval forces."

Dutch submarines were declared officially yesterday to have sunk four Japanese transports in the same waters with a loss of probably 4000 Japanese troops.

Aneta, Netherlands Indies news agency, said Batavia had its sixth air raid alarm of the war this evening. As in previous alarms, however, no bombs were dropped.

Movie crowds took the alarm in stride. Aneta quoted one American woman as commenting: "It apparently takes more than an air raid alarm to keep people from seeing Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour."

Defense precautions were increased, however, and the army commander in chief ordered all radio stations off the air hereafter during alarms at night.

Authorities announced that native quarters around the Java Sea naval base at Soerabaja were being cleared as a precautionary step.

Aneta reported that Dutch air force pilots fighting alongside British airmen in Malaya familiarized themselves with air lanes between Java and Singapore for weeks by accompanying Royal Netherlands Air Lines planes on regular flights between Batavia, Singapore, Bangkok and India.

The air line now has discontinued all flights except to Sumatra and Burma.

Aneta hailed the Netherlands navy's work of the weekend as a high spot in its history.

Along with the sinking of the transports, freighter and oil tanker, the Dutch naval units reported liquidating a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo.

Balkan Revolt Now a Full-Scale War

By the Associated Press

London, Dec. 14.—Slim, fair-haired Draja Mihailovic, a mere colonel in the Yugoslav army before the Germans overran his country, has been raised to the rank of full general in recognition of his "magnificent work" in organizing resistance to the Nazi occupation.

Several hundred thousand Axis troops appear to be tied up in Yugoslavia and Greece, opposing patriot armies waging small-scale war.

The Yugoslav government in exile, in announcing Mihailovic's promotion today, declared that under Mihailovic, Serb resistance had reached the proportions of full-blown military operations and could no longer be regarded as mere guerrilla warfare

(In Greece, according to the British radio as heard in New York by C. B. S., "eighteen German and Italian divisions are being kept busy trying to choke the revolt there." Quoting Emmanuel Tsouderos, premier of the Greek government in exile, the broadcast said a "regular small-scale war is on in Greece.")

The most recent Yugoslav communique was issued in Cairo last Thursday. It stated a Yugoslav force of 80,000 was holding its positions south of Belgrade.

When the Yugoslav government was forced to flee by the German onslaught, Mihailovic went into the mountains, where he rounded up scattered detachments of the Yugoslav army and welded them into an army which, the Yugoslavs declare, is a real menace to the Germans.

Rome Admits General Killed In 'Another Victory' in Russia

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Rome radio said today that Brig. Gen. Ugo Carolis fell in action Friday while leading his Turin Division "to another victory" on the Russian front. This broadcast was heard by C. B. S.

He was the sixth of Mussolini's generals to be killed in action in this war.

'HoldOn,' Hongkong Urged

London, Dec. 14.—Prime Minister Churchill sent today a message of encouragement to Gov. Lard and the defenders of Hongkong. He wrote:

"We are all watching, day by day and hour by hour, your stubborn defense of the port and fortress of Hongkong. You guard a link long famous in world civilization, between the Far East and Europe. We are sure that the defense of Hongkong against the barbarous, unprovoked attack will add a glorious page to Britain's annals.

"All our hearts are with you in your ordeal. Every day your resistance brings nearer our certain victory."

his woolen cap into his eyes to hide his tears.

There was music of an organ, but the melancholy sounds of fog horns in the harbor, and the rat-tat-tat of riveters in the war-bristling Navy Yard were the only accompaniment as Rear Admiral W. T. Tarrant, commandant of the yard, briefly reviewed the tragedy of the Reuben James, and said:

"From their unselfish sacrifice, may we obtain renewed inspiration to 'dedicate ourselves to the unfinished task which they have thus far so nobly advanced.'"

Six women, led by Mrs. Haywood L. Edwards, of Newport, R. I., widow of the commander who went down with the James, tossed flowers on the ebbing tide, and even as they did, the sun broke through the thick clouds and bathed the wreaths.

Unable to Support War, Pastor Quits

Pacifist Cleric Resigns Pastorate

John Hayes Holmes Refuses to Sanction Or Bless U. S. Cause

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 14.—The Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, noted cleric and for almost 35 years pastor of the Community Church, tendered his resignation today after telling his congregation he could not use his ministry "to bless, sanction, or support war."

Dr. Holmes said his resignation had been given to the church's board of trustees to be accepted "at such time in the uncertain future as my retirement may preserve this beloved church from embarrassment, odium or peril."

The 62-year-old minister, a director of the American Civil Liberties Union and active in civic and philanthropic affairs, declared the American people were not guiltless in a war which he described as "the final outrage" to the Will of God, and added:

"Conformity to Conscience"

"I thought through my pacifism more than a quarter of a century ago, and have lived by it ever since. It was tried as by fire in the last war, and again in the more dreadful fire of this present war. Now that the flames of this war have spread to our own shores, it must be tried even more terribly again."

The pacifist ideal, he said, was rooted not in 'accidents of circumstance" but in "conformity to conscience and obedience to the high counsel of God."

In another part of his sermon, he said:

"Ours is a war world, to which we have consented and in which we have participated, and this is what happens in such a world. War is the quintessence of evil. It is the greatest of all evils, because it contains all other evils within itself. It is violence, hatred, lust, pride, enmity, falsehood, deceit, and the rest of the complete catalogue of crime. From such evil can come no good thing, but only disaster and doom immeasurable."

Long War Predicted

Dr. Holmes predicted the war would last 15 to 20 years and exhaust the Nation's wealth, wreck its economy, ruin its democracy, despoil its culture and leave it unrecognizable.

"Even if we win this war, which is by no means certain," he continued, "we shall only reproduce that Roman victory described by St. Augustine, wherein 'the conqueror looked ever more like the conquered.' And the fairest hope of all our modern world, which was the promise of American life, will have disappeared forever."

"I will be loyal and obedient to my Government, and loyal and obedient also to my God; and when these loyalties conflict, I will choose, as did the apostles, to 'obey God rather than men.'"

The District department of the American Legion is giving a Christmas party tonight at 7 p. m. at Unit B in the Glenn Dale Sanitarium. Local entertainers will include Erline King, Joe King, Paul Evans and "R. W. and his gang."

EVER SINCE GREAT-GRANDMOTHER DANCED WITH LAFAYETTE

A flavor heirloom that good cooks have sworn by for more than 106 years is Lea & Perrins Sauce. "Turns poultry into poetry," they say, "and soups into symphonies."

Why not follow their lead and keep two bottles of Lea & Perrins Sauce in your culinary treasure chest?

One bottle near the stove, to pour enchantment into meat-loaves and casseroles; another for the table, to dash on when sizzling meat and fish platters appear.

Clergy Appeals For Spiritual Unity in U. S.

By Robert Tate Allen
Post Church Editor

Fervent prayers and sermon pleas for spiritual solidarity among Christians of all lands were voiced here yesterday, as worshipers spent the first Sabbath of America's formal state of war against the Axis.

Tense congregations prayed at a mass interfaith service at the Washington Cathedral which Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace attended; at First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O Streets Northwest, where men and women with varied national backgrounds sang "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds," and at many other churches.

More than 2000 people knelt at the Washington Cathedral, where leaders of Jewish and Protestant faiths, in brief meditations, called for humility, justice with mercy, righteousness and spiritual unity under God in facing the war crisis.

They were the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington; the Right Rev. G. A. West, Bishop of Rangoon, Burma; the Rev. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, president of the Washington Federation of Churches and pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, and Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

"Moral Determination"

Pleading more "moral determination" to meet today's crisis, Dr. Blackwelder, first to speak, said there are certain lines beyond which man and nations cannot go. Then, he said, they must seek Divine aid.

Bishop West, discussing the spirit of unity and neighborliness that grows out of crises, said such a spirit is the Christian Church's greatest opportunity for service today.

"If we are to save the world from turning into a howling wilderness," declared Rabbi Gerstenfeld in his message, "then we must do more than devote ourselves to winning the war. We must consecrate ourselves to winning the kind of a war that will help us to build the just peace."

Interwoven into Bishop Freeman's meditation was a warm tribute to the late Pilot Officer John Magee, 19-year-old R. A. F. flier and local youth killed in action a few days ago. In the congregation were his parents—the Rev. John G. Magee, curate of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, and Mrs. Magee.

Hearts Free of Prejudice

To emphasize world-wide Christian solidarity, as contrasted with military solidarity, the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden invited several persons whose family roots run to six countries engaged in war to participate in services at First Baptist Church.

In his sermon, Dr. Pruden called upon his parishioners to keep hearts free of prejudice, remain conscious of their world-wide Christian fellowship, recognize the price that a moral universe exacts from us for our personal and national sins, and keep an unshakable confidence in the ultimate triumph of Christ in every heart and nation.

Montgomery Set for Test Blackout Tonight; D. C. Youths Get Special Chemical Training

Montgomery County will stage its first practice blackout tonight at 8:45. The blackout, lasting 15 minutes, will be partial, street lights remaining lighted and traffic being permitted to move, in accordance with the request of District officials. The metropolitan area as far as Rockville will be included in the test.

All residents of the county were urged to cooperate in the drill and to turn out their lights when the alert is sounded. The county air raid signal is five short blasts repeated three times. A room should be provided at each home with windows masked to bar light from showing on the outside where members of the family can gather during the blackout.

All county policemen and volunteer firemen will be on duty and all air raid wardens and other civilian defense services will take their posts as in an actual air raid. The blackout is being held in accordance with directions from Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor to test the air raid warning and warden services.

D. C. Youths Get Special Training

Joseph W. Kay, 300 Taylor Street Northeast, and Millard H. Sutton, 3014 Twenty-sixth Street Northeast, as members of the Eleventh Civilian Defense Corps, have completed a special course of training at the United States Army Chemical Warfare School, Edgewood Arsenal, Md., it was announced yesterday. Both specialized in the technical features of civilian protection against air raids, including control of incendiary fires, the handling of unexploded bombs and measures to be taken against war gases.

Wardens to Receive Bomb, Gas Lessons

A school for instruction on bombs and gases will be held at 7:30 p. m. today and tomorrow in the Straus Memorial Christian Church, 524 Minnesota Avenue Northeast, it was announced yesterday by James L. Harrison, deputy air raid warden for the Benning area. Specialists from the police and fire departments will instruct the wardens, Harrison said.

Philoptohos Society Pledges War Aid

The Philoptohos Society of Saint Sophia Church, Eighth and L Streets Northwest, yesterday pledged that its members "being the mothers, wives, sisters . . . of Americans of Greek origin" will give full cooperation to America's war effort. The organization went on record "as sharing definitely and unqualifiedly the sentiments enunciated by the President of the United States."

Graduate Nurses Plan Victory Rally

The Graduate Nurses' Association, 1746 K Street Northwest, has requested all graduate registered nurses to attend a victory rally to be held at 8 p. m. Monday in the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution Avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets Northwest. The nurses will be told what they are to do in event of a community emergency. They were asked to attend in uniform.

N. C. State Society Dance Canceled

The North Carolina State Society has canceled the dance it planned to hold Saturday, December 20 at the Shoreham Hotel, it was announced yesterday. The action was taken at the request of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, the society president, it was stated.

Oh Yeah? Workers Reply to Nazi Boast

One of the Government's first war placards, answering with an "Oh Yeah?," the Nazi cry for world conquest, appeared on bulletin boards in the War Department yesterday.

The placards shows four fanatical-faced Storm Troopers, holding music sheets and singing:

"Heute gehort uns Deutschland."

(Today Germany is ours.)

"Morgen die ganz welt."

(Tomorrow the whole world.)

The words are at the top of the placard, the drawing next and at the bottom in large type:

"Oh yeah?"

'Defense Revue' Set For Tomorrow Night

A "Defense Revue," with cast of 150, Phil Hayden directing, will be presented at Roosevelt High School auditorium, Upshur and Thirteenth Streets Northwest, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow under auspices of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department and District Civilian Defense Council. The proceeds will help finance volunteer entertainment at nearby Army camps.

C. I. O. Auxiliaries Aid Victory Program

The Washington Assembly of C. I. O. Auxiliaries has set up a civilian defense registration desk at its headquarters at 1407 L Street Northwest.

Under the slogan "Organize for Victory," the assembly will be put on a six month's emergency basis. There will be only one functioning committee with the purpose of tying in the organizational drive with all the national service activities of the assembly.

Air-Raid Instructions Go Out to Schools and Parents

Instructions to teachers, children and parents on what to do and what not to do in case of an air raid were issued yesterday by the Office of Civilian Defense. First in importance was:

"Do not send the children home."

Eight specific instructions were printed in large type so as to be easily read by children on school bulletin boards. The concluding instruction to parents was:

"Stay home, go to your refuge room. Do not try to reach the school. You could accomplish no good. You could do a great deal of harm."

A summary of air raid instructions for schools follows:

1. What to do when the air raid warning sounds: Do not permit any pupils to leave the building. Do not send the pupils home. These protective measures . . . should be started at once.

2. Air raid drill: Use your fire drill organization to get pupils to the air raid refuge.

3. The air raid refuge: You must get away from windows and open doors. The large inside halls of most schools are suitable for an air raid refuge. Select the most protected places in the building—be sure they provide enough capacity to hold everyone without crowding. Be sure there is more than one exit.

4. What to do about incendiaries: Be sure the fire extinguishers are in proper working order. Be sure you have enough people who know how to use them. Appoint these people as fire guards. Appoint a chief fire guard. If incendiaries hit the building, the fire guards should try to handle them, and put them out with water spray.

5. What to organize: Do these things right away; they are essential now—(a) select the air raid refuge; (b) determine how the school alarm will be sounded for an air raid; (c) assign a refuge space for each class or room; (d) publish full instructions, have them read over and over again to pupils.

6. Here are some of the steps to take: (a) Appointment of school-building wardens; (b) special transmission of air-raid warnings from the control center to schools; (c) fire defense—adequacy of present equipment, appointment of fire watchers, and special training to combat incendiaries; (d) protective construction—quick and simple measures to provide additional security; (e) study of alterante air-raid refuges for teachers and pupils in case of fire.

7. What to do about training: Start your training now. Don't wait for the final plan. Drill your pupils to behave just as they do on a fire alarm. Keep up the morale of the pupils, so that if a raid occurs you will have experience in keeping them occupied.

8. Are we in danger? The answer to that is: We don't intend to get caught napping again—anywhere or any time. We are not going to say again, "It can't happen here."

CCC Camps Will House Raid Evacuees

Civilian Conservation Corps camps will be available for use as emergency mass evacuation centers, under an agreement signed by the CCC and the Red Cross, Chairman Norman H. Davis of the Red Cross announced yesterday.

CCC camps, equipment and personnel will be used by the Red Cross in any emergency caused by enemy action, Davis said. Key personnel will be trained in Red Cross disaster-fighting techniques. The agreement is similar to agreements entered into by the Red Cross and the military services, Davis said.

The CCC organization contains the combination of conditions needed to play "a vital role in disaster preparedness and relief," he stated. By tapping its facilities, essential supplies and equipment may be acquired on short notice with purchases of essential equipment and supplies held to a minimum, he said.

The CCC has 45,000 pieces of automotive equipment, the bulk of which are ambulances and trucks easily converted into ambulances. The 200,000 men enrolled in 1941 have taken the standard 20-hour Red Cross first-aid course. This training enables the enrollees to provide emergency aid for burns, immersion, hemorrhage and shock, pending arrival of professional medical aid.

"I would suggest to all civilian defense officials throughout the Nation that in signing up volunteers, they ask them if they have had CCC experience," CCC Director James J. McEntee said when he signed the contract with Davis. "Such a simple question might uncover a man who has been basically trained in some field vital to defense."

German-Tinged Radio Commands Puzzle Listeners

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP).—Mystified residents reported to police intermittent short-wave broadcasts by "an announcer with a German accent" were coming in on their radios.

"Heil!" "Hold it!" "Stay!" and "Sit!" were some of the commands coming through the loudspeakers.

Police found it was only Dog Trainer Carl Spitz, training canines, equipped with small portable receiving sets, for guard work in Army camps.

Spitz explained that each receiving set on a dog's back contains a small loudspeaker and through the broadcasting of short-wave commands the animal can be trained to follow orders so long as it remains within range of the sending station. Spitz uses a low-power transmitter with a range of less than 500 feet.

"My hair seems healthy—thanks to Thomas" says John A. Hoyt

Veteran Engineman on New York Central's 20th Century Limited

"ALTHOUGH the passengers on the 20th Century Limited ride in clean, air conditioned comfort, the cab of the locomotive is still a place where a man's hair can get pretty grimy. When I realized that my hair needed more specialized attention than I could give it myself, I consulted a Thomas expert. My scalp now seems free of dandruff scales, and I feel that my hair is in a good healthy condition," says John A. Hoyt.

Every man whose hair is thinning rapidly should realize that his hair needs more expert attention than he is able to give it himself. During the past 20 years more than a quarter-million men have arrived at this conclusion, and have turned their scalp problems over to Thomas. Come in today and let a Thomas expert show you exactly how Thomas treatment removes dandruff and how it soothes scalp itch which dandruff may cause. Find out for yourself why this reliable, proved treatment is considered "tops" by so many thousands of persons. Consultation and advice is gladly given (in private) without charge or obligation.

120 Yards Building 696 Ships for Navy

79 Completed in Bureau of Ships' First Year, Its Annual Report Says

The first annual report of the Navy's new Bureau of Ships disclosed yesterday that at the end of last June, 108 private shipyards and 12 Navy yards were building 696 new ships for the United States Navy.

The report covering the Government's last fiscal year, was made by Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, and marked the end of the first year of the Bureau of Ships, a consolidation of the former Bureau of Construction and the former Bureau of Engineering.

During its first year, the bureau made the largest annual obligation and expenditures for ships in the Nation's history. Contracts awarded totaled $6,634,858,854, while actual expenditures amounted to $863,833,753.

Of the 696 ships under construction, 601 were being built in private yards and 95 in Navy yards. Sixty-two vessels were completed by private yards and 17 by Navy yards during the time. In addition, 37 old destroyers were recommissioned, and 40 decommissioned submarines were put back into active service.

Awards were made for construction of 640 new vessels of all types, and approximately 237 others were bought from private owners.

Admiral Robinson reported that new plans and specifications for warships were developed during the year, including alterations designed to improve defense against air attacks, such as additional antiaircraft guns, splinter protection and installation of sky lookout stations.

More than 500 million dollars was allocated during the year for expansion of private and Navy shipyards.

Philippine Red Cross, Near End of Resources, Asks Aid

The Philippine Red Cross faced suddenly with the task of caring for homes in Manila, have about reached the end of their resources for feeding the homeless refugees.

Charles Foster, manager of the Philippine organization, yesterday cabled Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, that evacuation was proceeding but that help in providing food was desperately needed. Davis replied that all possible assistance would be given at once.

"We are using our entire resources, regardless of budgetary arrangements for relief," Foster said, "and can carry on for a short time, but will need a substatial appropriation soon.

"Evacuation of Manila and other areas proceeding. Impossible at this moment to give a statement of overall needs."

He added that "our emergency services have stood the test, our staff is showing discipline, loyalty and courage."

Foster said a shipment of 1200 tons of cracked wheat and a large quantity of surgical dressings, en route to China, had been diverted to the Philippines and was being distributed with the cooperation of the Army. His request for an additional appropriation indicated that needed food supplies might be purchased in the islands.

The Philippine Red Cross has ten 50-bed first aid stations in operation in the danger zone. Three of these are in Manila.

London Has Its First Raid Alert Since November 1

London, Dec. 14 (AP).—Air-raid sirens sounded in the London area this evening for the first time since November 1 but the all clear followed quickly.

Said grinning Londoners:

"This puts us in a class with New York," when it was reported that the alert was merely to keep the British in practice.

A German supply ship "blew up and disappeared" when hit three times by bombs off the Norwegian coast this morning, air ministry sources said. The ship was attacked from mast height by a Dutchman flying a United States built Hudson bomber.

She'll Sing For Britons

DEANNA DURBIN, actress and singer, who will go to Britain shortly to entertain the armed forces and munitions workers, it was announced yesterday in London

G. E. Shop Workers Start 7-Day Week

Schnectady, N. Y., Dec. 14 (U.P.).—Responding to President Roosevelt's call for increased production, 80 per cent of General Electric shop employes were at work today to inaugurate a seven-day work week in defense production.

The company has been working six days a week since the emergency started, but this was the first "all out on Sunday" for shop employes.

Deanna Accepts Halifax Bid to Sing in Britain

By the United Press

Hollywood, Dec. 14.—Deanna Durbin tonight accepted an invitation of the British Ambassador, Lord Halifax, to fly to England before Christmas and spend a month singing for troops and war workers throughout the British Isles.

The 19-year-old Miss Durbin and her movie producer husband, Vaughn Paul, said they expected to leave here Tuesday or Wednesday for Washington, for a brief visit at the British Embassy, and then to take a clipper from New York.

Representatives of the Embassy were understood to be attempting to arrange aerial passage for Miss Durbin in hope of obtaining an exception to the rule that seats on the clipper must be reserved for governmental officials.

"Only the plane tickets are holding up our plans," Miss Durbin said. "I thoroughly appreciate the Ambassador's invitation and I am flattered to know that the soldiers and the war workers want to hear me sing.

"It will be a great pleasure to me to do it and a satisfaction, too. If I can help in the war effort, even in this small way, then I shall feel well repaid."

Miss Durbin moved only yesterday into her new home in Brentwood, the first house in the movie colony to be equipped with a bomb-proof cellar, though when the architect drew the plans last summer there was no hint of possible aerial raids on Los Angeles. Miss Durbin said she did not order the bomb shelter, but that developments of the last few days made her glad the architect had included it.

For the last six weeks Miss Durbin has been on a sit-down strike against Universal Studios, which have earned some 15 million dollars from the movies she made as she grew into womanhood.

Every picture she made was a smash hit here and especially in Great Britain, where the Durbin singing seemed especially to hit the public fancy. The fact that she was born in Winnipeg, Canada, may have had something to do with her popularity in England.

This fall she rebelled against appearing in a picture scheduled for her, on the ground that the story was poorly written and that the producers refused to listen to her suggestions. Her husband previously had left the studio, where he met Miss Durbin while he was a second assistant director and she was a youngster in half socks.

Their romance culminated last winter in one of the most elaborate weddings ever held in Hollywood.

McNutt Forecasts Labor Shortage

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, said yesterday there was "an impending serious farm labor shortage."

McNutt made this forecast in urging that farmers use facilities of the United States Employment Service to secure workers.

"We cannot," he said in a statement, "afford the waste and suffering which comes with haphazard labor recruiting and uncontrolled migrantion. Such migration as is necessary must be carefully planned and controlled if we are to use our man-power effectively."

Guard on Rights Of All Promised

Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge told a Nationwide radio audience last night that he and the Department of Justice "are determined to do everything within our power to prevent illegal invasion of individual rights during this war."

Berge, who is in a position to wield a big stick as chief of the Justice Department's criminal division and its civil liberties division as well, went on:

"We have set ourselves against those pressures and influences which cry for the persecution of innocent persons.

"Within the past week we have instructed the United States attorneys (Federal prosecutors) throughout the country to be on their guard against inflamed or hysterical action by excited people. We have sought the cooperation of State governors and local law enforcement officials toward this end.

"Want No Vigilante Action"

"We are anxious to spread the word that we want no vigilante action by private citizens or organizations during this war. Federal law enforcement agencies are fully adequate to cope with actual cases of subversive activity. Those cases will be vigorously prosecuted, but I can give full assurance that in enforcing war-time laws every effort will be made to protect the essentials of freedom of speech."

Quincy Howe, of the American Civil Liberties Union, one of three others who shared the microphones with Berge, said he would be able to sleep well nights if he knew that men like Berge were keeping watch on civil liberties during this war.

Others sharing the "American Forum of the Air" platform at the Shoreham Hotel were Representative Emanuel Celler, of New York, ranking Democratic member of the House Judiciary Committee, and Representative John M. Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, introduced by Moderator Theodore Granik as head of the "House liberal bloc."

Upholds Expression of Opinion

During the discussion, Howe said censorship of information was absolutely necessary in wartime but:

"To deny every American the right to hold and express what opinions he pleases is to deny the very cause for which we stand in the world today. Only by retaining this and other principles that made us a great Nation can we remain strong."

Celler criticized newspapers for going beyond the right of freedom of the press recently in telling the public of "alleged plans of the War Department for an A. E. F."

"Some culprit in the War Department betrayed this military secret," he said. "Making such plans public gave comfort to the enemy. . . . It is an abuse of freedom of the press or speech."

Representative Coffee called on the public to "rebuke self-proclaimed patriots and vigilantes of the Klu Klux Klan stamp who would deny to the people fair and constructive criticism of the handling of the war."

Last night's forum subject, "What Does Freedom of Speech Mean to Us Today?" was tied in with today's observance of the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

Citizens' Groups Stress Defense

mass meeting tonight, John P. Cahill, member of the executive defense committee announced. Those registering tonight will be expected to attend the Dahlgren Terrace citizens association meeting Thursday where defense plans will be perfected, he said.

The Lincoln Park group plan to have a member of Congress address them tonight on the Bill of Rights, President Alfred D. Calvert said. Among matters to be discussed will be rat control, he said.

Representative Robert T. Secrest, of Ohio, will address a mass meeting of Southeast citizens tonight on the Bill of Rights, William A. Maio, chairman of the local defense committee, announced. After singing patriotic songs the citizens will listen to the Bill of Rights broadcast from the White House.

Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association tonight will hear Renah Camalier, special counsel to the Senate District Committee, speak on pending legislation affecting this city. Col. William H. England, chairman of the executive defense committee, will report on progress in that area.

To Discuss Defenses

Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park citizens tomorrow will devote their meeting entirely to civilian defense according to President Culver B. Chamberlain. The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights meeting tomorrow will hear a talk by Maj. Edward J. Kelly on the relation of citizens to the Police Department.

Installation of officers will also take place at the meeting, president Sparrell A. Wood said. Dr. Lyman Kedler will read a paper on the Bill of Rights, and there will be a discussion of the air raid warden setup.

The Petworth group tomorrow will hear reports from their defense officers, President George W. Potter announced. Georgetown Citizens will hold their meeting tonight with a portion of the program dedicated to the anniversary of the Bill of Rights, Joseph I. Cavanaugh, secretary announced.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District division of the American Automobile Association and member of the Commissioner's Traffic Advisory Council will address the group tonight on "Pedestrian Protection." This was announced by Director of Vehicles and Traffic W. A. Van Duzer who recently called attention to the fact that speakers are available to speak on the subject of safer driving and pedestrian protection.

"What Will You Do if There Is an Air Raid?" will be the topic for the mass organization meeting of the citizens of the Kalorama Road area which will be held tonight at 7:30 in the John Quincy Adams School, Nineteenth and California Streets Northwest. Talks will be given by Joan Wakefield, who was assistant air-raid warden in London from December, 1940, to July, 1941, and William T. Kruglak, deputy air-raid warden.

A list of the organizations meeting this week follows:

Army Takes Over Ten Airliners 'For a Few Days'

Ten commercial transport planes will be temporarily taken off their scheduled passenger runs for a few days to carry out "an administrative mission" for the Army, the War Department announced last night.

Nature of the mission was not explained.

The department's announcement stated:

"Due to the present emergency, Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, has offered to make available to the Army air force the use of airline facilities. The War Department confirmed that it is taking advantage of this offer to transport Army supplies for an administrative mission. This has necessitated the removal of some passenger planes—about ten—from their regular schedules. It is not anticipated that the Army will require the use of these planes for this mission for more than a few days."

The department did not disclose the lines from which the planes will be taken, the schedules which will be temporarily canceled or the dates.

War Will Break Up Roosevelts' 'Family Christmas'

By International News Service.

President Roosevelt's hopes of having an unbroken family group around him at Christmas, according to his custom, definitely were ended yesterday after the most hectic, heart-breaking week in the President's many years in the White House.

With sons John and Franklin jr., in the Navy, and Elliott with the Army Air Corps, Capt. James, the oldest, saw his father briefly yesterday, and told him that he was leaving immediately for San Diego. Ensign Franklin, jr., has not been heard from directly for over a month. The other two boys are in service at undisclosed points.

Ill Mother Must Leave Babes Alone at Night While She Works as Waitress

Family No. 19

Mrs. D., mentioned above, was told by doctors when she left the hospital after a two-months' siege of arthritis that she must not do hard work.

But what would you do if you had two babies crying for food?

Mrs. D. got a job to support them, a job requiring far harder work than her health will really stand but the only thing she could find—as a waitress.

Mrs. D. had told herself with meaningful conviction when her husband died last spring that she was going to take care of those children, come what would. To her everlasting credit, let it be said that she has done an almost superhuman job in the face of obstacles that would have long ago downed one less determined.

Doctors have told her she urgently needs medical treatment. To her this treatment is out of the question. Beth and Jeanette come first. As long as they are in need, she will not spend money on treatment for herself.

And this is where Post readers can help. If money for medical treatment for Mrs. D could be provided and her budget supplemented for three months, it is believed work not so hard could be found for her, so that she could retain her health and support her children and some arrangement could be made to care for them while she is working.

The small amount of $60 would accomplish this deeply worthwhile aim. Family certified by Family Service Association.

Family No. 60

Thin, frail Eleanor, oldest of the seven children, has been doing wonderfully as a "substitute mother" for her brothers and sisters while their mother is ill. But for a girl as young as Eleanor the task has been just too great and now her own health has become seriously impaired.

Life has gone a downward course for the S. family since last summer, when the parents were enthusiastically planning education for the children, replacement of worn-out furniture and glasses for mother.

Mr. S.'s work was better than it had been for several years. But his work is seasonal and has been worse than ever this winter. Then the mother had to have a serious operation and is still ill at home.

To make a bad situation even more burdensome, Ethel and George have childhood type tuberculosis and the whole family needs food and fuel. Unless help comes soon, Christmas will be a miserable time for this family.

For $120 Mr. S.'s earnings can be supplemented sufficiently until better weather returns to permit the family to stay together. Food, clothing and a housekeeper until the mother is recovered could be provided with the money. Family certified by Catholic Charities.

Family No. 81

Mrs. L. would have made things all right for herself and three little children if it hadn't been for that constant piercing pain in her side.

When her husband, habitually drunk, deserted her, she got a job as a maid in a large hotel and besides supporting her three children, took care of her mother as well.

When the pain in her side became so intense she could stand it no longer, she went to see a doctor. He told her that she must change at once to a job requiring less heavy lifting.

Even that change to a job paying $6 less a week wouldn't have been so serious if Mr. L. had carried his end of the bargain to contribute to the support of the family. But he didn't.

Now Mrs. L. is behind in the rent. She has no money to pay for medical treatment which she has been told she must have if she would continue to support the family at all.

The small amount of $30 would provide medical treatment for Mrs. L. while she is workin, part time. When she is well again she can get a full-time job and support the family. Family certified by Family Service Association.

The neediest families have only one hope for help. That is through contributions from Post readers. They are not eligible for public relief and funds of private agencies are greatly limited.

Each one of the families was recommended by one of five agencies: Family Service Association, American Legion Welfare Department, Catholic Charities, Bureau of Rehabilitation and Salvation Army. These agencies will administer the fund without cost.

Contributions received up to an early hour yesterday afternoon were as follows:

You're proud to present pipe-smokers with this big one-pound tin of mild, rich-tasting Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco. Magnificent in its Christmas jacket... just right in a pipe!
CAMELS
There's an added pleasure in giving Camels at Christmas. You know your gift will be so genuinely welcome. More smokers prefer Camels than any other cigarette. And that preference holds for men in the Army, the Navy, the Marines, and the Coast Guard, too! So remember those lads in uniform... remember all the cigarette smokers on your list... with the cigarette of costlier tobaccos—Camels. Your choice of the package of four flat fifties or the popular Camel carton.
PRINCE ALBERT
If he smokes a pipe, a big, long-lasting pound of cool-burning Prince Albert spells smoking pleasure 'way into the New Year... at camp, on ship, at home. Prince Albert is choice tobacco, "no-bite" treated for mildness and "crimp cut." It's the National Joy Smoke. There's no other tobacco like it. Your local dealer has two handsome Prince Albert "specials"... the pound tin (above) or the special glass humidor jar. (The humidor itself makes a handsome gift!) Get yours today.

U. S. Set to Make Gasoline of Coal

Bits and Pieces

Use of Small Firms in War Output Urged

Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, urged a "bits and pieces" program yesterday to make greater wartime use of production facilities of small business and industry.

The chairman of the Senate committee studying problems of small business said, "What the British did after Dunkerque we can do after Pearl Harbor. The British organized the bits and pieces program, called in small business and enormously increased British war production."

Essentially, the British "bits and pieces" program was an effort to get small industrial establishments busy turning out parts and pieces for warplanes and other weapons.

Murray said he was convinced there were "enormous idle resources available among the 200,000 small business concerns of this country that should be utilized immediately."

He said these facts would be developed at public hearings opening today by the Senate group.

Stacy May, OPM research chief, and A. F. Hendricks, acting chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, will be the chief Government witness at the hearing. Walter Finke, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, will represent small business interests.

New England businessmen will appear before the committee tomorrow; Wednesday will be the Middle-west's day; representatives from the Pacific Coast will present their problems on Thursday.

On the point of Army dealings with small business, the War Department made public yesterday a letter from Walter Von Tresckow, president of the Halstead Traffic Communications Corporation.

Von Tresckow said he was under the impression that a small businessman faced mountains of red tape in Washington, but was pleasantly disillusioned when he came to Washington about a contract for a signal corps equipment and got needed information in one hour and 15 minutes.

Full-Scale Output Possible at Any Time, Ickes Reveals

By the United Press

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes said last night that the department's experiments with strategic and critical materials indicate that, in an emergency, the United States can begin "full-scale" production of gasoline from coal.

He said in his annual report to President Roosevelt that there is no immediate shortage or lack of base petroleum supplies but that the hydrogenation of coal, thus far confined to tests on a semicommercial scale, could be started commercially "at any time . . . natural resources show signs of depletion."

The world conflict, Ickes said, "has opened our eyes as never before to the extent and possibilities of America's resources.

"We have been enabled to turn to our natural heritage and in the wealth of minerals, water power, grazing lands and timber," he said, "to find the vital necessities for constructing our physical defenses. In order that the Nation may fulfill its function as an arsenal of democracy, we have hastened the development of hydro-electric power in the West. . . .

"The initial production of power at Grand Coulee Dam was months ahead of schedule. . . .

"During the fiscal year, the Bonneville Power Administration power sales made possible the production of nearly 60 million pounds of aluminum pig metal and resulted in establishment of power-using aluminum plants with a capacity sufficient to build one-fourth of all the planes scheduled for production during the ensuing 12 months."

Metallurgical experiments, he said, had resulted in "successfully devised ore-dressing methods" for producing ferromanganese, antimony, chromite, magnesite and tungsten, products vital to processing of steel which normally are obtained from foreign sources of supply.

The bureau's helium plant at Amarillo, Tex., he continued, established a new record output of more than 16,250,000 cubic feet of the lightweight, noninflammable gas during the year. The plant's capacity, he said, is being increased by 50 per cent to meet future requirements of the Army and Navy for "barrage balloon operation, meteorological balloons, airships and other military and naval needs."

Ickes pointed to the record of the department's grazing service in conserving forage and water facilities on 142 million acres of Government land as characteristic of the "prominent part" conservation will play in "the rehabilitation of a devastated world during the post-war period."

"The cattle herds in many countries are virtually wiped out, he said. The slaughter of foundation livestock in the occupied countries of Europe eventually will cause the world to look more and more to the United States as a source of breeding stock."

Portuguese Position Is Precarious

Copyright by New York Times

Portugal is in an increasingly precarious position as the war develops, and her political independence and territorial integrity in the last analysis will probably be determined by the needs of Axis military strategy, the Foreign Policy Association reported in a special survey yesterday.

Prime Minister Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, the report says, has spared no effort to preserve absolute neutrality between the belligerent powers, but it concludes that since Portugal's only land frontier is with Spain, the Portuguese "could hardly remain at peace if Spain became actively involved in the war."

The report notes, however, that so far the belligerents on both sides have had "reason to prefer that Portugal not become involved in the conflict. From the strategic point of view, Portugal's dual role as a continental and imperial power has apparently been a decisive deterrent to enforce involvement. In the last analysis, Portuguese independence and territorial integrity may be determined by the needs of Axis military strategy, but Libson is sparing no effort to preserve its economic, political and strategic equilibrium between the powers at war."

In conclusion, the report speculates on the possibility that any Axis invasion of the Iberian Peninsula would lead to immediate British and possibly American use of Portugal's valuable outlying bases. On the other hand, it observes British or American seizure of the Portuguese islands would result in German use of continental Portugal's air and naval bases, which lie farther west than any other good harbors on the European continent.

Fanfare Barred In Launching of Merchant Ships

Because of the war, the Maritime Commission decreed yesterday that henceforth merchant ships will be launched without fanfare.

"Although these may be the traditional christenings of vessels," the commission said in an announcement, "they will be simple and informal and no reimbursement will be allowed shipbuilders for any expense incurred in connection with launchings."

Recently the commission limited to $500 launching ceremony costs for ships built for it.

"Due to the war situation," it said today, "even that small expenditure has been ordered eliminated. "Every hour must be directed toward expedited construction. Former ceremonies often have taken several hours and tended to delay work in shipyards."

It was revealed also that the commission has sent out instructions to its auditors in the various shipyards to disallow any charges for gifts to sponsors which shipbuilders might seek to include in their cost statements.

Hospital's Test Blackout Fails To Defer Birth of Baby Girl

LIFE GOES ON—Nurse Geraldine Hurley holds Carol Anne Heater, who was born Saturday night at Doctors Hospital in the midst of a practice blackout

Tiny Carol Anne Heater had her first war experience Saturday night when she was born during a practice "blackout" at Doctors Hospital.

All the lights in the building which were visible on the street were shut off at 9:30 p. m. This included the delivery room.

However, Carol Anne decided to enter the world at that moment. Doctors and nurses agreed to continue the blackout of the outside rooms, and emergency quarters were quickly set up in an adjoining hall where the lights were still on.

Carol Anne didn't mind a bit, and both her birth and the blackout were successful.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heater, 1320 Twenty-first Street Northwest. Her father is a clerk in the War Department.

'OK From Now On,' Say Arrivals on Hawaii Clipper

San Francisco, Dec. 14 (INS).—A Pan American clipper swooped down out of a murky sky today, bringing to San Francisco the first civilian passengers to arrive from Hawaii since the beginning of hostilities there a week ago.

Typical comment by the 26 passengers was that of Mrs. R. K. R. Worthington, who was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Howard K. Sutton, of Philadelphia.

"It's OK from now on," said Mrs. Worthington. Others agreed that "morale is high."

Among other passengers was Ellis Johnson, who lives at 6400 Brookville Road, Chevy Chase, Md. He is a Carnegie Institution physicist on leave of absence as a civilian employe of the Navy Department.

D. F. Cameron, WPA Press Aide, Dies After Fall

Donald F. Cameron, 39, press relations man with the Works Progress Administration, died last night in Gallinger Hospital, succumbing to injuries suffered in a fall a week ago Sunday night at his residence, 612 Eighteenth Street Northwest.

A former newspaperman, Mr. Cameron had served with the Associated Press and Providence Journal. He leaves his wife, Aloyse, and a son, Donald.

The funeral will be held from the Ryan funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow, with mass in St. Paul's Church, Fifteenth and V Streets Northwest, at 9 a. m. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Sailor Who Ripped Down Swastika Tries to Rejoin

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 14 (AP).—The sailor, who was dismissed from the United States Navy for tearing down a Nazi swastika from the German consulate in San Francisco last January, has applied for reenlistment. Recruiting Officer Charles Mitchell said today that Harold J. Sturtevant, 20, wants to join again. Sturtevant was not given a dishonorable discharge, but left the Navy on charges of misconduct.

Sturtevant, a resident of Haverhill, joined a shipmate and four youths in climbing to the ninth floor windows of the consulate in a downtown building and ripped the flag from its staff.

Rubber for War Use Held Ample

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., said today that the country's present stockpile of rubber together with increased new sources would meet the Nation's military and naval requirements.

The stockpile was sufficient to meet normal needs for a year, he said, adding a warning that the stock must not be drawn upon except for vital military needs. Rubber for civilian use, he said, would probably depend on intensive use of other sources of supply, such as synthetic rubber, reserve stocks, and development of domestic sources.

Philatelists Expect New, Rare Foreign Items To Appear as Japanese War Progresses

By William M. Stuart
The Post Stamp Editor

The war will play an important part in philatelic activities.

For some time now war covers and stamps from the European nations engaged in the struggle have been eagerly collected by Washington stamp collectors and many unique and rare items have been secured. But now the field of war activities is greatly broadened and with the United States actively concerned philatelists are more concerned than ever.

Especially will the Philippines play an important part and the Pan American covers that are flown on the clippers have already become rare and exceedingly valuable. The planes that were forced down and obliged to turn back to port no doubt had much mail and every item will be considered a rarity.

Due to the declaration of war and during the continuance of hostilities between the United States and Japan, Germany and Italy no letters, packages or other mail matter originating within the United States or its possessions and destined for Japan or its possessions, for Germany or Italy, or any place under the control of Germany or Italy shall be dispatched in the United States.

Postmasters have been instructed to forward to the appropriate exchange office any mail on hand or hereafter received, addressed for delivery in Japan, Germany or Italy. The Japanese possessions include Chosen or Korea, Taiwan or Formosa, Bokoto or Pescadores Islands, Karafuto or Japanese Sakhalin, Marianne or Ladrone Islands, Marshall Islands, Caroline Islands, mandates under the Treaty of Versailles, Leaded Territory of Kwantung and Manchuria.

For the present "any postoffice," port or place under the control of Germany or Italy" should be considered as including all of continental Europe except Gibraltar, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and unoccupied France.

It is assumed that foreign mail now in transit to the United States will be delivered and from the exchange offices mails now en route will eventually find its destination. Philatelists are interested in all of this mail and a careful watch will be kept for both stamps and covers coming to the United States. There have been many interesting covers, both censored and uncensored, coming into Washington from Germany and Italy and the countries under the control of these two nations and dealers have kept up very well with new issues. But from now on there will be no importations of stamps from Japan, Germany or Italy, though officials state that not many consignments of stamps have been received of late from either Germany or Italy.

Stamp collectors are more interested in foreign stamps and covers at this time than for many years and Navy and Army cancellations from bases, camps and warships keep the collectors unusually active. The foreign stamp has always been collected while the number of collectors interested only in United States has been very large, the fact that there are no United States stamps announced for the future, except envelope, has given the foreign field full away.

The present European issues are eagerly sought and stamps that a year or two ago could be obtained in great quantities and for small costs are now being removed for sale by many dealers. Hence it is that the present war situation in the United States and all over the world has greatly increased the interest in stamp collecting.

Mary Stromberg Rites Tomorrow At Sandy Spring

She leaves a husband, John Stromberg, employed by the county roads department; two daughters and four sons, Mrs. Elmer Duvall, of Fairland, and W. J. McCauley, Earlton, N. Y., children by a former marriage. Mrs. Grace Bryan, C. Aubrey Stromberg, Paul W. Stromberg, of Fairland, and Clifton Stromberg, of Washington; four sisters, Mrs. Mattie Wheeler, Washington; Mrs. Eva Comstock, Camp Springs, Md.; Mrs. Delmar Milestead, Clifton Park, Md.; Mrs. Belle Musgrove, Spencerville, Md., and two brothers, J. T. Milestead, Fairland, and Thomas Milestead, Wilmington, Del.

Postlude By Ray C. B. Brown

Cordial Audience Welcomes Symphony Back From Tour

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Egon Petri. Program: Noel (Chadwick), Symphony No. 3 in F major (Brahms), Piano Concerto No. 5 in E flat major (Beethoven), Russian Dance, Arabian Dance and Waltz of the Flowers from "The Nutcracker" (Chaikovski).

Returning from the first tour of the season, Hans Kindler and the National Symphony Orchestra were welcomed home yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall by a cordial audience. Travel and a dozen performances along the route did not seem to have wearied the musicians, who were fresh and responsive in their playing. While the program, which began and ended with references to the coming Christmas, offered nothing novel, the concert had a signal soloist in the person of Egon Petri, the masterly Dutch pianist, who was in authoritative form in a brilliant exposition of Beethoven's fifth concerto. His appearance was, one surmises, the crux of the occasion for many of the listeners.

BROWN

That witty psychologist, William James, remarked that the pleasures of a concert are never fully realized unless you do something about it, such as saying a kind word to your aunt. The heightening of emotional tension by good music is best released through a sharing of one's exalted state. In this respect a critic is fortunately placed, for he can communicate his stimulation by praising either the music itself or the manner of performance, while the glow of the experience is still felt. Yesterday's concert had this uplifting quality both in the material and the execution, for there were two masterpieces on display in fine performances.

The introduction to the major works was George Chadwick's beautiful "Noel," a serene and reverent evocation of the Holy Night. It is a tone-poem of nocturnal peace, tender and compassionate, confident in spiritual faith. This confidence made it a fitting prelude to the F major symphony which Hans Richter pronounced to be the "Eroica" of Johannes Brahms. While the comparison may err a little on the side of laudation, the work has a conscious assertion of ethical integrity that gives it a noble strength.

Hans Kindler and his players read the symphony with a warm eloquence that made every listener the better for having heard it. The first movement was excellently balanced in the interpretation of the opposing thematic principles, call them light and darkness, good and evil, or what you will. The lovely song-like andante was poetically phrased, the C minor allegretto moved with grace, and the finale was dramatically effective.

Egon Petri was technically impeccable in his treatment of Beethoven's E flat major concerto, but there was nothing vain-glorious in his virtuosity, which merely made light of the difficulties while maintaining respect for the musical ideas. Soloist and conductor were consentient in their readings to a deeply satisfying degree, and their agreement was particularly felicitous in that magical moment in the andante when the key-note of B drops to B flat in the transition to the final allegro.

The concert closed with three excerpts from Chaikovski's ballet, "The Nutcracker," which, it will be recalled, has to do with a child's dream after a Christmas party.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

PLEASANT AIR RAID SHELTERS. With everyone getting prepared for anything, it looks as though some of the leading cocktail spots would be fine places to dive into in case of emergency. . . . There's the Neptune Room, a veritable grotto in the basement of the Earle Theater Building. It would take a tough bomb to penetrate that far. . . . The Mayfair is also well below street level. We asked Promotion Manager Jimmy Byrd if he was going to up the price of cocktails during air raids. "Positively not!" he said. "We'd serve hot soup to everybody." . . . The Cosmos Room is both under street level and in the center of the Carlton Hotel. You could sit there and sing "God Bless America" cheerfully until the "all clear" signal sounded.

The Stylists, a foursome of young musical smoothies, open in El Patio this evening. Marjorie Hyam, who's both chic and gifted, plays vibraphone and piano, while accordion, bass and guitar melodizing is taken care of by John Tatum, Jerry Blake and Dan Tatum. The entire group joins up in "velvet vocals."

A VINCENT LOPEZ GRADUATE is Stan Hall, new maestro at the Viking. Stan played guitar with the Lopez orchestra for several seasons, was also with Sam Watkins' band, famous in the early days of radio. And people who've been in Washington for a few years will remember Stan as playing with San Katz and his Kittens at the Wardman Park Hotel. . . . Stan's new Viking band turns out both neatly polished dance music and jovial comedy specials. . . . Other new Viking personalities are beaming Frank Govan, accordionist, and black-eyed "Ginger" James, torch songstress.

BARBARA LEE, the "Victor Herbert Girl," will rejoin the Shoreham floor revue this evening for one week before entering Benny Davis' "Stardust" show in Cincinnati. Also at the Shoreham will be dancers Consolo and Melba and the acrobatic Westons.

TODAY'S GALA OPENING is that of the new "400 Club" at 1423-1425 F Street, right in the heart of downtown. . . . The "400" prevue was gala, too, with Proprietor Jules James, who's prominent in the admirable philanthropic activities of the Variety Club, greeting hundreds of press and business friends. . . . The "400" decoration is handsomely streamlined, both in the upstairs dining room and cocktail lounge and in the unique nested booth arrangement on the first floor. . . . And you'll enjoy the spot's new thrill in appetizers—cubes of hickory smoked cheese.

Bud Sweeney, new emcee at Paul Young's, is a former London musical comedy star. He's appeared in Chicago theaters, also in Miami clubs, during the last season or two.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS. Christmas carols, Russian style, will be warbled by the Balalaika's gypsy choir this week. A Yuletide stage setting has been arranged and the gypsies will be seen wandering from house to house as they carol the old-time Russian Christmas songs. . . . A big Christmas tree has been set up in Restaurant "823" and the Heintze Brothers and Jane Marlow are playing all the Christmas songs ever written every night. The customers sing the airs right merrily—when they know the words. . . . Maestro Dick Koons of the Mayflower Lounge is expecting a wonderful present from Santa Claus almost any minute. A stork will sub for the reindeer.

VICTORY TABLES. At Meredith Howard's "goodwill luncheon" for the Republic of Peru at Hotel "2400," there were tables in the form of a V, also arranged in the three dots and a dash that's radio code for "Victory."

MUSIC THAT'LL "SEND YOU." Patty Prochnik's pretty singing of "Everything Happens to Me" in the Pall Mall Room. . . . Beverly Stull's sweet-as-sugar accordioning in Burt's Trans-Lux. Her sunshiny smile helps, too. . . . Alfredo Seville's inspiring rendition of "One Alone" at the Troika. The gentleman has a real voice and handles it magnificently. . . . The dynamic quality that violinist Alex of the Plymouth gives to Brahms' Hungarian dances. . . . "Valse Caprice" as played with suave mastery by the Rainbow Room's Milton Davis on the novachord. . . . Another prize novachord expert is George Berg of the Brown Derby. George loves to play the musical clown, but he can also play rarely beautiful novachord music. . . . The college song interludes played by Layton Bailey's band in the Metronome Room. They have that youthful ring and charm. . . . For a "Mama Yo Quiero" that's really zingy, listen to the Copocabana's rumba band. . . . For astounded giggles, bend an ear in Cafe Caprice to Don Carper's song about the girl and the finance company. . . . And you should hear the trimming that the Hi Hat's Cavaliers give to "Mexicali Rose." When it's all over the guitar player takes a deep breath and shouts "Yes, sir!" . . . If you're looking for sheer and sharp modern dance rhythm, never miss Ralph Hawkins' Crossroadsters out at the new Crossroads.

MARY BOSLEY,
beauteous Manhattan singer, who opens at the King Cole Room this evening

It's another "Talent Try-Out" at the Neptune Room tomorrow evening. Get there early whether you're a contestant or a customer. Tables are at a premium by ten o'clock.

PAN-AMERICANA. Maestro Russ Hawn of the Versailles thinks that a fine "good neighbor" dance number would be one combining the conga and fox trot. So far only two experiments along this line have been made and neither one was of "click" caliber. . . . If you've ever made the mistake of saying Carmen Miranda sings in Spanish when it's really Portuguese, don't feel too badly about it. The Madrillon's Peter Borras says, "The difference between Portuguese and Spanish is less than the difference between Castilian and Catalan varieties of Spanish and that in turn, is less than the difference between the speech of a Vermonter and a South Carolinian."

BLACKOUT AND LIGHT UP. The Lotus was the first victim of the called-off blackout . . . Manager Dick Lam turned off the Lotus neon sign, not knowing the whole business had been canceled. Was he surprised when he walked out to the street, saw the Lotus was the only dark spot for blocks around!

DANCERS IN CHAINS. The Casino Royal's new show opening today will present a unique "Dance in Chains" by Valdez and Peggy. We gather that it's a nice little sadistic item. There'll also be Mildred and Eddy Hunt, boy and girl hand balancers. The Continental Girls will be shivering in grass skirts from Dupont (blue cellophane) and Jivin' Jack Schaffer, is taking the "Chattanooga Choo Choo" out for a speedy run.

SOOTHING ATMOSPHERE PLUS FINE FOOD. Soft stepping waiters and hearty "men's food" are typical of Olmsted's. The steaks are thick and the pies are luscious. . . . Business men all over the country know about Hogate's, head there for sea food as soon as they arrive in Washington. The huge dining room is serenely quiet except for a murmur of conversation and a whiff of wired melody. . . . O'Donnell's Farmhouse serves the kind of dinner that starving men dream about. It's not only deliciously cooked, but full of unusual items and so lavish in quantity that you absorb calories by the thousands.

Police Have Busy Time With Smiths

It was a Smith field day over the weekend at the First Police Precinct.

Two shootings Saturday night, according to the police, were committed by people named Smith, one of whom was arrested, and one of whom was not. The Smith still out of town is said to be known to police, however.

No one was seriously hurt in the shootings, which occurred in the 200 block of G Street Northwest and the 100 Block of Fenton Street Northeast.

Then yesteraday morning a man named Milton Smith, 73, of the 900 block of H Street Northwest, heaved two bricks at two plate glass windows at the Hecht Co., scoring direct hits. Smith was arrested by Private E. G. Smith, of the First Precinct, and guess who admitted the man to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation. It was Dr. John Smith, of Gallinger.

The windows cost $800 apiece.

Russia's Stand

Most of the questions which arose last week regarding Russia's position in the war have been resolved by Maxim Litvinoff's forthright statement to the American press. The Soviet Ambassador was understandably reticent on the subject of what action, if any, Russia plans to take against Hitler's Japanese ally. Her man power and energies are fully engaged in a titanic struggle with Hitler which has taken a heavy toll of Russian as well as German lives and materiel. So it is not surprising that Russia seems loath to take on an additional burden in the east at present. Americans may regret this apparent decision while at the same time agreeing with Mr. Litvinoff that a defeat of Hitler in Russia "would mean the shipwreck of all his hopes and plans, and would seal his fate forever." It cannot be assumed from what the Soviet envoy said that Russia has permanently barred any joint action with Great Britain and the United States in the Far East. On the contrary, he made it clear that he is fully aware of the fact that the wars in Europe and the Far East are only "separate sectors of one great battlefield." And while he bracketed Russia as fighting with Great Britain and the United States in a common cause he also listed Japan among the "international gangsters calling themselves Axis powers." "We are all in the same boat now," he said with that realism which has always characterized his utterances, "and will either perish together or together triumph over the greatest evil of our times, over the spirit of aggression, of international infamy and barbarity."

In view of this attitude on the part of the Soviet Union the problem of Russian, British and American cooperation ceases to be a problem in diplomacy and becomes a problem in strategy to be worked out in accordance with the paramount necessities of the Allies. Since the flow of badly needed supplies to Russia may be impeded so long as the war in the Pacific continues, it is obviously to Russia's long-run interests to help knock out Hitler's Oriental partner as soon as possible. Thus a basis for joint action on a world-wide scale appears to have been laid.

Steel For War

The American Iron and Steel Institute says that the United States can produce three tons of steel for every two tons that can be made by all the Axis-dominated countries put together. The best available estimates indicate that Germany, the rest of continental Europe (excluding Russia), and Japan are capable of producing about 60,600,000 tons of steel yearly. This compares with a productive capacity of approximately 88,000,000 tons for the United States. It is heartening to contrast our imposing total with Japan's puny annual output of 7,000,000 tons or Italy's 3,000,000 tons.

Yet it would be folly to lay exclusive stress upon the comparative productive capacity of nations in gauging their strength on the battle front. The ability to fight and win a war depends not only upon the extent of a nation's material resources but also upon the way in which those resources are used. We have discovered that nations such as Germany, with limited supplies of raw materials and large populations, can perform seeming miracles of production for war by reducing civilian consumption to a minimum. Our own tremendous steel capacity was sometimes regarded as inadequate to meet defense needs, let alone the extraordinary requirements of a nation at war. Talk of that kind was based on the assumption that we should continue to do a good deal of business as usual for civilian customers. Now we realize that civilian demands must be curtailed to accommodate them to the prior needs of the armaments program. So our steel industry, like many other industries, will find the increased pressure of war's demands offset to a very large extent by decreased pressure to meet civilian demands.

Difficult adjustments that previously retarded defense production are being speeded up following the declaration of war. That is strikingly illustrated by what is happening to the automobile industry. No loud cries of protest have greeted the news of further drastic cuts in automobile output, entailing temporary loss of employment to thousands of workers. Instead, come promises that plants will be converted to war production as rapidly as possible. The Ford Motor Co. has announced a 24-hour day and seven-day week on all defense production, and other companies are getting ready to follow this example. As war demands absorb an ever-increasing proportion of our steel output, civilians will, of course, have to get along with fewer vehicles, gadgets and toys requiring the use of steel. But given the willingness to make necessary sacrifices, we need have no fear that our war preparations will be impeded by any general steel shortages.

Bill Of Rights

Americans everywhere will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights today with keen appreciation of the part it has played in molding our way of life. Inevitably that appreciation will be heightened by the war; for the rights that are guaranteed by this great charter are contemptuously crushed by the Axis powers we are fighting. Freedom of speech and press, freedom to worship, freedom from unreasonable search and seizure, the right to a speedy and fair trial and the protection of "due process" are now under attack wherever they exist. This sesquicentennial is not a matter of eulogizing a great principle long ago securely established in our Constitution. Rather it is an occasion to rededicate ourselves to the eternal struggle to preserve freedom as a reality.

The Bill of Rights has its roots in the Magna Carta of thirteenth century England. It proclaims the rights which our forebears knew they must maintain to remain free men. Of course, those rights were neither forgotten nor discarded at the constitutional convention. Rather the founding fathers took it for granted that the government they were about to set up would make itself the protector of the "unalienable rights" set forth in the Declaration of Independence. But that assumption failed to satisfy the rank and file. Jefferson, Madison and their associates thus won overwhelming support for their plan to incorporate a set of guarantees into the basic law as amendments.

Today we are in a position to understand the controversy which arose over the absence of a bill of rights in the Constitution. The authors of that document were chiefly concerned over the weakness of the central government then struggling to keep the colonies united. At that moment they knew that strength was even more vital to the welfare of all Americans than a specific charter of liberties. They simply put first things first. History has proved that adoption of the Bill of Rights was essential to round out the genius of the Constitution. It was the check that was needed to permit a strong government to function without encroaching upon the individual citizen's freedom of action. But any bill of rights would have been meaningless without a competent government to preserve order and insure the national safety.

For a century and a half now we have been steeped in this tradition of ample governmental authority along with respect for individual rights. So today we can put the strength of the whole Nation behind the Government at Washington with confidence that our "unalienable rights" will not be disturbed. Once more the emphasis must be upon national strength and unity. The real genius of the American system lies in the fact that great powers can thus be concentrated in times of crisis without making men and women mere cogs in a state-controlled machine.

War-Risk Insurance

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones has announced the creation of a War Insurance Corporation with a capital of $100,000,000 to provide "reasonable" protection against property losses resulting from enemy action. This news will be received with profound relief by property owners throughout the United States, particularly in coastal areas where the possibility of enemy attacks from the air have to be taken into account. For with few exceptions, outstanding fire and casualty insurance policies provide no protection against losses due to bombardment or fires caused either directly or indirectly by war or warlike operations. While a limited amount of war-risk and bombardment insurance had been placed before the outbreak of hostilities, insurance company executives decided last week to suspend the writing of all such policies. That was the only sane course of action open to the companies in time of war. For, even if no great losses should be suffered from air raids or other causes by the country as a whole, one localized disaster might wreck a private insurance company and render it unable to meet its obligations under outstanding policies.

To have left property owners entirely unprotected from war hazards, even in localities where the danger of loss seems remote, would have had serious consequences. It would have undercut public morale and caused widespread declines in property values and securities based on property values. The depressing effect of air-raid "scares" upon the municipal bond market last week emphasized the necessity of prompt action by the Federal Government. Just how adequate the Federal insurance plan will be remains to be seen, since detailed information is lacking. It is evident, however, that a good many types of war risks will not be covered. Possibly they will be taken care of later by the private companies under some arrangement permitting reinsurance by a Federal agency.

Japan's Air Power

As yet there is no information available on the estimated complement or combat efficiency of Japanese planes, compared with our own; hence, there is no reliable gauge of Japan's air power. The island empire may possess 5000 to 6000 first-line planes, as has been reported. Or she may have many more. Some of the Japanese types of machines may approach our own in performance; many of them are undoubtedly inferior. Nevertheless, a week of aerial warfare in the Pacific has revealed that Japanese planes can strike effectively, and that Japanese fliers are tough opponents, willing, even eager, to take on suicide assignments. Moreover, they are apparently versed in the principles of tactical coordination first achieved by the Luftwaffe. Thus two pet—and unutterably smug—illusions have been shattered. The first was that Japanese planes, being for the most part a composite of western aeronautical design, were technically inefficient. The second was that the Japanese, because of physical and temperamental limitations, were incapable of operating an air blitz that would compare with the western model.

For some years now the Japanese have built airplane engines under British, Italian and German license, and plane parts under license from various countries. They have developed military transports, fighters and patrol planes, patterned after American models. They have had plenty of opportunity in China to test and improve their planes and their aerial tactics. One result, already noted by those who have observed the Japanese air force in action in China, has been greater accuracy of bombing.

It is too early, of course, to know how well Japanese air power will stand up to the increasing pressure which will be exerted on it. We don't know the strength of the opposition which the Allies are presently able to provide. Lessons of the past week may indicate the need of revising estimates of air strength required, particularly of plane types most in demand. In the long run, of course, American replacements and fighting stamina must inevitably give the Allies a decided edge. But in the weeks immediately ahead it is only the better part of wisdom, based on a sensibly realistic appraisal of Japanese air power and strategy, to expect continued punishment by a foe who got off to a strong start because, among other reasons, he was underestimated.

Red Cross Appeal

Every American, as President Roosevelt pointed out in appealing for contributions to the Red Cross war-relief fund, is eager to participate in the national war effort. In assisting the Red Cross to relieve distress and suffering in widely scattered combat areas abroad as well as to carry on civil defense activities at home every contributor will become such a participant. Nobody needs to be told that the demands upon this great humanitarian organization have enormously increased. The outbreak of war has truly converted it into "an essential auxiliary of our armed forces." Considering the magnitude and importance of the work of healing and salvage which has been thrust upon it, the Red Cross is asking for a comparatively small sum. There is no doubt that the public response will be enthusiastic, and there is good reason to hope that contributions will exceed the minimum goal of $50,000,000.

Running The War

The unity which the war has brought to this country more than compensates for the severe setback which we have received in the Pacific. Now is the time for the President to recognize that unity by renovating his Administration and pressing into war service some of our great popular leaders. Our President is good-natured and loyal toward his friends. Yet some of them are deadheads in administration. If this country cannot afford waste, it can least afford waste of leadership. We must see that our best brains run the war. Not only would that insure efficiency but it would also sustain our morale. For the one thing that perturbs our people more than anything else is the administrative confusion which all along has clogged our defense effort.

The Northern Lights? Those white flames—no,
They were the spirits of the dead,
Roused by the world's transcendent woe,
The pain of hearts uncomforted.

From far, around the frozen pole,
From crypts within the tropic lands,
Each white wraith toward the zenith stole,
(While mortals watched) with his demands.

They stormed the gate of heaven's height—
Mute was the earth's voice, hushed all song—
I heard far voices in the night,
Crying, "Oh God, Oh God, how long?"

The Lesson We Must Never Forget

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

A Great Leader

The Post has so cordially and effectively cooperated with the Administration in the great crises through which we have been passing that I feel like writing you this word on the eve of our great crusade for liberty and democracy, a crusade that will end in triumph.

I dare to suggest that in this hour which fate has thrust upon us we shall not forget the leader who has dared to lead when so many held back and refused to follow. It took courage of historic quality to forge ahead, to disregard attacks, abuse, warnings of dire despair, literally to make America prepare when so many did not think we need prepare, that we must now acknowledge that Franklin D. Roosevelt has shown the qualities of the great leaders of mankind.

For this daring leadership; for this keen foresight which looked ahead with rare prevision to pierce through the veil of intrigue and deceit of the Axis powers and see their real aims; for the courage to champion the cause of freedom against slavery when other men called him a "warmonger;" for challenging the menace of Hitlerism long before most of his countrymen saw that menace; for urging and forcing the preparedness which now finds America equipped for the test of arms; for enduring the attacks on him and his motives without flinching or retreating from his position; for rousing America to this mightiest effort, this hour of destiny in the life of man; for all this, we must now render thanks to Roosevelt our President, and become living witnesses of his own immortality.

History has already claimed him for her very own. He faces a task greater than that which has confronted any President, and he will meet that task.

Retired Officers

Now that we have a war on our hands and are sorely in need of experienced officers, isn't it about time that the War Department quit playing "peanut politics" and dealing in "small potatoes?" There exist on the retired list enough officers to man two regiments but who are barred from being used by a nonsensical War Department policy not to use any officer retired by Section 24B, National defense act, which usually means officers retired for inability to come up to "certain standards."

The facts are that the great majority of these officers were the victims of personal dislike, prejudice and perfidy on the part of one superior, whose unwarranted adverse remarks on efficiency reports caused the retirement of capable personnel. The facts are that, if these officers really had been incompetent, they would have been discharged. However, the fact that a board of officers determined that they were not so incompetent as to merit complete separation from service, is ample proof that the case against them was so weak that they didn't dare employ this capital form of elimination, but retired them at varying rates of retired pay. They are carried on the retired officer list of the Army.

These officers by law may be put on active duty, but an arbitrary ruling of the War Department nullifies this provision of law as written by Congress. Yet today there are 50,000 inexperienced, untried reserve officers in high ranks, on active duty.

Some Finnish Facts

In your esteemed paper Mr. S. M. Zatman published a message called "Propaganda Medium," which contains such a lot of false statements about Finland that they cannot be left uncorrected.

Mr. Zatman says Finland got her independence from Communist Russia. The facts are as follows:

On December 6, 1917, the legally elected Finnish Parliament declared the country independent. December 31, 1917, the Russian Communist government recognized the Finnish independence, but they did not withdraw the Russian Communist troops nor the Russian navy stationed in Finland. On the contrary the Communists—the same way as it happened two years later in Georgia—tried to overthrow both the parliament and the legal parliamentary government and began against them a regular war in which the Russian bolshevik troops took part. Baron Mannerheim was assigned by the legal government to the post of commander in chief of the national army. The war was hard and bloody, but Mr. Zatman's statement about the murder of 40,000 people is untrue, as appears from authentic and unbiased documents.

Utterly absurd is the assertion that Baron Mannerheim seized power with the aid of a German army. He happened to be in England when appointed regent by the Finnish Parliament, a post which he left in the summer of 1919 when Mr. Stahlberg was elected President of the Republic of Finland.

Mr. Zatman questions Finland's democratic character. The fact that the Labor Party during all the time of Finland's independence has been the largest in parliament, disposing for the time being of about 40 per cent of the seats, is in itself proof of the everywhere recognized democratic structure of Finland.

Mr. Zatman intimates that Finland was a menace to Russia. Finland never threatened Russia nor did she join any group of the big powers in Europe.

The statement about 80 Finnish airdromes accommodating 20,000 airplanes is pure imagination. As a matter of fact, the number of Finnish airdromes and of planes for which they could be used was only a trifling part of this.

Finland did not choose war. She refused to cede to Communist Russia a part of her country, since time immemorial old Finnish land, and defended herself. What would have happened to her, had she not resisted Russian aggression, is proved by the fate that befell Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. May it only be recalled that during one year of Communist rule 6 per cent of the Estonian population disappeared.

Finland was attacked by Russia anew on June 22. Four days she waited before taking up arms in the hope of being able to stay out of the war and it was not until the beginning of July that she could proceed to active defensive measures. This fact alone proves that there was no attack upon Russia planned from Finland. FINNISH AMERICAN.

A Plea

God bless our boys.

God bless all our boys in this beautiful country of ours.

May He who causes the sun to shine and who put the moon and the stars in the heavens and the rainbows in the sky bless our boys on the sea and in the air.

The Creative Artist In America

Up to the present world crisis the attitude of the creative artist to the political-moral benefits granted to the American people by the Bill of Rights was either too disdainful or too modest. It was determined either by skeptical pamperedness and ironical indifference to such trivial notions as freedom, truth and justice, or the artist believed that he presumptiously transgressed the limits of his nature and task if he "meddled in politics" and assumed a fighting stand for these ideas.

Haughtiness as well as humility, which sometimes are one and the same, are now out of place, we know that today. We have learned that intellect and art cannot lead a separate existence, a life in the Ivory Tower, without relation to reality. Today the problem of humanity, postulating decision and profession, stands as an indivisible whole before the eyes of all, and its various spheres and forms of expression cannot be separated from one another. The lassitude of the refined intellect toward the simple and moral necessities of life leads to barbarism, and the intellect itself is lost when it refuses to manly participate in the battle for those primary and most simple things.

The civil rights, the human rights are derived from the Highest, from the Absolute and Religious, of which liberty, truth, justice are only different, interchangeable names. Are they too serious therefore to be connected with art—which is merely play? For indeed, that's what art is; but a strangely serious play it must be, because the artist, if he is one, devotes such infinite, such unreasonably great effort to it. Somehow there must be a relationship between art and all higher and superrational aspirations of man, to the idea of the good and the perfect itself—the seriousness with which the artist devotes himself to this play cannot be explained otherwise. The word "good" covers much, it is common to the esthetic and the moral sphere. What is good esthetically, what is skillfully done and perfect, must not necessarily be good from a moral point of view, but the infinite effort for what is good artistically has the same root as the endeavor for what religion and morality call "good." Art is play; but symbolic play. It is the most beautiful and serene symbol of all human striving for perfection; and wherever, in whatever sphere, in whatever manner truth and freedom are denied and trampled upon there art and every decent artist is also most gravely affected; there he cannot breathe, not live, not work; he must degenerate or he must flee.

This we European artists have experienced and can talk about it to our American colleagues. With them we want to realize what immense advantages the artist enjoys who lives in a country founded on the basis of "the great charter of personal liberty and human dignity"—in comparison to the humbled and enchained souls who today are still devoted to art in the enslaved countries of Europe. Goethe said once, "In every artist there is a seed of temerity without which no talent is thinkable." What becomes of this temerity when freedom is gone? What of the exuberance of art, when the artist lacks courage to defend freedom? The 15th of December, the day which the President set apart as a day of mobilization for freedom and for human rights, shall be also for us artists and authors a day of celebration and renewed vows.

The Post Impressionist

Overseas, June, 1917

Pershing offers aid—and memory turned back to the thirteenth of June of 1917. It was on that day that Gen. John J. Pershing came to Paris, and I was given the rare and prized ticket to go down to the Gare du Nord and see him.

It was most exciting. The taxi could hardly get through the streets because of the crowds, and finally, in the immediate vicinity of the station, we had to get out and just fight our way through. Struggling, we reached the platform. Gendarmes held the crowd at bay. The French Guard, poilus, all in blue, were lined up.

They looked proud and happy—it was a great honor to be in the guard that was to welcome the Big Chief of the Americans. Their eyes shone with pride and excitement. Jealously they guarded the light blue of their uniforms from a speck of dust, from a stray thread—the Big General was coming—France must do him honor.

We turned from the poilus to look at the red velvet hangings—the red carpet—the flowers—indeed, the gray old station was decked in its best—for the general of the Americans was coming! The policemen on either side of the doorway knew how important they were. Still the big clock said only 5:45 p. m. He was due at 6:30. At 6:15, the band marched out and took its stand. The big drum brushed my skirt—even when silent how that drum can thrill, proud with its ancient magic to stir men's blood. Then the notables began to arrive, the American Ambassador, Mr. William G. Sharp, of Ohio, flanked by his secretaries, the Minister of War, French generals, Marshal Joffre, with his peaceful and benevolent expression; the American Military Mission.

The crowd pushed closer against the restraining ropes; a far off rumble—a wave of excitement swept in from the vast throng in the street. We moved a little closer to the tracks. Mr. William Martin, Chef du Protocol, was one of the busiest men I have ever seen—that long sharp nose of his seemed to push a way through the thickest crowd. Immaculate, assured, his high silk hat pushed back, wherever turbulence reigned wildest there he appeared—and chaos became order. A vibration sang along the rails. Our hearts leapt—but unhurriedly, steadily, the big hands of the big clock moved on; the notables stepped forward; the crowd fell back before harsh orders of authority. There was the triumphant shriek of the locomotives—on time to the dot (was he proud, that engineer.)

The band struck up; the drum rolled magnificently to its high moment; the soldiers stood to; there was the grinding of wheels; the scurrying of cinemamen as they struggled for strategic positions. Then the crowd did surge forward, for there was no staying it; the swift countercharge of the blue-coats; the exultant cry, 'There they are!'—and there they really were—the vanguard of America come to succor France in a tragic hour.

Unhurriedly they left the train; slowly they passed before the guard and the band—Pershing a good head taller than any of the others, or so it seemed. My eyes sped from aggressive chin by grim jaw to eyes with the flash of bayonets in the sunlight. There was the shaking of hands by the red velvet hangings; there were smiles and compliments and deep bows, and, in that swift, glad moment, time to realize that here on French soil stood the head of the Army of America—and all that it meant—and all that it meant.

A strange sickness came over me. Was that little band the first of a vast army to be led to the shambles?—and the band now playing the "Star Spangled Banner"—and the brave little poilus in blue helmeted, their faces shining with intense excitement—and then the roar, the deafening roar of the crowd outside as the General passed in his automobile. We followed.

All Paris seemed to be crowding to the curbstone to bid them welcome. But I turned from that face with its stern, jutting chin. I turned from those silk high-hatted notables, those brilliant Marshals and Generals, for down the street an ambulance train had drawn up, waiting for the triumphal welcoming parade to pass; ambulances filled with wounded men. Some of them lay there so still and white, and wide open eyes gazing so dully at our men in khaki. The pity that rose in me drowned the pride and excitement of the moment. I thought of the ruined Coliseum—of Rome in its glory—when the great arena gate swung open and there stepped out upon the sand some splendid fresh young animal to be done to death—and the shout that shook the Coliseum—his welcome to death.

There were our fine big men, happy smiles on their faces, acknowledging the roaring welcome of the crowd, unmindful of the long train of ambulances with their tortured burdens. Too happy to think of pain and suffering were our boys. This was their moment of triumph. Pretty French girls were throwing flowers to them; flags were flying; music filled the air; that drum was exulting as never before; cheers and more cheers from a grateful people—and, on the side, in the shadow, waiting to pass, were those other men, broken, done nigh unto death, looking on from ambulances whose white was marred with mud and blood. They that were bound for the arena, flower bedecked; they that were returning from that arena, broken, blood-baptized.

The next day, June 14, 1917, the Headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces was established at 31 Rue de Constantine, near the Invalides, where Napoleon sleeps.

Plane Strategy

By Ernest K. Lindley

Air Tactics In The Pacific

AS THE AIRPLANE continues to chalk up victories over the surface ships, more and more is being heard about the obsolescence of the battleship and of battleship-minded naval officers.

LINDLEY

Without trying to bore too far into the technical aspects of the subject, several layman's observations can be made.

The first is that our strategy for the Pacific war assigned a large role to air power. In fact, the defenses mapped for the South Pacific rested chiefly on air power, and to air power was assigned also the task of striking offensive blows at Japan. This strategy was a departure from orthodox ideas. It grew partly out of the results obtained by the airplane in Europe, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, and partly out of the decision early this year to divide the battle fleet, transferring part of it to the Atlantic Ocean. Possibly this last point should be put in reverse: that the proven value of the airplane was deemed to make it practicable to transfer part of the battle fleet to the Atlantic.

The defense planned and partly mounted for the South Pacific envisaged a network of air power based on the Philippines, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies—and perhaps eventually on China and Vladivostok. It reposed, in the last analysis, on the four-engined long-range bombers which for years have been the specialty of the Army Air Force. These could range across the South China Sea and northward toward Japan proper, and, it was thought, with the aid of submarines, could make Japanese sea communications difficult below the Manila-Hongkong line or thereabouts.

WHEN HOSTILITIES broke out, presumably not many of these long-range bombers had reached the Far East. More could be flown out. But the Japanese claim to have put out of action most of the long-range bombers on the Philippine air fields. This suggests that our experts underestimated the quantity and quality of fighter planes and other defenses needed for the air fields from which the long-range bombers were to operate.

The fact remains, however, that our high command assigned to air power as such in the Far East probably the most important role.

The second point, which has been made obvious, is that land-based airplanes are far from being a secure defense against carrier-based planes. If they had been, Oahu would come through with little damage. Surprise was the chief element in the Japanese success. But the damage done was so severe as to encourage additional surprise attacks from carriers against targets normally less well protected than the complex of sea, air and ground bases on Oahu. A number of such attacks, if successful, could do immense damage to our productive facilities. And they might make it feasible for surface ships to come in closer to shore with impunity than many laymen supposed after noticing what happened in Norway and Crete.

A third point, made by Navy men, is that the warships sunk or damaged at sea by airplanes in the Pacific appear to have lacked air protection of their own. The Prince of Wales and Repulse ventured beyond the range of fighter planes based on Singapore. They were caught out in the open, and they were sunk, not by bombs but by air-borne torpedoes.

ALTHOUGH full details have not been published, it would appear that the three Japanese ships sunk by American fliers—a battleship off Luzon and a cruiser and a destroyer off Wake Island—and the battleship damaged off Luzon, lacked airplane protection at the time our fliers attacked. The battleship sunk off Luzon is the first recorded as having been sent down by aerial bombs. Navy men point out that its deck plates probably were not so thick as those on newer battleships.

For the benefit of laymen, naval experts also point out that they have long recognized that the battleship should be screened against attacks from above just as it is screened by destroyers against torpedoes from other destroyers or submarines. The protection against aerial attack is supposed to come partly from antiaircraft guns, but in the first instance from planes based on the aircraft carriers that move with the fleet.

Argument will continue between the single-minded devotees of airpower and those who still see merit in other weapons. But our high command can hardly be called blind to the use of the airplane. We have set out to build the greatest air force on the globe. This includes the production of 1,000 four-motored long-range bombers a month by the beginning of 1943—and everything that goes into these far-ranging craft has been given a top priority rating.

What We Face

By Mark Sullivan

Prospects Of The Months Ahead

THIS COLUMN is a partial response to inquiries, such as, I imagine, many writers are receiving. The inquiries come in part from persons now giving anxious thought to their personal futures. They know their futures will be greatly affected by the war, and they seek judgment about various aspects of the conflict. Because it is the future they are concerned about, the judgments they seek can be judgments only, hence fallible and, of course, subject to change with changing conditions.

SULLIVAN

The war is likely to be long—no individual or family making plans for the future can safely go on any assumption other than a prolonged war. Of the conditions that might make the war short, none is at this moment convincingly in sight. One condition that might make the war short would be a negotiated peace. A negotiated peace is idle to think about at the moment when the conflict has just been enlarged by entry of the most powerful nation in the world. We have just entered, and Germany's response has been to declare war on us. That does not make for a negotiated peace—it makes for a prolonged war and a fight to the finish.

About the only other condition that would bring the war to an early end would be internal collapse on one side or the other. As to that, we know there will be no internal collapse on our side. There will be none in the United States. There will be none in England. And, in this column's judgment, there will be none in Russia. The information received by this writer is that Russia will fight on against Germany, indefinitely and stubbornly. Russia may or may not unite in the war against Japan. But however that may be, Russia will fight Germany to the end.

HOW ABOUT internal collapse on the other side? One would have said, any time the past two years, that entry of America into the war might cause internal collapse within Germany. A very wise man said to this writer a year ago that this war would begin to end on the day the German people, in towns and villages, say to each other, "Die Amerikaner kommen wieder"—"The Americans are coming again." The German people will now think of America as a fateful omen, presaging defeat.

But our entry is to some degree balanced by the entry of Japan on the other side. The German people may think that, as respects their own fortunes, the entries of Japan and the United States neutralize each other. They may think that America fighting Japan will be a war apart, not directly affecting them. This will not be true—but they may think it for some time to come.

As to Japan, no internal collapse is likely at a time when they have just started war against us. There are conditions in that country, including distress among the people, which make strongly for internal collapse; but collapse within Japan is not likely to come until after the country suffers reverses in the war.

As to Italy, the materials for internal collapse are abundant and immediate. But probably Italy will not be allowed to collapse. Against her will, she will be held up and kept staggering along by Hitler.

IN SUM, there is not in sight any present reason to expect ending of the war by internal collapse anywhere. If the war is destined to end that way, the evidence of it is yet to merge. The only other form of ending would be a fight to a finish. A fight to a finish would be long—if for no other reason because we are far from fully prepared. It will take a long time for us to get into full stride.

To inquirers, it may be said with confidence that individuals and families had best make their plans on the assumption that the duration of the war will be long. As to other aspects, there is some light in the experience of the English.

Some experiences of the English we will probably escape. There is no reason to suppose we shall undergo any limitation of food, either as to abundance or variety, except, perhaps, as to a few imported articles. We shall, however, undergo quite general deprivation of many familiar luxuries and conveniences. Again, we are not likely to suffer prolonged and concentrated battering from the air, as London and other English cities did—though some of our cities are likely to see what President Roosevelt called "predatory incursions," hit-and-run bombings. Preparations against them, blackouts and the like, should be taken seriously.

Generally, our people are likely to parallel most of the experiences of the English. Probably a sixth or a seventh of our total male population, as many as ten million men, may be put under draft for the Army and Navy auxiliary services. Here as in England, an immense proportion of our industrial activity will be focused on war materials, and we shall need to work as long hours and with the same intense concentration as the English.

Tax Comparison

British And American

WHEN THE AMERICAN taxpayer recovers from the first shock of his 1942 tax bill, he can comfort himself with the thought that he is still paying less than his opposite number in England. This in spite of recent statements that American rates will exceed those of the British. The United States Treasury has officially denied such reports and has issued figures to support its claims.

What do the official figures say about the key questions of defense spending and taxation? They show that for 1941-42 the United States Government, as distinguished from private individuals, will spend 27 per cent of the national income. During the same period the British government will spend 70 per cent. For defense purposes alone Britain is spending 58 per cent of her national income, as compared with 20 per cent for the United States.

TO MEET this vast program Britain is having to rely more heavily than the United States on borrowing from her people. Yet, despite this more extensive borrowing, her current taxes are far higher than those in America. British taxes this year, says our Treasury, amount to approximately 40 per cent of the national income, while in the United States the total of national, State and municipal taxes comes to approximately 22 per cent.

Unofficial estimates have apparently got off the track in two ways. On the one hand, they have tended to exaggerate the British national income. One estimate places it about 50 per cent higher than the United States Treasury figure (36 billion rather than 24 billion dollars). Furthermore, unofficial calculations sometimes include Social Security taxes in the United States, while omitting comparable tax charges in Britain.

ACCORDING to the United States Treasury, the American tax load per head of population will be $168. For each Englishman it will be $200 (not $165, as estimated by an unofficial source). And this tells only part of the story, because the per capita income in the United States is much higher than in Great Britain and therefore the actual burden of taxation upon the British is much heavier than upon Americans. Also the tax load presses more heavily because of the larger proportion of Englishmen in the armed services.

Finally, none of these figures, official or unofficial, takes account of the fact that Britain has drawn upon savings, using about four billion dollars of overseas capital. They make no mention of the larger debt that England is piling up for her future generations. They ignore the ships and homes and cities that are being destroyed and that must be paid for later. They overlook the financial strains that come from rationing and restrictions far more severe than our own. All these must be added to the staggering figures above, which alone would dispose of the notion that Britain's financial burden is lighter than that of the United States.

Retreat From Moscow

By Barnet Nover

Hitler's Costly Defeat

HITLER'S Christmas present to the German people was not Moscow, as he had promised them last October, but a declaration of war on the United States. It was like trying to make a man forget a badly aching molar by hitting him on the head with a sledge hammer.

NOVER

The German people have never got over their bewilderment regarding Hitler's Russian venture. It took them completely by surprise. And their bewilderment has grown as week after week and month after month has passed, as German casualties have mounted to astronomic levels but the promised victory continued to remain out of reach.

Then came Hitler's boastful assurance that the Red army was smashed beyond redemption that Russian resistance was practically over and that the last great battle of 1941 was about to end in a resounding German triumph. Instead of winning a great victory, however, the Wehrmacht appears to have suffered a major defeat. First Rostov had to be abandoned. Now the retreat from Moscow has begun. But these reverses are thrust into the background by the spread of war to the Pacific and the entry of the United States into the conflict.

IN DECLARING war on the United States Hitler may have succeeded in getting the German people to take their eyes away from the German debacle in Russia. But his was a strategem of desperation. For while temporarily making them forget the ominous parallel between his Russian venture and Napoleon's Hitler has reminded Germans what happened to the last German war lord who challenged the United States.

We must not assume from this, however, that a collapse of German morale is about to occur or that Hitler is at the end of his rope.

Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian Ambassador, pointed out in his statement to the press the other day that despite everything that had been said in the past regarding the vast growth of Germany's armed forces, "this was underestimated by the whole world."

It is the counsel of wisdom not to underestimate these forces now. And while Germany has lost a great many men and great quantities of material in the fighting on the Eastern Front, it cannot be assumed that she has been permanently crippled by these losses. What is clear is that she has a whole continent to draw on.

MUCH DEPENDS, of course, on the ability of the Russians to take advantage of the present situation, first to harass the retreating German armies as they move west to winter quarters, and secondly, to keep them occupied during the winter so that large numbers of them cannot be transferred to other theaters of war.

The Russians, too, have lost vast stores of equipment which cannot be replaced from their own production alone. But their readiness to fight the Nazis to the bitter end was eloquently expressed by their envoy in Washington when he said that "the Soviet high command has no intention . . . of allowing Hitler to hibernate. We intend to beat back and smash up the hordes of Hitler till they are completely destroyed."

Now, as before, it is Nazi Germany which remains the No. 1 enemy. If Hitler is defeated the defeat of Japan can be taken for granted. If Hitler wins, Japan will be saved, regardless of how the Battle of the Pacific turns out. Yet the defeat of Japan can contribute to Hitler's defeat, as well as have a real bearing on the duration of this war of hemispheres.

THE FIRST week of the fighting in the Pacific area has tended to make us forget the other theaters. This was natural and inevitable. The tragedy of Pearl Harbor, the heroic resistance of the Marines at Wake Island, the exploits of the Philippine and American troops led by General MacArthur, these and other events have monopolized our attention.

But the basic realities of the grim situation in which we now find ourselves can only be understood if, as the President has pointed out, we see the interrelation of what is happening in the Pacific with what is happening in Russia, the Libyan campaign with Hitler's pressure on Vichy, the Battle of the Atlantic with the fight for Singapore and Hongkong. They are all integral parts of the world convulsion.

THE TASK before us is not to be underestimated. It will mean employing all our energies, calling on all our resources. But the odds are definitely on our side.

We are not fighting alone. That is what Hitler planned. He did not want to declare war on the United States until he could strike us with full force and then only after we had been isolated through the defeat of all our potential allies and weakened by sedulously fostered divisions within our ranks.

His declaration of war against us is proof that his time table for world conquest has gone badly awry. And as bad as his defeat in Russia is the defeat he suffered when the American people rallied as one man to the common cause of fighting the international gangsters and when the other nations of this hemisphere aligned themselves with us.

Instead of waging war on the United States under the most favorable circumstances Hitler has found it necessary to throw down the gage of battle under circumstances that are steadily becoming less favorable. The same is true of Japan.

Eighteen months ago she might have met with little or no resistance had she then moved south. Now she faces a condition which, despite Pearl Harbor and the loss of two British capital ships, is still formidable.

We cannot for a moment afford to take a complacent view of the situation. But, however grim the present may appear, the ultimate victory is not in doubt.

Moscow Gay, Still Watchful After Standing Off Greatest Massed Military Drive in History

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, Dec. 14.—This is the story of Moscow and of its people and how, for ten bitter weeks, they gallantly withstood the greatest massed military assault in all history when 750,000 men, bearing with them a monstrous array of tanks, aircraft and all the manifold death-dealing instruments conceived by the devilishly ingenious Nazi mind, thundered to the verge of the city limits and beat savagely upon the gates. They did not pass.

Today after weeks of bitter cold and lowering snowstorms, the sun rose propitiously shining on the placid white streets while the inordinately gay Muscovites, relieved of any strain, bustled about, doing their Sunday shopping, and jesting at the latest posters ridiculing the retreating Germans. At 1 p. m. the Russian ballet presented a gala performance.

Women waited outside shops with loaded market bags. Soldiers, returned on leave, ambled along with their wives, girls and mothers. Uniformed peasant lads from the provinces, just back from the front, got their first awed glimpse of the Kremlin walls and the snow-laden bulbous turrets of magnificent St. Basil's Church.

Readiness Is Watchword

Along broad avenues cavalrymen, riding in pairs, patrolled their beats, since the city is still under martial law. At each corner stand infantrymen—usually noncommissioned officers—were still on alert with bayoneted rifles. Readiness remains the watchword. Overhead you hear the constant drone of fighter patrols in the bright clear sky and occasional flights of bombers drone heavily back from their assignments in the west.

I walked past a university which had suffered a direct hit some weeks ago by a giant bomb, and found reconstruction proceeding apace. The Bolsoi Theater, although struck twice, shows few scars. A magnificent antiaircraft barrage has protected the capital's center well and only the outskirts underwent more than a minimal damage. I have not seen a single area which even remotely compares with photographs of the London wreckage.

All morning long I strolled about the streets of Moscow regarding the cheerful crowds. There are fewer children than normal playing with sleds and skis. There are more women—the men are at the front or at factory posts. There are more soldiers.

Germans in Retreat

A woman I know who has just come back, said to me:

"I am glad to have seen this day. You foreigners can't understand. Of course, my family is not here. Most of my friends are gone. But this is Moscow. If you foreigners only could understand what that means."

Many miles to the west, the beaten Wehrmacht is retreating slowly, all the while being harried by the savage Russian cavalry and the great shells of the heavy artillery which Premier Joseph Stalin once called "God of War." Constantly through the streets rumble lorries, staff cars and motorcycles moving in hard on the enemy's heels.

Just two months ago the Germans pierced the Soviet lines near Mozhaisk and stormed down the main highway toward the city gates. Although later they came closer they never threatened the capital again. They bombed it. They dropped new explosives, contained in concrete shells calculated to kill as many civilians as possible, while saving metal for their dwindling reserves. They pounded close to the capital's water supplies hoping to sever their connection. They brought up the largest tank army ever assembled in an effort to batter down the stanch Red lines. They failed. Now with expiring reserves of gasoline they are leaving dozens of tanks behind as they withdraw slowly westward and their men, seeking cover, are found frozen at their posts.

Americans' Story

Six American citizens who remained here during the hardest period along with many dual nationals, told their tale today. They were Llewellyn E. Thompson, second secretary of the American Embassy; G. Frederick Reinhardt, third secretary; John Morgan and Harold Waddell, clerks; John Leiono, embassy building superintendent, and Father Leopold Braun, priest of the French Catholic Church.

These men entered the spirit of Moscow's resistance with the same solid courage as did the Russian population. Father Braun held his regular services although all the windows in his chapel were blown out by two nearby bombs. Thompson and Reinhardt, who volunteered to remain behind to carry out necessary duties when most of the diplomats had been requested by the government to evacuate to Kuibyshev, kept the regular embassy work going—supervising visa grants, packing property of Americans and British whose interests they looked after, and shipping them east, and reporting on the situation. On December 1, Thompson informed his government that the Germans must capture Moscow within the week or they would never be able to try again before next spring. He was right.

No American suffered during the raids. Thompson and Reinhardt more or less ran the foreign colony. The Afghan embassy, the Spanish legation, the Bulgarian legation, the Turkish embassy and the Japanese all left representatives behind when the diplomats moved east, and until America entered the war Thompson looked after them. He supervised food distribution for 80 Soviet citizens—American and British embassy employes and families. He and Reinhardt managed to get seven carloads of American and English property packed and shipped east.

This combination of consulate and baggage forwarding agency worked hard for ten weeks with little surcease. Once, to see what it was like, they sheltered for a night in a subway car arranged for the diplomats by the Swedes and slept on benches but the rest of the time they stoically stayed in bed during the raids.

Eire's Stand 'Unchanged'

De Valera's Policy

By the United Press

Dublin, Dec. 14.—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera said today in a speech at Cork that despite the United States entry in the war, Eire's policy of neutrality was "unchanged" but he warned the nation to be prepared for war, which might come "as a thief in the night."

"I urge the imperative necessity of having all plans and preparations complete," he said. "Eternal vigilance in our case is particularly the price of liberty."

He appealed for a greater production of foodstuffs, especially wheat and potatoes, and a great national effort at fuel production, because with the United States' entry into the war, "we may not be able to get supplies from abroad."

He said the extension of the war to America brought sorrow and anxiety to every part of Eire, and that "since this terrible war began our sympathies have gone out to all suffering people who have been dragged into it."

"Strangers who don't understand our conditions ask how America's entry into the war will affect our state policy here," he said. "We answer that question in advance. Our policy of state remains unchanged . . ."

He said that "from the moment this war began there was only one possible policy for this state—neutrality."

"Our circumstances in history, the incompleteness of our freedom owing to partition (of British North Ireland and Eire) makes any other policy impracticable," De Valera said. "Any other policy would divide our people and for a divided nation to ding itself into this war would be suicide."

British Paper Demands Naval Bases in Eire

London, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—The Sunday Dispatch demanded today that Eire grant naval bases to Britain and the United States to ease the strain of the Allied Navies, intensified by losses suffered at Pearl Harbor and in the China Sea.

"It will take many years to replace the battleships but there is a means by which in a matter of a few weeks some of our naval disadvantage can be overcome," the newspaper said.

"The remedy is in the hands of the people of Eire. If they were to grant the British and United States Navies the use of Irish bases, the Atlantic lifeline would be immediately strengthened . . ."

Governors' Council Reelects Stassen As Its President

Reelection of Gov. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, as president of the Council of State Governments was announced by the council yesterday.

Among other officers named were: State Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, of New Jersey, first vice president and chairman of the board of managers; W. J. Cecil, director of the California Department of Agriculture, second vice president; and Mark Graves, president of the New York State Tax Commission, and former Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri, managers at large for five years.

The council also announced that it would maintain in Washington a full-time office to carry out any tasks to be done to secure victory in the war.

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 14 (AP).—American diplomats and newspaper correspondents in Germany arrived at Lake Constance tonight to stay until completion of plans for their exchange with a similar German group in the United States.

According to dispatches from Rome, the six American newspapermen in the Italian capital have been established in a pension following receipt of word from New York that Italian newspapermen interned there were housed in a hotel.

War Causes Serious Drop In U. S. College Attendance

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Dec. 14.—War and opportunities for work in defense industries have combined to cause a serious drop in American college and university attendance for the first time in a decade, a Nation-wide survey showed today.

In 669 approved institutions are 838,715 full-time students, 9.16 per cent below last year, and a grand total, including part-time and summer students of 1,269,354, or 8.88 per cent less than for 1940-41.

The figures, released by the University of Cincinnati, are from an annual survey of student attendance by President Raymond Walters for School and Society, weekly educational journal.

The decreases, first since depression years, are ascribed by Dr. Walters "largely to the effect of the Selective Service Act and somewhat also to the attraction of defense jobs."

"And," he predicted, "it appears probable that collegiate attendance for 1942-43 will show another dip."

The drop in freshman classes, where men are below draft age, was only 4.52 per cent.

All geographical divisions reported smaller totals, ranging from a decrease of 2.07 per cent in the South Atlantic area to a drop of 9.97 per cent in West North Central States.

Only three States showed increases: Connecticut, 3.19 per cent; Maryland, 3.19 per cent, and South Carolina, 1.85 per cent, attributed to larger registrations in the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., the Naval Academy, Annapolis, and Citadel Military College, Charleston, S. C.

Ohio, with 38 institutions, reported a drop of 6.9 per cent; Kentucky with 16, a decrease of 9.7 per cent; West Virginia, with 5, 10.34 per cent, and Indiana with 18 schools, down 4.97 per cent.

18 Report Gains

With 18 reporting gains, 34 independent technological institutions have totals of 97,588, a drop of 2.57 per cent, and engineering units of large universities show a similar maintenance of full-time enrollment, all "to be expected because of the deferment from military duty of engineering and certain scientific students under Selective Service regulations."

No changes in ranking among universities with the ten largest full-time enrollments were noted. The University of California at Berkeley again is largest, with 13,986. Others, in order: Minnesota, 13,484; Columbia, 13,072; Illinois, 12,694; Ohio State, 11,730; New York University, 11,698; Michigan, 11,228; Wisconsin, 10,545; University of Texas, 9,579, and Unversity of Washington, 8,774.

Considering grand total attendance, New York University again topped the list with 31,356. Others in order:

Columbia, 24,207; College of the City of New York, 20,153; Northwestern, 18,239; California at Berkeley, 16,716; Illinois, 15,019; Ohio State, 14,698; Michigan, 14,678; Southern California, 13,899, and Wisconsin, 13,636.

Dr. B. T. Johnson Dies at 66

Dr. Loren B. T. Johnson, 1900 Twenty-fourth Street Northwest, noted psychiatrist, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital. He was 66.

Canon Albert Lucas, headmaster of St. Albans School here, will officiate at funeral services to be held in the home at 2 p. m. tomorrow, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

DR. JOHNSON

Born in Washington in 1875, Dr. Johnson started practicing here in 1901 after being graduated from Georgetown University. He was psychiatrist at Children's and Garfield Hospitals, and associate professor of psychopediatrics at Georgetown University at the time of his death.

He served in the Spanish-American war as a naval cadet, was a captain in the U. S. Volunteer Medical Corps in the Philippines in 1900-1901, and was a psychiatrist captain in the first World War.

Author of many medical papers, Dr. Johnson was an active member of the D. C. Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole from 1932 to 1934, at which time he resigned.

Among the many clubs and organizations with which Dr. Johnson was connected were the Community Chest as an executive director, Cosmos Club, Society of Mayflower descendants, president of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, American Psychoanalytic Association and director of the Chevy Chase Country Club.

Surving are his wife, Mrs. Cathrine K. Johnson; a daughter, Mrs. Amelia N. Barry, 2310 Kalorama Road Northwest, wife of Maj. David S. Barry, U. S. M. C., and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Dr. John W. Burke, Dr. John A. Talbot, Dr. Louis Green, Dr. William E. Clark, Rozier Dulaney, Dr. William B. Mason, Dr. Mathew W. Terry, John Tyesowski, Harry Kerr, Dr. Lewis Ecker and Dr. Cabell Moore.

C. I. O. Pledges Full Support To War Effort

A firm plea for "all-out" production in support of the war effort coupled with an offer of an olive branch to the rival A. F. of L. were two main points endorsed by the executive board of the Maryland-District Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.) last night for presentation to its convention today at Hotel Harrington.

A pledge of "no interruption in the all-out 24-hour, seven-day week production necessary to smash the Axis," was made in a report of Secretary-Treasurer Sidney R. Katz.

"No matter what we give up—and we shall give up as much as is needed—no matter what so-called sacrifices are demanded of us, we thoroughly and fully acknowledge that there can be no such thing as sacrifice in an all-out effort to win the war," Katz reported.

Pleading for national unity "to win the war," Katz asked for greater cooperation among labor organizations, particularly the American Federation of Labor, the Railroad Brotherhoods and the C. I. O., "improving upon" previously announced pledges of labor cooperation.

"Certainly with the danger to our national security greater than any time in the past, we must leave no stone unturned to see to it that we . . . unite in order to defend that national security."

A board-indorsed resolution also scheduled for presentation today expressed support of the Administration program of aiding the British, Russians, Chinese, Dutch East Indies and South American countries.

The resolution followed the same pattern as Katz's report with respect to labor unity and proposed that the C. I. O. "extend the hand of fraternal cooperation to our brothers and sisters in the American Federation of Labor, the Independent Railroad Brotherhoods, so that we may be able to weld the strongest possible weapons with which to combat and defeat our common foe."

Further Expansion Planned

A determination "to continue to extend and strengthen our organization during the war without in any way interfering with or interrupting industrial defense production" was expressed in Katz's report. Specifically singled out for immediate organizing efforts were workers at the Glenn Martin airplane plant in Baltimore and Federal employes here. Both the Automobile Workers Organizing Committee and the United Federal Workers of America have launched organizing drives.

C. I. O. President Philip Murray's plan to establish councils representing industry and labor to settle disputes in each industry was indorsed. An effort to enroll every C. I. O. member in volunteer civilian defense work was promised by Katz.

Need for Welfare Workers In War Stressed at Meeting

The need for additional child welfare workers to take care of problems arising in defense areas was stressed at a round-table conference yesterday of the American Public Welfare Association at the Mayflower Hotel.

In concluding a six-day conference the association elected J. Milton Patterson, director of the Maryland State Department of Public Welfare, as president to succeed William Hodson, commissioner of elfare of New York City.

Members of the Selective Service boards should be "educated" to avail themselves of social workers to investigate requests for deferment by selectees, according to a report of the round-table conference prepared by John Ballew, St. Louis director of the Missouri Social Security Commission.

Social agencies must take the initiative in meeting the problem of persons rejected for military service by mobilizing all community resources to rehabilitate them, the report stated. This responsibility is increased by new regulations which will probably make deferments more difficult to obtain, creating problems for some dependents of selectees, Ballew reported.

Another round-table conference urged the adoption of a program of public medicine for "people who cannot otherwise obtain needed medical services." Responsibility for administering such a program should rest with Government agencies operating with the advice of special health committees, the conference stated.

A typical health committee should contain representatives of medicine, public health groups, dentistry, nursing, hospital administration, pharmacy, medical social work, medical education, rehabilitation, school health services, labor, farms, and industry, the group said.

Others elected by the association were: Vice president, Leo M. Lyons, commissioner of Chicago Relief Administration; secretary, Fred K. Hoehler, director of A. P. W. A.; treasurer, Frank Bane, director of Council of State Governments; members of board of directors to serve until 1944, Walter W. Finke, director of Minnesota division of social welfare; Benjamin Glassberg, superintendent Milwaukee County department of public assistance; Martha A. Chickering, director California Department of Social Welfare; Jane Hoey, director Bureau of Public Assistance of Social Security Board; Mrs. W. T. Bost, commissioner North Carolina Board of Charities and Public Welfare.

Home Cheer Need Not Bow To Blackouts

Use Warm Colors, Diffused Lighting, Advises Decorator

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Household Editor

THE OPEN DOOR of the White House with its picturesque attendant seen against brilliant lights has always been an inspiration to both guests and passersby. However, with the coming of the "blackout" the executive mansion has been the first to succumb to the eerie spell.

Martha Ellyn

Homes all through Washington will be in step with the First Family in the "blackout," with no flood of light ensuing from windows because of drawn shades. But that doesn't mean that homes will be without cheer. The "home sweet home," thought has become more significant than ever to us in the past week.

Suggestions for ways to bring cheer into the home are given by Miss Bertha Schaefer, widely known interior decorator who was in Washington recently. Miss Schaefer has long been identified with the Decorator's Club of New York, the American Institute of Decorators and Fine Arts, and American Institute of Decorators.

Value of Color Stressed

The value of color and lighting was emphasized by Miss Schaefer. She thinks both of these factors have an important part in the smoothness of the domestic scene. "Too few homemakers realize," she said, "that the lighting of the home may be a strong factor in smoothing irritations, and in keeping a balance between conflicting personalities. By that I mean creating a setting of unfailing harmony and peace. And I feel that just now such effort may be a real morale builder."

Anyone visiting the LaSalle du Bois, one of Washington's newest restaurants, will note that Miss Schaefer has effectively carried out her theories on the use of color and lighting. The soft tones this decorator has employed in decoration are flattering to complexions and any costumes worn. I was impressed by a girl dressed in the new cyclamen color and the pretty picture she made against the muted pink wall against which she was silhouetted. Another girl with a brilliant red hat did not clash against the rosy background

Colors for Personalities

Miss Schaefer goes so far as to recommend colors for personalities. She said that she often entirely upsets a woman's preconceived idea of what her home should suggest and gives her an entirely different background, but one that is flattering to her type.

It is also interesting to note that just at a time when the history of our country is so much in evidence, that Miss Schaefer suggests Williamsburg and Federal motifs, and the muse of muted pinks and blues with chalk white just as were used so effectively in the days when Williamsburg was at its height.

Blond woods, too, such as toasted mahogany, birch, maple and other light-toned woods she suggests as one way to gain a cheerfulness in decoration. She likes the light woods upholstered in the softest blues and pink and other gay colors such as yellow.

Incandescent and fluorescent lighting she suggests should be adapted to traditional as well as contemporary uses. One way in which Miss Schaefer suggests to gain a soft glow instead of a glare of light is letting the electricity diffuse through sheets of glass so that there is a double reflection.

Advises Brightness in Wartime Homes

What Men Think of Women's Clothes

This is one of a series in which men in public life express their views on women's styles.

By Caswell Adams

Women's fashions may be a mystery to most men, but not to me. Most men are bewildered and badgered by the constant switching of women's fashions—they can't understand why the red dress isn't good enough this year, just because some one like Mrs. Harrison Williams or the Duchess has sashayed everything by wearing her newest gown a foot shorter than last year or sported a chou (cabbage to me) on her port shoulder instead of her starboard clavicle. When the bills come in I am as other men, but when detached from the crass commercialism of the subject I have complete knowledge why the ladies wear what they wear.

There's nothing quite like a new suit to a man, or a new tie, bright and yellowish and preferably with queer and mangled hieroglyphics. New shoes make a man take vows never to misbehave again. A new topcoat makes a man take the pledge temporarily; a new hat gives him a funny, shivery godlike feeling. Women are weaker than men and they need this temporal impetus much more often. God bless 'em.

My first realization that there was such thing as women's fashions came when I saw her in a black velvet dress with white lace collar and cuffs. I'd never seen anything so striking. That's out now, but I'll never forget it as something to see. Right now I have a lot of feeling about women's fashions, and boldly I will list them.

Caswell Adams, New York sports writer, here discusses the feminine fashion setup.

Navy blue with immaculately white gloves is my favorite, but it must be terribly feminine in cut and line. There's nothing more awful than masculinity in women's clothes. I like lacy things, soft and shimmery. I like full, swirly skirts in evening dresses, and don't like those carved-out bare-back things. I like hats that resemble hats and not beer-bottle tops. I hate low-heel shoes. I like contrasting colors in evening dresses, with the bodice a lightish color and the skirt darker. I like sleeves on evening dresses. I like skirts on bathing suits and despise those split brassiere gadgets with the pants extra. I hate slacks even in summer, and ordinary everyday suit should have flared waists, giving the hips a break. Sort of down to the chi-chi in hips.

Silver fox capes that don't come down to here leave me as cold as the wearer. Which thought brings about the brain tremor that the main trouble with women's clothes is that they're not half practical enough. A fur coat that doesn't cover a quarter of the corpuscles is idiotic. Silk stockings to cover legs subject to frigid winds, when wool is not on the priority list and is so much warmer, are equally childish. It makes men feel much colder to see a lassie garbed so outlandishly on a bitter day. You don't shear sheep in January. For that matter I believe that the best dressed and most sensibly dressed women are those who have something in common with sports. They know the rigors or the caresses of the weather, and to be wrapped up is not to be fashionable.

Fashions are in the mind, and women, to my mind, make frightful copycats. Robert Burton scribbled way back centuries ago: "She is only fantastical that is not in fashion." And what woman, pray, wants to be fantastical?

Mistletoe Legend

The holiday mistletoe bough by rights ought not to be put up until New Year's Eve, according to some old traditions. Then it should be carefully saved till time for the new one next year. As for other Christmas greens, they should be either burned or given to the cows, says another Christmas legend.

New arrival for your holiday dinner dates . . .

"Cabbage Rose"

Fascinating dinner gown showing the trend for color on color. Draped to the side . . . wickedly slit skirt . . . and two full blown roses at its midriff. A dress for in-town or resort wear. Beautiful colors to go into Spring. Blue or black with magenta. Rayon crepe, misses' sizes.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Working Wife's Sorely Needed Sleep Is Broken By Husband's Heavy Snoring; When She Tries To Quiet Him, They Quarrel; How Invoke Peace?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a working wife and mother of an eight-month-old infant. Therefore, I need all the sleep and rest I can get at night, which never averages more than six hours. Unfortunately, my husband coughs occasionally at night and snores heavily, which disturbs the baby's sleep as well as mine. And once awakened, the baby seldom goes back to sleep again. And to have our sleep disturbed one or two nights a week is bad for the health of both of us.

The problem might have a simple solution, if my husband were inclined to cooperate. But unfortunately he resents my waking him to ask him to turn over,—which usually stops the snoring. He becomes angry and insulting, even though he has no trouble going back to sleep immediately.

One night recently, he coughed at 3 a. m., waking the baby and me. We would have gone back to sleep again, except he started snoring. The baby became fully awake,—talking and imitating his father's snoring for almost an hour; after which he started crying nervously and continued doing so until 6 a. m. Three times during those hours I tried to rouse my husband sufficiently to ask him to turn over. Twice he complied reluctantly, but the third attempt ended in a quarrel,—in the early morning hours. He accused me of being selfish and I accused him of being unkind and inconsiderate. Which of us was right?

It is necessary for the baby's crib to be in our bedroom at least a few months longer—as we shall not be moving to a two-bedroom apartment until spring. So, Miss Haworth, am I selfish in arousing my husband in the circumstances described? I try to tell him I would tolerate the situation if it weren't for the baby. But knowing the baby's sleep is interrupted makes me frantic and nervous. Please advise me. ADELE.

Doctor Suggests Several Remedies

DEAR ADELE: Because of his surly, unrepentant attitude toward the midnight ruckus his snoring creates, your husband may be adjudged the prime offender in this distressing situation. One may charitably concede that, when once asleep, he has no control over his snoring; and, also, that he is unaware of the nuisance it visits on hearers. However, the fact that he so vigorously resents having his own sleep disturbed—as an indirect consequence of his snoring—should give him some understanding of what his roommates are going through. Inasmuch as he values his own "rest" enough to wrathfully defend his right to enjoy it, he should be first to appreciate that you are entitled to try to quiet him down when he gets so noisy that you and the baby can't sleep.

I daresay you are right in thinking you could accommodate yourself, more or less restfully, to his snoring,—if it weren't for your frantic apprehension lest the baby wake. But in that regard, one wonders if your uncontrollably nervous anticipation of a general commotion doesn't do much to bring it about. Baby doctors tell us that healthy infants instinctively adjust to habitual noises in their environment, so that they sleep soundly through what might be caller typical household or neighborhood disturbances, that regularly occur in the day's (or night's) routine;—such as church bells, for instance: or passing street cars, or the buzzing of the electric sweeper, or the family conversation in an adjoining room, etc.

But a baby also instinctively senses, and fretfully reacts to, the emanations of a highly nervous person in his immediate vicinity—so that agitated whispering might be more likely to disturb him than a continuous rumble of placid snoring. To the baby there are such various "sound effects" as (1) impersonal noises, that are part-and-parcel of a general vague background with which he is unconcerned; (2) soothing noises, such as household sounds that he has come to associate with his sense of comfort and security, and with the comings-and-goings of calm-voiced, sure-handed caretakers, and (3) intrusively disturbing noises, that jar him by their unfamiliarity, their implication of distress close by, etc.

Thus, your very efforts to silence your husband's snoring may have a more irritating effect upon the baby than the snoring itself. Yet, if this should be true, it still does not absolve your husband of responsibility to do all in his power to relieve your distress. Because your distress reflects acute nervousness, which in turn reflects chronic fatigue stemming from insufficient rest, that in turn traces back in large measure to his snoring. However, your heavy workaday schedule and concomitant worries undoubtedly have something to do with it, too,—and since you are relieving his burdens by holding an office job, he should be doubly concerned not to despoil you of your limited, hard-earned rest.

Now for remedial possibilities: A physician with whom I talked suggests (in all seriousness, though aware of its comic aspects), the "toothache" type bandage, in which a bandana is swathed under the chin and tied atop the head—to keep the jaw from falling open during sleep. It is the open-mouthed sleeper, breathing chiefly through the palate rather than the nostrils, who "snores to raise the roof." And when he sleeps on his back, with mouth open as well, he snores to raise the very heavens—because then his tongue sags back in his throat, half stifling his mouthy respiration, thus producing a one-man cacophony of whistling, choking, gagging, night shattering sounds.

So, says the Coctor, don't let a snorer sleep on his back, if it is your fate to be h' bedfellow. Make him sleep on his side. And it is the doctor's opinion that a snorer has no right to complain if an irate roommate prod him awake to quiet its gargling. Since enlarged tonsils and adenoids aggravate the tendency to snore, the doctor suggests that your husband check this possible source of disturbance, and have it corrected, if need exists.

And for one last suggestion: Wheel the baby's crib into the living room every night—supposing your present home is a two-room apartment, of the living room, bedroom, kitchenette variety.

Office Girl Should Get in Form For Increasing Defense Duties

By Ida Jean Kain

IF, as Mrs. Roosevelt predicts, our next year's crops will be largely the production of a new army of "land girls," a plan for rotation of feminine farm workers along with the rotation of crops would be right in line with the program to make Americans strong.

Sedentary workers could then go down to the farms in shifts. The wholesome outdoor life is guaranteed to put the softest softie in shape. This would be a chance for the girls whose job it is to sit at a desk all day—and who grow soft despite hard work—to get the vigorous physical activity they need.

But, of course, that's just a dream. Our 1942 farmerettes will be women who can stand up to hard manual labor. They will have to be strong to start with. An old land girl myself, I seem to recall thatt he work day down on the farm usually begins around 4 a. m. and goes merrily along until the last cow is milked.

Stick to Your Job

This is an emergency and, no doubt about it, shifting workers about would throw a wrench into our defense machinery. The office worker will stick to the job she is best fitted to do and if next summer's vacation is cut she may not see as much farm life as usual. But, as pressure of work increases, so does the need for the physical workout that relieves nervous tension.

What you career girls have to do is plan your own rotation of activity and alternate long sessions of sedentary work with exhilarating physical workouts. A good, 5-mile walk every day will do as much as any single measure to put you in the pink. Most likely you shouldn't try to start off with such a long walk. But you should be able to clip off 2 miles daily the first week, then start stretching it out. In three weeks you should be equal to the entire 5 miles and from then on should make this your daily stint.

Some of you can't allot that much time to walking. But you can make it a strict rule never to ride anywhere that you can walk and you can get a surprising amount of exercise by this plan.

Exercises Needed

Excellent as walking is, you should supplement it with a few specific exercises for the large trunk muscles. These are the ones most neglected in sedentary work. For a mental as well as physical lift, the exercise should be of the extension type as in the old Swedish "cross-to-fly:" Stand erect, feet slightly apart and parallel, wrists crossed in front about at waistline. Rise on toes, flinging arms up and out at sides. Down, up! Swing with easy rhythm, stretching upward always.

Another exercise with a lift is the "apple picker." In this, hop lightly on the ball of one foot as you stretch arm on same side high overhead, just as if you were reaching for an apple on a high limb. Hop first on one foot, then the other until you have picked a peck.

THE NEWS over the radio steadily seemed to grow worse . . ." Tokyo claims two British battleships have been sunk . . ." The Japanese have effected a landing on Luzon . . ." Unidentified planes have been sighted off the West Coast. . ."

Oh well, she thought, maybe the newspaper when it came would make things seem better . . . report some kind of a little victory somewhere . . . hold out some hope about "reinforcements" or "counter attacks." She waited limply until she heard its thud on the porch, then opened it with nervous, fumbling fingers.

No, there were the big black headlines telling the same story. Down the page other disheartening words struck her eye. "Air Base Blasted" . . . "Guam Reported Taken" . . . "Japs Claim Naval Superiority."

She felt weak in the stomach, her legs uncertain beneath her. What was there to do? . . . Surely she ought to be doing something . . . right now . . . right this minute!

Strange ideas and forebodings began rushing through her mind. She saw the sky black with bombing planes . . . people rushing to air raid shelters . . . children—good Heavens! her own children—in peril . . . John . . . John . . . Oh, if John would only come!

His name brought a comforting sense of strength to her. When John came . . . why when John came . . . everything would be all right. His presence alone would bring reassurance, calm, make everything seem as it always had been.

She could see him stalking in the door, hearty and confident, vigorously impregnable to worry or gloom. Oh he would deride her fears, laugh at her imaginings, assure her the radio and the papers didn't know what they were talking about, and "just wait till our Navy really got into action," . . . make her strong and brave and cheerful to carry on before the children. Yes, when John came this terrifying, upset world would readjust. Everything would be all right.

At last she heard his hand on the door knob. She hurried forward. "Oh John darling—" She stopped.

He came in slowly, his shoulders stooping, his face gray. He suddenly seemed old and shrunk and tired.

"The Prince of Wales and the Repulse have both been sunk," he said dully.

"I know it," she answered.

He sat down, picked up the paper, glanced at it, turned on the radio, then turned it off.

"Do you think it's so very bad?" she asked timidly.

"Bad!" he exclaimed impatiently. "Don't you realize what this does to our naval strength in the Pacific?"

He got up and walked up and down the room. "I can't see how it could happen! I can't see how that thing in Pearl Harbor could happen! Something's wrong! Something's wrong somewhere!"

He continued to stride. She looked at him silently. She knew how he felt . . . the anger, the outrage, the longing to do something and—this helplessness. And of course with a man it was worse. He had to stand quietly bottling his primitive fury . . . seeing the things he had fought for all his life crumbling about him . . . feeling the responsibility for all those he loved, for all those he had thought safe and protected . . . seeing an unknown and threatening world rising about his children.

Watching him as he walked, she saw how deep the lines were etched in his face. A wave of compassion swept over her. Poor darling! What a burden he was carrying! He and all men. Carrying in their hearts not only the responsibility for all those they loved and for whom they felt accountable, but for all the people of the Nation, for all the generations of Americans to come after them.

Oh, of course it was her burden, too . . . but then—well women were different. They accepted things . . . they knew better how to suffer the intangibles . . . they could stand anything.

He sat down again and started to read. How drawn his face was! Poor child! Why what he needed was to be soothed, rested, cheered, to have the flame of courage rekindled within. He needed to be told over and over again as mothers had told their children, as women had told their mates, from the beginning of human association, "Don't worry dear, everything's going to be all right."

She arose and started toward the kitchen. She would get him something hot. It would be a while until dinner. "Anyway," she flung back brightly, defiantly at the door, "just wait until our Navy REALLY gets into action!"

Dent–Tilghman Nuptials Moved Up to Dec. 22

Because the prospective bridegroom is going into the United States service, the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Tilghman and Elliott Johnstone Dent has been moved up to Monday, December 22. Plans originally had been made for the ceremony to take place January 12.

The marriage, which will be witnessed by a small company, will take place in the sacristy of St. Matthew's Cathedral at 4:30 p. m., with Msgr. Buckey officiating. A large reception will follow at the Chevy Chase Club.

Selections for the wedding party are not yet complete, but the bride-elect has already chosen her attendants. Her sister, Miss Catherine Holloway Tilghman, will be maid of honor, and her other attendants will include Mrs. John Harrington, of Kew Gardens, Long Island, and Miss Isabel Gilman, of Amherstburg, Ontario, Canada. Miss Gilman is the fiancee of Charles Tench Tilghman, brother of the bride-elect.

Miss Tilghman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tilghman, of 1608 Thirty-second Street. Mr. Dent's father is Col. Elliott Johnstone Dent.

Helen Berry Will Wed Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Albert K. Berry, of Muskogee, Okla., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Kate Berry, to Lieut. Duncan Woodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan A. Woodman, of Bronxville, N. Y.

Miss Berry is a graduate of Draughon's Business College, Muskogee, and is now working in the morale division of the War Department. Her fiance, who is a graduate of Nichols College, Dudley, Mass., received his commission in the Quartermaster Corps last year. Since August, he has been motor transportation officer of the War Department.

The wedding will take place the latter part of the month.

Norton Goodwin's Leave Canceled, Parents Advised

Into the midst of a dinner party came a telegram: "Furlough canceled. Regiment expects move elsewhere." So Norton Goodwin, who was expected to arrive Saturday morning to spend the holidays—two whole weeks of them—with his parents, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, will be unable to be here for the younger set Christmas parties, just now beginning to gather momentum.

The telegram arrived at the party Mrs. Goodwin gave for debutante Ruth Hurley before the Friday Supper Club party. Her nephew, John McDonald, is still expecting to spend a couple of Christmas weeks with the Goodwins. He will come over from Annapolis, where he is in his second year.

Union Elects W. R. Tuckerman

Heading the Washington branch of the English Speaking Union for the next year is Walter R. Tuckerman, who was elected president of the organization at its annual meeting.

Under Mr. Tuckerman will work three vice presidents, the Right Rev. Bishop James E. Freeman, Maj. Gen. J. L. Chamberlain and Robert Lincoln O'Brien. The board of governors includes Mme. Julia Cantacuzene, Mrs. George P. Scriven, Capt. Chester Wells, Col. Wrisley Brown and Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor. Lynch Luquer is honorary secretary treasurer.

Mrs. Tuckerman spoke on her war relief work and the British ambulance fund. And a report on the knitted goods, candy and cigarettes sent to the crews of two of the United States destroyers turned over to Britain was given by Mrs. Edward W. Sturdevant and Miss Virginia Hunt.

Senate Ladies Meet Tomorrow

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace has issued a call for a special meeting of the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club tomorrow t 10:30 a. m. to plan the Red Cross work of the club for the coming year. The gathering will be in the regular meeting room in the Senate Office Building, but there will be no luncheon this time.

The call went out after an executive meeting of the club officers in Mrs. Wallace's Wardman Park apartment Saturday morning. Officers there in addition to Mrs. Wallace, the president, were Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. Peter Garry, Mrs. Scott Lukas, Mrs. Worth Clark and Mrs. Lister Hill.

Whispers Put Damper On Social Functions

Society Hears Secretary Stimson Opposes Parties, but Some Go Ahead

Despite the historic fact that war-time Washington in 1917 was at the zenith of its social gaiety, the feeling has crept into war-time Washington in 1941 that social gaiety is out of place.

At least a number of high-ranking military officials are passing along the word that the Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson frowns upon social activity among the service set. Not that the Secretary of War has been heard to make any such statement, but his official subordinates have in some way become convinced that this is his attitude and they are making haste to conform to it.

The reasons advanced for the Secretary's feeling fall into three groups. One that he feels that this is no time to engage in frivolous pursuits; two, that through newspaper publicity, some clew might be given as to the assignments and whereabouts of certain important officials, and three, that too much partying will give the civilian population the idea that the Army is not attending to business. But whatever the reasons, many Army hostesses are recalling invitations. One next week party already canceled is the one which Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Oscar Ripley Rand were scheduled to give Saturday afternoon at the Army-Navy Club in honor of the new Judge Advocate General, Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, and Mrs. Cramer.

Tafts Are Hosts At Luncheon Party

But despite the semiofficial party ban, Capital society goes merrily on its way. Yesterday among the parties were the luncheon that Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft gave, the luncheon at which Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot were hosts and the young set cocktail party given by Smith and DeLong Bowman.

The Tafts' luncheon, which had been originally scheduled as one of the many social adjuncts to the Gridiron Club festivities, was to have been given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert Taft, of Cincinnati. But when the Gridiron party was called off, the Cincinnati branch of that family didn't make its planned visit to the Capital. However, the Tafts decided to go ahead with their luncheon plans even in the absence of the honor guests, and yesterday the Senator from Ohio and his gracious wife had 16 places laid at their dining room table.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinchot had as the ranking guests at one of their popular Sunday buffet-luncheons, Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black. Mrs. Pinchot's ideas on the supposedly moot question of wartime entertaining are succinct and to the point. "This is the time, like any other time, to do what you want to do socially," said she.

Among those who dropped in to the Pinchots' home on Rhode Island Avenue were the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann, the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon, the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold and their weekend guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McEvoy, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lindley and Frank A. Vanderlip.

Mr. and Mrs. McEvoy, who have been much feted during their stay in the Capital with Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, spent the weekend at the Arnold farm near McLean, Va., and are planning to check in at the Mayflower today for a few more days' stay in Washington.

Cocktail Party At Sunset Hills

In Sunset Hills, Va., Smith and DeLong Bowman, assisted by their mother, Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, whose dark blue floor-length dress was accented in gold, received a number of their younger set friends during the popular Sunday cocktail hours—4 to 7. Among those glimpsed around the be-sandwiched table, centered with a bouquet of red carnations in a low bowl and white tapers in eight silver candlesticks, were Representative Hatton Sumners, Baron and Baroness Stakleberg, Mr. and Mrs. George Renchard, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Miss Ruth Buchanan, Miss Nancy Rheem, Charles Lynham, Harry Schwartz, Dr. and Mrs. Sergeant Pepper, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Clifford, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Miss Jane Culbertson and Harold Mosely.

Still others there were Mrs. Russell Snodgrass, Flight Lieut. James Barrett, Miss Evelyn Walker, Miss Dorothea Villard, Miss Patricia Mencia, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphey, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Phillips and several dozen others.

Powells Have Informal Party

Entertaining in the second in a two-day series of cocktail parties in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snowden Hill, Mr. and Mrs. W. Royce Powell asked a number of friends to drop in informally "after five" at their home on Thirty-first Street yesterday afternoon.

Among those in yesterday's group were Representative and Mrs. Lansdale Sasscer, Mrs. Eldredge Jordan, Judge and Mrs. Peyton Gordon, Mrs. Russell Bennett, Mrs. Richard Coll, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Oliver Colvin, Jack Logan, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rixey Smith.

At the Powells Saturday party in honor of the Hills were Senator Styles Bridges, Representative Katharine Byron, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Barry Bingham, Eugene O'Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson, Frank A. Vanderlip, Marshall Exnicos, George Vournas, Mr. and Mrs. Francis de Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsey, Mrs. E. Brooke Lee, Fred Roy, Mrs. Sol Montgomery, and many others.

Lenard Stantons On Bridal Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Phillip Stanton will return Saturday from New York, where they have been spending their honeymoon since their wedding in the rectory of Holy Trinity Church, December 12. The bride is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, of Barlow, Ky.

Mr. Stanton's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Stanton, of Washington. The Rev. Thomas A. Ward read the vows. Mrs. Stanton was attended by Mrs. William Botts, jr., at matron of honor, and her bridesmaids were Miss Larene Walker and Miss Christine Downey. John D. O'Connell was best man for Mr. Stanton. A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The couple will live at 1731 New Hampshire Avenue in this city.

She Does Her Part

When she came here last year from her home in England with her husband, who is with the British Purchasing Commission, Mrs. Newton Dunn planned to stay in the Capital six weeks. Now almost a "native," she lives at the Shoreham, works for British War Relief and is planning to make her contribution to other humanitarian activities

Whiteheads On Honeymoon

Now on a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. James Harold Whitehead, jr., who were married Saturday afternoon at the St. John's Episcopal Church, will make their home, for a while at least, in North Carolina. Mr. Whitehead, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Harold Whitehead, of Westfield, N. J., is stationed at New River, N. C., with the Marine Corps.

The bride, formerly Miss Jean Fitz-Patrick Heiberg, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Walter L. Heiberg, was given in marriage by her mother, as her father is in Sweden, where he is the United States naval attache. The Rev. Leslie Glenn officiated at the ceremony, at which only members of the two families were present.

The bride wore a white satin gown fashioned with a square neckline and a full skirt which fell into a train. Her tulle veil was held in place by sprays of orange blossoms and her bouquet was of eucharist orchids. Kimball Mather Whitehead, of Plainfield, N. J., served his brother as best man.

A small reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on Wyoming Avenue.

Winfree to Fly To New Post

Robert Means Winfree, who was married Saturday in the Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., to Miss Virginia Lee Graham, daughter of Charles Edward Graham and the late Mrs. Graham, will leave by clipper tonight for his new post in Buenos Aires. A foreign service officer who has just completed a tour of duty in Berlin, he will be joined in the Argentine capital by his bride. She will leave Washington Friday.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating at the 1 o'clock ceremony. She wore a street-length dress of pink wool cut on princess lines with a matching off-the-face hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of orchids.

Miss Mary Jane Graham, a sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant. Her black frock was accented with white and she wore a black hat and accessories. Charles Thompson served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's father on Rhode Island Avenue.

Mr. Winfree, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Winfree, attended Catholic University and George Washington University.

Two Justices, Wives Honored At Arnold Party

Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed and Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas were ranking guests at the Saturday night dinner given by Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold. Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McEvoy, who have decided to extend their stay in Washington indefinitely.

Recently they have been the guests of Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, who was also among the Arnold's dinner guests, along with her guest, Countess di Frasso. Undersecretary of the Interior and Mrs. J. J. Dempsey were present and also Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Elliston, Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Countess de Martino, Ensign Thurman Arnold, jr., and Mrs. Carl Arnold.

Princeton Group To Open Jan. 5

The Triangle Club of Princeton University will present its annual show in Washington on Monday evening, January 5, in the auditorium of the Central High School, the Princeton Club of Washington has announced.

Breaking from the custom of past years, the Triangle show committee of the Princeton Club has announced that this year's performance will be an invitation affair, with no tickets for sale. Invitations are to be issued to all members of the Princeton Club of Washington and their friends, to all other Princeton men, alumni and undergraduates, residing in Washington, and to distinguished official guests.

Members of the Triangle show committee are Tinsley Adams, chairman; Lawrence M. Proctor, David Lawrence, Brown Rolston, F. Moran McConihe, Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, jr., and Frank W. Rounds.

Christmas Note Dominates Sullivan Party

"It will sound shocking to describe, but I like it," said Miss Mannevillette Sullivan of the bright lame frock threaded through with gold that she was wearing yesterday afternoon when she entertained a number of her friends at cocktails at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Sullivan.

Anticipating Christmas, Miss Sullivan carried the red note through into her decorations and the flowers in bowls on tables in the living room. Even the punch which was served in the dining room was a holiday red.

Assisting the hostess by pouring the punch and coffee was Miss Gloria Grosvenor, who also contributed to the theme color with touches of scarlet on her black dress with Persian embroidery on its sleeves and buttons.

Miss Beverley Marshall and Mrs. Charles Connolly also assisted Miss Sullivan. In the spirit of a wartime party, the assistants and their hostess were all wearing street-length dresses. Mrs. Connolly is the wife of Miss Sullivan's cousin, who came to Washington recently. He is now an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission.

Louis Caldwell To Give Party For Judge Sykes

Washingtonians with a "parking ticket" conscience were first alarmed, then pleased, to find a legal summons in their morning mail. Lawyer Louis G. Caldwell issued a "legal order" to show up on Sunday, December 21, at 5 p. m. at 2900 Cleveland Avenue and "continuing thereafter until you hear the all-clear siren."

The invitation then states in a legal vein that the party will be in honor of Judge Eugene O. Sykes, new Federal Communications Bar Association president, and Mrs. Sykes, and issues three specific instructions. "(1) Be present. (2) Don't use the A. T. & T. for your R. S. V. P. It has 42% more business than usual. (3) At your option accompany your appearance with a declaration and reasons for and/or against the new president and whether the emergency is sufficient or sufficiently limited to justify this step in electing him to office."

Mr. Caldwell served as president of the association four years ago.

Virginia Beale, Donald Murray Exchange Vows

In the home of her parents in Arlington, Va., Miss Virginia Pleasants Beale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Gordon Beale, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Donald Edward Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Murray, of Arlington. The Rev. George G. Bleese officiated at the 4 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Allene Rosin Fitzhugh White, of Staunton, Va., served as best man.

Following the ceremony, which had been suddenly changed from a large church affair to a quiet family ceremony when the bride's brother was ordered to service on the Pacific Coast, a reception was held. After a brief wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Stuart Gardens, Newport News, Va.

Mr. Murray attended Staunton Military Acaremy and Catholic University and was graduated from Columbia Technical Institute.

Miss Madden's Troth Announced

Judge J. Warren Madden and Mrs. Madden announce the betrothal of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Edmund Totten Sommer, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sommer, of Providence, R. I. Both Miss Madden and Mr. Sommer are with the British Purchasing Commission in Washington.

The wedding will take place Christmas Day at the new home of Miss Madden's parents, near McLean, Va.

Gradys Are Honored at Cajigas Party

Starting out the round of festivities in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, who are here from San Francisco to spend the Christmas season in the Capital, was the buffet-supper given last night by Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas in their home on Charleston Place.

Assisting Mrs. Cajigas at the dining room table heaped with Spanish food were Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Senora de Munilla, who, with her husband, the Military and Air Attache of the Cuban Embassy, will leave Wednesday for a vacation in Cuba; Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Helen Moran Drury, Miss Louise McNutt and Miss Anita Cajigas, daughter of the hosts.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, the Ambassador of Ecuador, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, the Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Michels and their daughter, Senorita Cristina Michels, Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Paul McNutt, Justice and Mrs. Justin Miller, the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, the Minister-Counselor of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Baron, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke.

Still others there were Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Mr. and Mrs. James Moran, Dr. John Shugrue, Miss Lucille Foster McMillien, Frank A. Waring, Mme. Fani d'Aulby, Alberto Bareto, the three sons of the honored guests, Reginald, Henry, jr., and John Grady, and several others.

Seehusen-Newman Engagement Announced

Mrs. Frank C. Seehusen announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Janice Annabel Seehusen to J. Francis Newman. The wedding will take place December 28 at the Sacred Heart Rectory.

Miss Seehusen is the daughter of the late Frank C. Seehusen, of Maplewood, N. J. Mr. Newman is the son of Ora W. Newman and the late Mrs. Newman of Tiffin, Ohio. The couple will live in Washington, where Mr. Newman is associated with the General Accounting Office.

Chinese Diplomat At Gaylor Dinner

Mr. and Mme. Kao Chi Chang, of the Chinese Embassy, were among the guests at a supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Gaylor last evening. The party took place in their home in Woodside Forest, Md., and was an anniversary of moving there a year ago.

Others in the company included former Representative Virginia Jencks, Maj. and Mrs. Earl W. Standlee, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Artz.

McNutt Predicts 'Dark, Grim Days'

Philadelphia, Dec. 14 (AP).—Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt declared tonight that America faces "dark, grim days" and that "there will be sacrifices untold required of us all."

"The bell will toll, again and again," he said at a Bill of Rights Day celebration sponsored by the order of B'nai B'rith and broadcast over a coast-to-coast radio hookup (Mutual).

"But this is a fight for the greatest things on earth—for ideals which, through all the centuries, civilized man has regarded as the measure of his humanity," McNutt continued.

Keep Wheels Going, First Lady Urges

Seattle, Dec. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told a Seattle conference on defense activities today that the Nation's chief purposes must be to keep up production and morale even if bombings or enemy attacks occur.

"Every time a shift is stopped from working, we're losing a battle," she said. "Every time we go through another 24-hour period without a stoppage of work, we are contributing to our ultimate victory."

A Challenge

Msgr. Sheen Asks Backing For President

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Dec. 14.—The Right Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, one of the leading spokesmen on world affairs for the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, today challenged the Catholicism of persons of the Catholic faith who did not support President Roosevelt as the "authority of the State" to which they belonged.

He said it was the duty of every Catholic to respect the authority of the State no matter where it might be invested.

Msgr. Sheen, who is a professor of philosophy at Catholic University, disclosed that while speaking on November 17 at the catechetical congress in Philadelphia, one of the largest meetings of Catholic laity, he was booed and hissed, and heard himself branded as a "sell-out" and a "Judas," when he suggested that it was the duty of Catholics to support the President.

He told of receiving hundreds of letters and telegrams attacking him for this speech. "One lady said she belonged to 14 Catholic organizations and that not 1 per cent of the membership of any one of them supported the President," Msgr. Sheen said, then raised his voice to an unusually high pitch and declared:

"If this is true, I as a member of the Catholic Church denounce all of them."

Points Out Difference

Explaining that there was a difference between authority and legislation, Msgr. Sheen said, "We do not have to approve of every bit of legislation the President wants passed. We do not have to be Chauvinists or New Dealers. If we were not at war and I had to vote tomorrow, I would not vote for President Roosevelt, but if he were elected, war or no war, I would obey and respect his authority."

Earlier, at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Msgr. Sheen said he wanted to answer those who ask:

"The Germans pray to God, the English pray to God and the Americans pray to God—on whose side is God?"

Saying that those who ask that question have not the slightest idea of the meaning of prayer, Msgr. Sheen continued:

"God takes no sides on the basis of geography, national boundaries, slogans or systems of politics, but on the basis of justice and righteousness. The American, the Jap, the German and the Englishman who pray properly all pray for the same intention:

"'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven'."

Litvinoff's Remarks

Msgr. Sheen also commented on the remarks of Maxim Litvinoff, newly appointed Soviet Ambassador to the United States, who gave assurance Saturday that Russia would not make a separate peace with Germany.

Msgr. Sheen said America must be on guard against Russian treachery. "Is this not the same Litvinoff who, in 1933, promised that Russia would not carry on propaganda work in the United States?" he asked.

Pointing out that Japan would not have struck such a reckless blow against the United States if it had not been sure that Russia would not attack it, Msgr. Sheen said.

"We want to be certain that if the blood of Americans is given, it is not for the perpetuation of a tyranny."

Burns Prove Fatal To D. C. Woman

Helen C. Landrum, 28, of 3800 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital from burns received during a fire Saturday morning in an apartment at 4105 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death, stating that her clothing was ignited by a cigarette, and a divan on which she was sleeping also caught fire. Miss Landrum was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for first and second degree burns. She died at 3:29 a. m.

Test Pilot Wins Chanute Trophy

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Melvin N. Gough, senior test pilot for the national advisory committee for aeronautics laboratories at Langley Field, Va., has been chosen as the recipient of the Octave Chanute award for 1941, it was announced tonight.

The award, named for a pioneer American glider pilot, is given by the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences to the pilot who contributes most to scientific research.

Lady Halifax to Aid In Defense Work

The British War Relief Society announced last night that Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, would participate in a civilian defense meeting today and register for volunteer defense duty.

Mrs. Harry S. Berrkon, of the District Defense Council's central volunteer bureau, will address the meeting, scheduled for 4:30 p. m. at the society's headquarters, 1217 Connecticut Avenue.

At the same time, members of the society who have not already done so will register for civilian defense work.

How to 'Stamp' Out the Axis

Buffalo, Dec. 14 (AP).—Play "Torpedo" if you want to "stamp" out the Axis, suggests George C. White, Curtiss-Wright airplane plant engineer.

The game, devised by White and fellow workers, features purchase of Defense Stamps, in the following amounts, for each Axis ship sunk by Uncle Sam's armed forces: Battleship, $5; plane carrier, $4; cruiser, $3; destroyer, $2; submarine, $1; any other Axis ship, 50 cents.

Treasury Considers 44-Hour Week Plan

Treasury now has up a plan to place its employes on a 44-hour work week. Commerce action on a similar plan is expected this week. A 44-hour work week is to be instituted today by the Civil Service Commission. But 44 hours will be the absolute minimum . . . most employes will be worked around 50 hours. The commission also has canceled all Christmas leave and has announced that it will remain open for business seven days a week. That, of course, means work Saturday afternoons and Sundays. All employes, however, won't be compelled to work Sundays.

Board of Tax Appeals has started a movement to keep Board Member Bolon Turner in this country. Turner went to Europe in 1939, war broke out and he had a harrowing trip home. He just missed a liner that the Nazis torpedoed. A few weeks ago he went to Honolulu. The Japs struck while his ship was en route to San Francisco. Turner had another hair-raising trip home.

Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee will start hearings tomorrow on his bill to amend the Classification Act. An interesting array of witnesses has been lined up in support of the bill. Ramspeck is trying to get William H. McReynolds, the President's administrative assistant on personnel, to testify . . . McReynolds will lose his anonymity if he does . . . he's supposed to be anonymous, you know. A Budget Bureau spokesman will testify for the bill, which has the solid support of the Administration. The bill would raise the salaries of some 200,000 Federal workers by streamlining the Classification Act.

Randolph Paul, a prominent New York tax attorney and a Yale lecturer, will be appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to handle tax matters. He will replace Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan, who will be assigned to handle legislation for the department. And of course that means tax legislation . . . Vice President Wallace's Economic Defense Board will take over most of the facilities of the Tariff Commission for the duration of the emergency. The commission consents.

Dunphy Quits Island Job

National Federation of Federal Employes lists a local of 177 employes at the island of Guam . . . Leo E. Dunphy has resigned as secretary to Gov. Harwood of the Virgin Islands to return to his old post as confidential secretary to Secret Service Chief Frank Wilson. He's being succeeded in the Virgin Islands by Ralph Winchell of the Commerce Department . . . Dr. S. O. Fladness of the Agriculture Department has gone to Argentina and Chile to investigate livestock diseases.

Each Senator will have $4500 more to spend on clerk hire on January 1. The Senators will hire special executive assistants to help them write speeches, conduct research and the like . . . Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Buildings Administration told the Senate committee that the proposed new building would accommodate 25,000 new employes. From other sources it's said that 50,000 new employes will have to be brought to Washington within the next year.

SUGGESTION FOR UNCLE SAM: Some Federal agencies have curtailed earned annual leave of their employes since the war started in September, 1939. Now most defense agencies are restricting leave. Thousands of employes now have anywhere from 61 to 85 days of annual leave to their credit. They are allowed to take little, if any, of the leave they have earned, but on January 1 they will lose all accumulated leave over 60 days. That's the law . . . only 60 days can be carried over from one year to another. Employes in Army arsenals and Navy yards are paid double to work during their vacation periods. How about similar treatment for "white-collar" employes?

Funds to carry out the Ramspeck-Mead automatic promotion act have been approved by Congress. More than 60,000 employes here will get one-step, in-grade raises during this fiscal year under the plan. The money is now expected to be available for paychecks on the twenty-third and the thirty-first . . . Representative Bishop of Illinois sells mail order clothes to his friends. It's his hobby.

Bridge Now Out

Darlington, S. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Women's Wednesday Morning Bridge Club has voted to abandon cards "for the duration."

The club instead will meet hereafter at Red Cross headquarters to knit, sew and do other war work.

Italy (Tex.) Backs U. S.

Italy, Tex., Dec. 14 (AP).—This town of 1000—which three days ago declared war on Europe's Italy—raised its Red Cross quota of $500 in less than two hours. And the money kept coming from citizens who claim they have more men in uniform than any other town of its size in the State. Almost every family is represented in the Army by from one to three members.

Weekend's Crime Toll

$438 Taken in 8 Robberies Here, 3 Citizens Assaulted

Eight robberies, including three assaults on citizens walking the streets, were reported yesterday to police. Total loot by the thieves amounted to $438.

Three men reported they had been strongarmed by Negroes late Saturday night and early yesterday. In one case the thieves fled when the victim yelled for assistance.

An armed thug who appeared to be experienced last night robbed High's Ice Cream Store at 2016 P Street Northwest of $80 in cash, including an envelope containing the week's pay of the clerk, Miss Evelyn Ryan, victim of two other holdups at the same store.

Woman Waits in Car

The robber had a woman accomplice waiting for him in a car parked outside, Miss Ryan said. Police believe he is part of a group of robbers who have participated in ten robberies of High's stores in the last two months. Two men who were apprehended last week are accused of complicity in seven of the holdups.

The bandit forced Miss Ryan to disclose a place in the rear of the store where she had some of the money cached. When she showed reluctance he dumped a peanut vending machine off a counter onto her foot. She was seriously injured.

William Strasser, of 23 S Street Northwest, reported he was grabbed from behind by two Negroes who tore his trousers in an attempt to rob him but fled when he yelled for help. The attack occurred in the rear of his home.

Sam Morris, of 4611 Fifth Street Northwest, told police he was walking in an alley in the rear of the 3100 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest when he was attacked by two men who took $142 and a wrist watch.

Seized From Behind

John Hay, 1338 Vermont Avenue Northwest, reported he was walking on Ninth Street south of L Street when he was grabbed from behind and robbed of $30.

Caesar J. Torterella, manager of the United Petroleum Products Co., 220 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, reported thieves forced the front door of the office and broke open a wall safe and a wall cabinet and escaped with $120.

Forty dollars were stolen from a gasoline station at Third and K Streets Northwest, it was reported by Joseph Browsky, owner of the place. Browsky said the thief had smashed a front window of the office.

A thief, using a brick wrapped in a brown sweater, smashed a window of a liquor store at 1216 Thirteenth Street Northwest. Samuel Abelman owner of the store, reported $50 in whisky had been stolen from the window.

David Leach, of 25 I Street Northeast, told police a thief entered his bedroom early yesterday morning and stole $108 from the pocket of his trousers.

2500 Children of District Will Get Toys at 2 Yule Parties

More than 2500 Washington children will receive Christmas toys at parties arranged by the Salvation Army and Central Union Mission for December 22 and 24, respectively, it was announced by the organizations yesterday.

The Salvation Army program will be held at 2 p. m. at the hall at 606 E Street Northwest, with Mrs. Roosevelt as the honor guest, Divisional Commander James A. Longino stated. A short address will be given by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington. The Navy Band Orchestra will provide music. Adjutant Ray Brown, welfare secretary, said 580 local families comprising 1500 individuals will receive checks and toys for their children.

Twelve hundred children will be entertained by the Central Union Mission at 8:30 a. m. at the Capitol Theater. Mrs. Roosevelt will attend. A Santa Claus will distribute clothing, food and toys, it was stated by Mrs. Jean Bennett, Mission superintendent. The United States Marine Band will play.

The annual Christmas party of the Woodward School for Boys will be held at 1 p. m. Friday in the school assembly hall at 1736 G Street Northwest. There will be a Santa Claus and an exchange of gifts around a Christmas tree.

A community-wide Christmas program will be sponsored by the Greater Brookland-Woodridge area of Northeast Washington at 8 p. m. Friday, at the Taft Junior High School, Eighteenth and Ferry Streets Northeast. Christmas music will be sung by choirs from churches in the area. Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, pastor of the Church of the Reformation, will speak. The Rev. M. C. Stith, pastor of the Brookland Baptist Church, will preside. John L. Fowler, president of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, is chairman of the program committee.

Santa to Arrive Early

Five State Societies to Hold Christmas Parties This Week

Five State societies will hold pre-Christmas parties here this week, beginning with the Delaware group which will hear Christmas readings and distribute toys to children at 8 p. m. today at the Thomas Circle Club, 1326 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Following a brief business session, the Junior Choir of Petworth Methodist Church will sing, the Christmas reading will be given by Mary Etts Callahan and all children attending will be given toys by a Santa Claus.

The pre-Christmas dance of the New York State Society will be held from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. tomorrow in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Popular fancy dancing will be demonstrated by professionals.

The annual gingerbread and cider party of the West Virginia State Society will be held from 9:30 p. m. to 1 a. m. Thursday at the Shoreham Hotel. Gingerbread, apples and cider from West Virginia will be served to all attending. In charge of arrangements are John L. Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Smith, Miss Mayme Hamrick, Mrs. Inez Bray, Mrs. C. M. Smell, Thomas Cain, James P. Moriarty and Lynn Mesaick.

A fiddlers contest will feature the Kentucky society dance to be held from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Friday at the Willard Hotel. Guests have been requested to bring toys and clothing to be shipped to the Glen Eden Settlement House, Lee County, Ky., for distribution among the needy.

The Montana State group will dance at the Hamilton Hotel from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. Friday, it was announced by William B. Jones, the president.

Jews Begin 8-Day Chanukka Celebration

Menorah candles flickered in homes, synagogues and temples last night, as local Jewry began celebration of one of its gayest holidays—Chanukka, Feast of the Lights.

Worshipers began the celebration by lighting one candle and exchanging gifts in their homes before going to the places of worship, where a single taper also was lit.

Upon eight successive nights of the celebration, the faithful will light an additional candle, serving to remind them of the rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem after a triumphant three-year struggle against Syrian oppression.

Principal Reformed Jewish services were centered at the Washington Hebrew Congregation, of which Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld is spiritual leader, while orthodox rites were held at Adas Israel, Beth Sholom, Tifereth Israel, Beth El, Chev Sholom, Southeast Hebrew, Agudath Achim, B'nai Israel and other congregations.

At Adas Israel Synagogue, Sixth and I Streets Northwest, the Chanukka lights were kindled by Cantor Louis Novick and the choir, followed by the congregation. Louis B. Nichols, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, spoke on "The Bill of Rights," and Rabbi Solomon H. Metz on "Why Hanukah?"

A mass religious freedom rally in commemoration of Chanukka and of the sesquicentennial of the ratification of the Bill of Rights was held at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, under the sponsorship of the National Americanism Commission of B'nai B'rith. Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt and Henry Monsky, national president of B'nai B'rith, were main speakers.

'Other Wise Man' To Be Presented At Luther Place

"The Other Wise Man"—Washington's traditional Yule drama—will be presented for the seventeenth consecutive season on December 28, 29 and 30 at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle.

Groups of local players, clergymen and choristers of several denominations again will assist in the presentation, sponsored by the Chapel Players of Luther Place Church and directed by Bess Davis Schriener.

Again taking the stellar role of Artaban, the Median of Ecbatana, and serving as coordinator of the drama, will be Denis E. Connell. Other leading players will be Katherine Riggs, Mary Apple, Nina Norman, Thomas Cahill, Yerby Pannill, Eugene Kressin, J. Edmond Veitch and others.

Carmelite Monastery Novena Begins Tonight

The annual novena in honor of the Divine Infant Jesus will begin at the Carmelite Monastery, 2131 Lincoln Road Northeast, tonight at 8 o'clock. Services will be conducted each evening until December 23, and will consist of novena prayers, a sermon in preparation for Christmas, and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Choral Society Concert

Bach's Christmas oratorio will be presented by the Washington Choral Society tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. at Washington Cathedral. Final rehearsal of the chorus of 120 singers under the direction of Louis A. Potter will be tonight. Guests soloists will be Mme. Rose Walter, a German refugee, and Frederick G. Stevens, tenor.

The Strategy of Truth

Universal Bible, Bill of Rights Dominate Sermon Themes

America's entrance into the international conflict, and the celebration of Universal Bible Sunday dominated sermon themes in local and nearby churches yesterday. Many preachers cited the religious freedom guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, the sesqui-centennial of which is being marked today.

"The fact that today is being observed as Universal Bible Sunday," said the Rev. Dr. Halley B. Taylor at Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, "predisposes us to try to realize anew the absolute dependence of the world upon the word of God for salvation from all the powers of evil and wickedness which play havoc with the lives of men and nations."

The Rev. Walter W. Gale, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, Silver Spring, said in his sermon that "today we have a glorious opportunity to make our faith count."

But he warned that we must make that faith count, even "at the cost of our lives." A rededication of our souls and bodies to the Christian cause must mean more today than ever before, he said, "and how we accept this challenge will determine what kind of a world our children's children will have."

Preaching at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney said that "as we start out in this unhappy business of making war," we should realize the wisdom of seeking God's counsel and of relying upon the truth.

"The front line of our defense," he asserted, "is the integrity of our leaders. Let us preserve that confidence at all costs, for if that line buckles, we are done for."

While "the master strategy among the foes of democracy has been the propaganda of falsehood and deceit," said the cleric, "the superlative, master strategy on our part must be the dissemination of the truth."

G. U. Forum Tomorrow

The Rev. Wilfrid Parsons, S. J., professor of politics in the Catholic University School of Social Science, will address the Georgetown Forum at 8 p. m. tomorrow on "Political Fundamentals in the Reconstruction of the Western World."

The Holidays Will Harbor Engaging Entertainment

Shiny New Films Will Bulge Capital's Stocking; Palace World Premiere to Set Wartime Style; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

HAVING BEEN VARIOUSLY ACCLAIMED as a vital safeguard of national morale, the motion picture industry, through its local factotums, has made generous provision for the Capital's Yuletide entertainment.

JOHNNY WEISMULLER

Speaking for the Warner Brothers, Zone Manager John J. Payette lists some of Hollywood's most imposing productions as his company's Christmas present to Washington. Already announced is "New York Town," co-starring Fred MacMurray and Mary Martin, as the screen attraction opening Friday at the Earle. On the stage, the recently deferred Billy De Wolfe, perhaps the most raved-about comedian on the contemporary boards, will headline the new Harry Anger revue. Next will come "You're in the Army Now," the hectic service charade that presents the new comedy team of Jimmy Durante and Phil Silvers, opening on Christmas Day. Jane Wyman, Regis Toomey, Donald MacBride and the "Navy Blues Sextet" also are in the cast.

Then will be unfurled one of the most eagerly awaited releases of the year, the Warner Brothers film version of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," the smash Broadway hit by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, with Monte Woolley in his original role of the gentleman (?) of the title, Bette Davis, Ann Sheridan, Jimmy Durante, Reginald Gardiner, Richard Travis, Bette Davis' protege; Billie Burke and Grant Mitchell. In the wake of "The Man, etc." will come the first popular-priced engagement of "Sergeant York," the memorable production that is one of the front-runners for this year's Academy Award, with Gary Cooper in the title role, supported by Walter Brennan, Joan Leslie, Margaret Wycherly and all the rest.

If that doesn't get you safely over the holidays, "King's Row," with Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan and Robert Cummings, and "Louisiana Purchase, starring Bob Hope and Victor Moore, Irene Bodoni and Zorina, from the original stage cast, are only a step away.

On behalf of Loew's, Inc., Eastern Division Manager Carter T. Barron makes known that the Capitol, Palace and Columbia Yuletide offerings will lean heavily to the light and gay side. At the Capitol the Christmas picture will be "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," latest of the M-G-M series of the jungle lord and his mate, with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan continuing as the costars. Harriet Hector, the incomparable ballerina, will headline the stage bill. For New Year's the Capitol will break out something pretty special in the camera edition of Gertrude Lawrence's stage hit, "Skylark," with Claudette Colbert starred and such able mimes as Ray Milland, Brian Aherne, Binnie Barnes and Walter Abel in support. Mitzi Mayfair, the reclaimed dancer, and Cardini, the magic man, will top the stage revue. The Palace will follow the already widely heralded "The Corsican Brothers," costarring Douglas Fairbanks—that is what it amounts to—with "Babes on Broadway," the most recent frolic cut to the measure of the Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland talents. The Columbia expects "Two-Faced Woman," with Garbo and Melvyn Douglas, for Christmas, with something a little extra for New Year's.

Not Lighted, but Light-Hearted

In the meantime, plans are going forward for the first screen showing of "The Corsican Brothers," at the Palace on Thursday, with considerable alteration of the usual pattern of a "gala world premiere." Most important is the coalition of the Loew forces and the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington to translate the premiere into a drive to obtain "Books for Belvoir" and other training centers for the armed services. Any patron presenting a book—old or new, so long as it is in good condition—at Loew's Palace on Thursday between 11 a. m., and 1 p. m., will be admitted without other payment. At 8:45 Thursday night, the Palace will play host to a long list of distinguished officials, many of whom will take part in the lobby broadcast, indorsing the drive for books. There will be music by the Loew Cadet Band and no end of indoor hurrah, with unannounced screen stars in attendance, but no searchlights sweeping the skies or other flamboyant outdoor exercises. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., unfortunately, is on duty with the Navy, his "present whereabouts unknown." This first of the wartime world premieres will set the mold for cinema unveilings for some time to come. How long is up to every man, woman and child in the United States.

The Model of the Hoodlums

For those in belligerent mood, eager to be reminded of the gangster methods adopted by the Axis powers in their international relationships, the Pix Theater, these first three days of the week, is reviving "Scarface," that memorable epic of violence starring Paul Muni and with George Raft and Boris Karloff up there at the top of the cast. It will be recalled that it is in this picture that Mr. Raft flips that coin so incessantly. I remarked it to him one day aboard Cecil B. De Mille's "Union Pacific Special," while it was ostensibly being hauled into Washington from Baltimore by that Christmas tree locomotive about the size of a coffee percolator. "Yeah," he grinned, "I flipped that half-dollar into quite a piece of dough!" And don't think he didn't.

"Barring everything but a blackout, the show will go on," promises Phil Hayden in his reminder that tomorrow night at 8:30, in Roosevelt Auditorium, his "Defense Revue" will be staged to raise funds for entertainment at nearby army camps. Sponsored by the District Community Center and Playground Department and the District Civilian Defense Council, the revue will present a cast of 150 in numbers ranging from classical to jitterbug and boogie-woogie. Tickets are priced from 55 cents to $1.32, obtainable now at the Hayden Studios, on Dupont Circle, or at the door at Roosevelt tomorrow night.

Voice-From-the-Back-of-the-Hall Note

"Listen, Blackout, how's about that list of the 'Ten Best Pictures of the Year'—as if anybody cared!"

Trans-Lux

There is no doubt that headquarters for the greatest war in history, in pictures, is the Trans-Lux Theater. The current showing is so replete with every phase of this mad whirl that it is difficult for your observer to place any one "clip" at the top. Suffice to say you will get an eyeful of the terrific carnage let loose by the maniacal Hitler.

What may be called the high spots in this thrilling resume on the silver screen include President Roosevelt's address to the Nation; coverage of unprecedented enlistments; air raid warning on both coasts; FBI roundups of aliens; history of the Prince of Wales, battleship, and the Repulse, sunk by the Japs; the Ark Royal survivors safe at home; Hawaiian casualty lists; Army invasion maneuvers and the arrival of the new Soviet Ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff.

On the lighter side we find a 6-year-old champion girl bowler in New York; baby deer found lost in the woods of Washington State, and Miami University students under water for biology class experience.

Kaltenborn again "Edits the News" in the second of this new and exclusive Trans-Lux Theater feature. Moris Karloff matches his wits with the mental giants in the latest "Information Please."

Football fans—and who isn't one—will revel in "Football Highlights of 1941." This is a thrilling review of the sensational plays by the players responsible.

"Who's Zoo in Hollywood" is an hilarious ending to a fine bit of educational entertainment.

Gayety

Lovers of burlesque, and particularly those who like their revues replete with pretty girls, will find the current attraction at the Gayety Theater a show which will please even the most critical.

Headlining this dazzling revue is Myrna Dean, a lovely platinum blonde, who is making her initial appearance at this house. Late of several musical comedies and night club revues, Miss Dean is one of the most stunning, streamlined sirens we've seen here this season.

Joe Freed, a veteran funster, and Billy Ainsley, another droll chap, contribute many laugh-provoking moments to the production. Particularly effective is Freed's "Cabaret Romeo" number, while Ainsley is terrific in the "Honeymoon Hotel" bit.

Aside from the devastating Miss Dean, the show boasts such beauties as June Marshall, Honey Breen, Dian Shaw and Mary Louise.

Completing the cast are Ned Walsh, who offers some nifty dance routines; a team of two girls and a lad, who sparkle with some fast footwork, and Sixteen Smart Steppers who are all that and pretty, too.—ART JOHN.

LEONARD LYONS

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Dec. 14.

A New Yorker, who went to Mexico City last week, told former King Carol of the news report concerning King Michael's desire to marry a commoner, in Rumania. Carol's response was a hearty laugh . . . Tulio Carminati's friends can't find him now . . . Grace Moore was the ideal hostess recently, when she gave a luncheon in honor of Kay Francis. Miss Moore invited eight other guests—all eminent socialites. "One for me," said Hostess Moore, "and seven for you" . . . Macy's is preparing an immense Pan-American exhibit for January. It will be portable, and will tour the country . . . The milk racketeer syndicate, all of whom were arrested a short time ago, will be tried on January 15.

KAY FRANCIS

A lawyer, residing in Unoccupied France, wrote to a friend in New York some months ago. He described, as best he could, the conditions existing in his Vichy-ruled country. "We are true collaborationists now," he explained. "I am told that you, in America, are unable to understand collaboration. I will therefore make it clear for you. Collaboration is where the Germans take our watches—but they tell us the time."

Michel Wibault, vice president of the DeGaulle organization here, is a aero engineer who was sent to this country to negotiate some secret contracts. Wibault couldn't understand English—especially the legal verbiage employed by the lawyers in writing the contract . . . He finally discovered an American he could trust, and asked him to translate it into simple, American language. The friend simplified it all, by using slang phrases and colloquialisms . . . "What did you do, then?" Wibault was asked . . . "I did the only thing left for me to do, under the circumstances," Wibault confessed. "I went on a five-day drunk."

Clare Boothe was invited to lecture at Newport for the benefit of United China Relief . . . "These Newport people are sensitive," Miss Boothe was cautioned by the chairman of the meeting, "so don't lecture about any awful conditions in China" . . . "What subject, then, do you advise?" the playwright asked . . . "Make your topic 'Naval Strategy in the Pacific,'" the chairman suggested—and Miss Boothe agreed . . . When she arrived at the meeting hall in Newport, she saw four uniformed men in the front row. "Who are they?" she whispered. The reply induced her to revert to her originally selected topic. "They're four nice gentlemen," Miss Boothe was told. "Admirals Yarnell, Block, Andrews and Kalbfuss, of the Naval War College."

The Sigma Nu Chapter at University of California now has a sign announcing: "If you think we have troubles, just think of our chapter in Tokyo" . . . SPAB's 40-billion-a-year Victory Program, which was announced last week, was revealed here on November 26 . . . All German consulates are equipped with paper-chopping machines, which convert documents into confetti—before the burning . . . Frank Sullivan, whose investment in "Arsenic & Old Lace" netted him a 900 per cent return so far, has invested $25 in Marc Connelly's new play.

Sam Goldwyn needed a fourth with whom to play a doubles-game of gin rummy. "There's Johnny North," one of the players suggested. "Let's ask him in" . . . North confessed that he never played the game. Goldwyn, delighted, instructed him in the elementals—and North proceeded to win $150 from the movie producer . . . "Never played it before, eh?" said the irate Goldwyn. "Mr. North, you handle cards like a—like a circus guy . . . You know, those guys who have nothing to do between shows except play cards" . . . "Yes, I know," said the circus proprietor. "My full name is John Ringling North."

Dance Impresario Coaches Loretta

Loretta Young had truly authoritative help when playing a European ballet queen in Columbia's "The Men in Her Life."

Supervising the star's interpretation of dance scenes was Adolph Bolm. Himself a world-famous dancer, Bolm presented the immortal Pavlowa on her first American tour.

"The Men in Her Life," also headlines Conrad Veidt, Eugenie Leontovich, Dean Jagger and Otto Kruger.

Benchley Muse Loses Its Mew

Hollywood, Dec. 14.—Disquieting reports have been going the rounds lately that our favorite actor, the great thespian, Robert Benchley, who makes customers laugh just by sitting there, looking at 'em, is about to retire from the screen.

The rumors have it that the mighty Benchley, who has made a small fortune from the movies merely by being Benchley under all circumstances, is fed up with taking baths, sleeping, cleaning fish, minding babies, making political speeches, and tangling with patent can openers for the screen.

These reports add that Benchley is renouncing all this for a resumption of his career as a writer.

Such stories sounded logical enough today to us. So it was with a feeling of sadness that we dropped in at RKO for a look at Benchley in his final movie, "Syncopation."

There he was with Walter Catlett, a cigar lighter that wouldn't work, a sleepy Dachshund puppy, a 1907 phonograph, and a wind machine to make a gentel breeze.

The effect was as usual. All the hired hands had to do was look at Benchley, and laugh. Too bad, too, (we thought), because here was his last appearance as a movie actor. So Director William Disterle gave his actors a breathing spell and Mr. B. came over for a chat, and we said we certainly were sorry about his abandoning his acting career.

"Abandoning it?" demanded Benchley. "It's got me by the throat."

He added that he'd had in mind quitting the screen, all right.

"And I got a fine new typewriter," he continued. "I loaded it with a good grade of white paper and installed a new purple ribbon.

"I sat down in front of it."

Nothing happened. Benchley stared at his typewriter. It stared back at him. He'd write a line of Xs and the durn machine would go "Bong!"

He'd start another line, and then he'd go look for a cigar. Then he'd light it. Then he'd smoke it. Still no writing on that sheet of white paper.

"But the fact is," he said, "that I cannot write any more. It used to be that I could bang out the stuff in a hurry.

"Now it's different. I can't write anything. I got into the acting business sort of by mistake in the first place. I never intended to be an actor. Now look at me."

Jolly Wolves, Those Fly-Cops!

New York, Dec. 14 (INS).—We'll get a chance to compare Brian Donlevy and Humphrey Bogart as hard-boiled detectives when Brian steps into the gum-shoes in "Red Harvest," another Dashiell Hammett thriller. Paramount has just bought "Red Harvest," which Hammett wrote about 10 years ago, but they tell me that while the detectives are not the same character, Brian will be just as nonchalant and just as interested in the femmes as Bogey was in "The Maltese Falcon."

GINGER ROGERS

Paulette Goddard will be the girl in Brian's detective life—and after so many comedy parts with Bob Hope, it will be interesting to see Paulette as a gangster's moll. The third important member of the cast is Alan Ladd, who they say, is headed for stardom after "Guns for Hire." "Red Harvest" is not strictly a who-dun-it. It's based on a gang of hoodlums who move in on a big industrial strike and a private detective who is hired to run them out of town.

Twentieth Century-Fox breathed its first sigh of relief when official word came through that the camera crew, shooting scenes for "To the Shores of Tripoli" in Honolulu, is safe and sound. The six studio men also have sensational scenes of the Japanese bombardment and the battles that have taken place since a week ago today which will be invaluable to the Government. They had completed most of the Technicolor shots to be used in the picture before the shooting started and as long as their film holds out they will officially photograph the war and what they can get of the sea and air battles in colored film.

Somehow I cannot take these rumors from Hollywood that Ginger Rogers and Lew Ayres are about to kiss and make up seriously. Ginger told me some time ago that as long as she had her career to think about she would not marry. Besides she is divorced from Lew and a reconciliation would mean a remarriage.

The latest movie Ginger has to think about is "I'll Never Tell," which she makes on her home lot, R.-K.-O. with Sam Wood directing. You will remember that Sam directed her in "Kitty Foyle," which won her last year's Academy Award.

Victor Mature is going to play "Paul Dresser" in "My Gal Sal," the story of Theodore Dreiser's song-writing brother. He'll play opposite Rita Hayworth, 1941's glamour queen.

Mickey Rooney's fans will have a chance to see him as an engaged man. His first picture since Ava Gardner said "yes" to him will be called "The Courtship of Andy Hardy" and it will bring back Cecilia Parker as the sister. Remember, she was in all the early Hardy pictures and retired to have a baby. Ann Rutherford and Donna Reed also are in the cast and, of course, Lewis Stone plays the father and Fay Holden the mother.

Tulio Carminati's detention at Ellis Island has created wide interest in theatrical New York and will, I am sure, in Hollywood, where he made many pictures. Tulio first appeared on the American stage with Duse and later was starred in "Strictly Dishonorable." I haven't seen him in several years, but New York people to whom I have talked say that he has acted very unwisely and talked too much so that the F. B. I. had nothing to do but arrest him. Other foreign-born actors are under surveillance and will be dealt with in the same fashion.

Snapshots of Hollywood and New York collected at random: Gloria Vanderbilt, who will wed Pat de Cicco on Christmas Day, was at the El Morocco the other night at a dinner given her by one of her bridesmaids. Pat went to the fights and was congratulated by all his cronies; wonder if it is true that the Bing Crosby's have put up their elaborate valley for sale; Sam Goldwyn, who invited many New York critics to come to Hollywood for the ball of fire party on New Year's, has cancelled it on account of the war.

America Celebrates 150th Anniversary Of Bill of Rights She Fights to Defend

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

A WREATH of living flowers will be placed on the tomb of George Mason at Gunston Hall, Fairfax County, Va., today, the 150th anniversary of his 462 still living words comprising the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, the persisting bed-rock of individual liberties.

Stretching off from the Mason plantation, where the stocky farmer-patriot-statesman watched the weather, crops, and also looked out for potential tyrannies, the Nation will reflect on the freedoms he enunciated while immediately engaged in fighting for them.

His proscriptions against outrages on the dignity of any American individual and all his guarantees of freedom to worship, write and think can be read in slow voice in two minutes and will form the core of hundreds of speeches today, climaxed with one by the President, from the White House, at 10 p. m.

A SWARM of commemorative activities will center in Washington, dramatized in mid-afternoon when the Vice President will lead a solemn pilgrimage to Gunston Hall, 13 miles south of Alexandria, Highway 1. A turn-off to the tomb will be appropriately marked.

The ceremonies will begin at 4 p. m., under auspices of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council. A triple invocation by ministers of three faiths—the Rev. James C. Runkle, rector, Pohick Episcopal Church, home church of Mason and George Washington; Monsignor T. A. Rankin, Vicar General, Diocese of Richmond, and Rabbi Hugo Schiff, of Alexandria—will significantly open the exercises. The program then will include:

A welcome by Mrs. Granville Valentine, of Richmond, State regent for Gunston Hall; introduction of the Vice President; the handing to the Vice President of a wreath by Miss Judith Easley, great-great-great granddaughter of George Mason; a salute by an honor guard from Fort Belvoir, and an address by Gov. James H. Price, of Virginia. The benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Henry W. Craver, president of the Arlington Ministerial Association.

THOMAS JEFFERSON whose eye and concepts were deep in the Bill of Rights, will be honored in ceremonies to be held at 3:30 p. m. in the Jefferson Room of the Library of Congress Annex. Exercises will include dedication of the new Jefferson murals by Ezra Winter, of Minnesota, and speeches by Archibald MacLeish, Congressional Librarian, and Francis Biddle, the Attorney General. The Budapest Quartet will play music known to Jefferson and hard by will be the Magna Carta, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, watched closely now against war-time possibilities of loss.

Two special exhibits have been arranged: one, a selection of Jefferson's papers; the other, documents, imprints and original manuscripts illuminating the history of the Bill of Rights. Otherwise displayed will be the Original Journal of the House of Representatives, containing the Bill of Rights as approved by the House August 21, 1789, and a report of the House Select Committee on the state of the ratification up to July 29, 1790. Contemporary newspapers that reported the passage of State Bill of Rights and the National Bill between 1776 and 1791 will be displayed.

THE speeches began yesterday, eve of the observance. In one prepared for delivery in Philadelphia, Senator Davis (Republican) of Pennsylvania, said "We celebrate the ratification of the Bill of Rights in a dark period but we do so in hope and confidence for the spirit of our fathers. . . . And we may be sure that never again on this planet will any order of life be permanently established which shackles the mind or chains the spirit of man."

The American Civil Liberties Union wrote the President, in part:

"We appreciate fully the necessary restraints which accompany the conduct of a war, but we are concerned that legal restraints should not go beyond military needs. The vast majority of our citizens will of course exercise self-restraint. There are, however, minorities which will properly insist upon recognition of their rights either not to be discriminated against or to speak their minds."

Schedule of Observances For Bill of Rights Day

OBSERVANCES commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights will be held in Washington and vicinity today, as follows:

Nation-wide broadcast from the White House by the President, 10 p. m.

Library of Congress: Addresses by the librarian, Archibald MacLeish, and the Attorney General, Francis Biddle. Rare historical documents will be displayed, 3:30 p. m.

Exercises at the tomb of George Mason, father of the Bill of Rights, at Gunston Hall, Mason's Fairfax County estate, to be attended by the Vice President, 4 p. m.

Exercises by groups of the Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs at the clubhouses throughout the evening.

PROGRAM by the Washington Jewish Youth Federation at the Jewish Community Center, 8 p. m. The Festival of Chanukah, commemorating an ancient victory of the Jewish people in their fight for religious freedom, will be signalized. Representative L. M. Rivers (Democrat), of South Carolina, will speak from 9 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Observance by the North Capitol Citizens Associations at the Langley Junior High School at 8:30 p. m. Boy Scouts of Troops 28, 70, 97 and 606 will participate.

A later celebration, scheduled for 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, will be sponsored by Argo Lodge B'nai B'rith, at the Jewish Community Center. The Women's Auxiliary and the Jewish War Veterans will cooperate. The Rev. Richard E. Evans, D. D., of the Citizenship Educational Association, will speak.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Beauty has its place, but not on the rassling mat. These are not direct quotes from Goldie Ahearn, who is promoting tonight's show at Uline's Arena. The only agency capable of quoting Ahearn directly is the sound track. The King's English has proved itself the Joe Grimm of all modern tongues by its persistence in the face of Ahearn's attacks.

POVICH

"I'm tallink you the poblic wants its rasslers should be ogly," Ahearn seemed to say, "und I am giving them ogly rasslers with two pair pants, yet. I am showing my mother-in-law a picture from the Swedish Angel and tallink her if she gets fresh I will invite him home to dinner, already. Myself, I am a toff guy but I look at the Angel and I haff a bad dream. Soch ogliness I did not see in the zoo, yet. It is vonderful."

For his show tonight, Ahearn seems to have cornered a good share of the rassling industry's most frightening pusses. George Zaharias, who has been billed as the Greek Hyena, is matched with the Angel. Zaharias could hire out as a nightmare, himself, if he chooses to put on his best fighting face. Just to give you an idea of Zaharias, he's the husband of Babe Didrikson, and the boss in his household.

That's the first match of Ahearn's card—Zaharias vs. The Angel—but it's only a warm-up for the extra added attraction and the real killer-diller. In a four-man battle royal, Ahearn will toss into the pit a Seminole Indian, an Australian nobleman, an Oklahoma cowboy, and the champion of France. The battle royal, though, is only a warm-up for the eight-reel feature bout which presents bewhiskered Benny Crusher Feldman, a 310-pounder, versus Mustafa Hamid, the Terrible Turk.

Pfefer Is the Talent Scout

The hand of Jack Pfefer is as obvious in this arrangement of tonight's talent as the bacteria in Ahearn"s accent. Pfefer is the peripatetic promoter who periodically summons his bush-beaters and scours the world for physical freaks. From Moscow, to Istambul, to Burma, to Shanghai, Pfefer has traipsed, routing the more spectacular natives out of their workaday world and into rassling trunks.

When the world caught on fire a couple of years ago and Pfefer began to have passport trouble, he was not content to sit by and see his source of supply exhausted. He leaped lightly into the distaff side of the rassling business and began a search for feminine beauty of the mat. Available now to the Pfefer promotions is a stable of lady rasslers, headed by Champion Betty La Bushey. Two well-muscled Polish beauties, Soszka Burska and Hanka Kavetzka are in Pfefer's string. France has given him vivacious Frances Coti, and a jitter-bugging young Hungarian lass named Alga Hulaban was also prevailed on to join Pfefer's troupe. And any listing of his feminine stars wouldn't be complete without the addition of Tomboy Gracie Costello, of Hoboken, N. J., a 21-year-old who has won all of her 25 bouts.

In Competition With Joe Turner

Ahearn and Uline's arena are Pfefer's Washington outlet for his talent, which is in direct competition with the long-established rassling trust known as the Curley-Bowser-Dusek group. That latter unit has been playing at Turner's Arena for years, and hogging the town's wrestling interest. Rassling has been doing very well at Turner's. So well that Joe Turner is able to pay off his boxing losses and still find something in the till.

The Pfefer technique of promotions doesn't trust the action in the ring as its selling point. The accent is on freaks and laughs, and if Pfefer can get even one picture of one his freaks into the papers before a show, it's success is almost guaranteed. His is a trouping circus.

Ahearn is very frank about it all. "Maybe," he says, "I can make a few bucks with this stuff. Myself, I don't understand this rassling business. Why intelligent people go to see rassling, I don't know, because it is soch a phoney. But for some reason, I see smart people buying rassling tickets. Nicer-looking people than the boxing fans, for some reason. Maybe they got a funny sense of humor, or something. From all kinds of people a woild is menufectured, perhaps."

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, Dec. 14.—Too bad about the Rose Bowl game. The country will get along without it, of course. But it didn't seem to us to constitute much of a menace to civilian defense.

We're supposed to be stressing sports, building bodies, giving the people now and then a few hours respite from the seven-day grind of the war business. The Rose Bowl game would have been a source of relaxation not only for the 90,000 who might have witnessed it but for millions who might have read about it or listened to it on the air. Its colorful pregame parade typifies the pleasant, peaceful things we've gone to war to protect. Gen. De Witt knows best, but——

CONSIDINE

England, only a few minutes removed from the full weight of the Luftwaffe, still has its soccer games, rugby matches and popular horse-racing fixtures. Haven't we as much poise?

Buff Ronelli, coach of unbeaten, untied and uninvited Duquesne, told us the other night that the thing the Pro Football League must guard against is the growing feeling among its players that there isn't much use giving their all in a losing game. "A lot of the boys are getting like baseball players," said Donelli, who coached the Pittsburgh Steelers for a time this year. "You know, the 'this just isn't my day,' way of thinking. Well, it's a crazy way to think, in football That's a sport where the complexion of a game can change in one play . . . one block . . . one pass. It's certainly no game to give up in, just because the other side is going well."

We didn't appreciate the full iciness of the snub the bowl boys turned on Duquesne, until Buff outlined it. "We simply didn't get a single offer," he said. "Along about midseason a fellow from the Sugar Bowl talked to me and sounded me out whether we'd accept a bid, if we went through undefeated. But that was the closest we got to a bowl. I have an idea the Cotton Bowl people didn't take us because I turned down their bid a couple of years ago, when it didn't pay the kind of money it pays today. I guess they remembered."

Marty Servo, the welterweight title challenger who is now serving in the Coast Guard, today challenged Red Cochrane, the champ, who is serving with Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney's Navy boxing instructors. In the hope of beating Ray Robinson to Cochrane, Servo is willing to give his entire purse for a title fight to the Coast Guard Relief Fund. He'll also pay his own training expenses for such a match. What's more, if he beats Cochrane (which will make him a member of a fraternity almost as large as the Elks) he'll give Red a return match in 60 days.

What could be fairer, or more generous?

How that must have pained the tennis boys to come right out and acknowledge that the two leading amateurs in the country this year were Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs. We suppose the Brass Hats resignedly admitted that the two boys were tops—even though they're now bloody mercenaries—to spare the game the embarrassment of having Frankie named the No. 1.

Parker was ranked third behind the two recently turned pros. His being named No. 1 would have been the supreme proof of how far tennis has slipped since the amateur days of Tilden, Johnston, Richards, Williams, etc.

Kovacs has been given the net body's blessing as the second ranking amateur even though he was formally kicked out of the amateur game some weeks ago, for too much imagination in the expense account department.

Jehosaphat! Ted Wiliams won the American League batting championship last season! It became official today, with the release of the solemn official figures.

We get a kick out of these annual official figures, always released in December when traffic on the sports pages is light. It's something like the Senate announcing suddenly that Roosevelt is President.

Now that we know that Williams is the batting champ, and at last can put to rest a rumor that Lefty Gomez won it, we can expect a statement from Clark Grimth, conceding the 1941 pennant race to the Yankees, and a promise from Gerry Nugent that the Phillies will sell no players this winter—except, of course, Litwhiler, Etten and Hughes.

All those who took the long chance and guessed correctly that Williams would be officially named batting champion of the American League will be given an autographed copy of Ford Frick's new canned speech entitled, "Sportswriters must stop introducing a note of levity into their writings for their's is a sacred trust, or why it isn't important whether you win or lose but how you play the game, baby."

Bears' Second Period Attack Routs Packers

The Bears Charge—a Packer Field Goal Effort Fizzles Out

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The Bears practically poured through Green Bay's line to block a field-goal attempt during the first period of yesterday's play-off for the Western Division National Pro Football League title at Chicago. Clarke Hinkle (30), Packer back who attempted the three-pointer, saw End John Siegal block the ball (arrow) as Teammates Dick Plasman (14), Dan For tmann (21) and Ed Kolman (29) backed him up. The Bears came out on top, 33-14

Chicago, Dec. 14.—The Chicago Bears scored 24 points in a wild second period today to defeat the Green Bay Packers, 33 to 14, and win the Western division playoff in the National Professional Football League.

The Bears also won the right to meet the New York Giants here next Sunday for the league championship.

With 43,425 spectators sitting in bright sunshine and the temperature at 18 degrees, the Bears tore up and down the turf of Wrigley Field in that second stanza for three touchdowns, three conversion points and a field goal, gaining a 30-7 half-time lead. It was no job protecting that margin thereafter.

Packers Score First

The Packers had made a terrific battle of it for the opening period, scoring the first touchdown after one minute 56 seconds to take a 7-0 lead. The Bears scored on Hugh Gallarneau's 81-yard punt return for a touchdown just before the period ended.

Bob Snyder's 23-yard field goal, which opened the second period, put the Chicagoans ahead, 9-7, and from then on it was strictly the Bears.

The Packers got a mere 35 yards by rushing compared to 287 for Chicago. But their passing game, despite a sharp Bear defense around End Don Hutson, was hot and they amassed 222 yards in the air to 48 for Chicago.

Only one of the two Packers' touchdowns came as a result of passes. Their first, in fact, was born of a Chicago fumble by Gallarneau on the opening kickoff, which Ray Riddick scooped up on the Bears' 18. Clarke Hinkle crashed in two plays to the 3, Cecil Isbell plunged for 2 and Hinkle, on a reverse, scored. Hutson's placement put the Packers in front, 7-0.

Spectacular Run

The Bears' first score was spectacular. Hinkle punted late in the initial period and Gallarneau took it on his own 19. Off he went, dodging and weaving, and then turning on a burst of speed as he reached midfield. That, plus great blocking, cleared his path to the goal. Snyder's placement try was blocked.

The Bears needed only Snyder's field goal to give them the spirit for that second period. They scored again almost at once when Isbell fumbled on the Packers' 18 and Joe Maniaci recovered. George McAfee raced to the 4, Maniaci picked up a yard, and Norman Standlee entered the game to score. Joe Stydahar's kick was good.

The Bears kicked off and the Packers punted back to the Chicago 42. Sid Luckman's 28-yard pass to Bob Swisher was completed on an interference penalty and McAfee carried the ball to the 13. In three plays Standlee again crossed the goal line, and Stydahar booted his second conversion punt.

Swisher Scores

The Bears marched 65 yards for their next touchdown, a 22-yard run by Swisher and two good passes by Luckman setting the ball up on the Green Bay 9. Luckman faked handing the ball to Standlee, then lobbed a short lateral to Swisher who ran wide and scored. Stydahar's conversion gave Chicago a 30-7 half-time lead.

Durham Seeks Oregon State, Duke Battle

By the United Press

Durham, N. C., Dec. 14.—Duke University officials disclosed today that they had suggested playing the New Year's Day game with Oregon State in Durham since cancellation of the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena, Calif.

The suggestion had been made earlier in a telegram from Coach Wallace Wade, of Duke, to Percy Loose, director of athletics at Oregon State, before announcement of the cancellation had been received from the West Coast.

Wade pointed out that the Duke Stadium could seat about 50,000 and proposed that if the suggestion were favorable to Oregon State officials, the game be played with or without Rose Bowl sanction.

Wade's telegram follows:

"We regret that conditions have developed that have influenced the military authorities to suggest cancellation of the Rose Bowl game.

"Duke is ready to accept the decision of Oregon State and the Tournament of Roses committee.

"In case the game is called off for Pasadena, we wish to suggest for your consideration the possibilty of playing the game at Durham in the Duke Stadium, either with Rose Bowl sanction or otherwise.

"We can accommodate about 50,000 spectators. Our climate at New Year's is usually favorable for football.

"We would be glad to have your reaction to this suggestion if it is desirable not to play the game in Pasadena."

Rose Bowl, Shrine Games Canceled

By the United Press

San Francisco, Dec. 14.—Lieut. Gen. John L. De Witt today announced the Oregon State-Duke University Rose Bowl game and the Shrine East-West charity game, both scheduled for New Year's Day, have been canceled for military reasons.

Gen. De Witt demanded the cancellations, and a committee from Pasadena, representing the Tournament of Roses, conferred with De Witt at Fourth Army Headquarters and later announced it had agreed to call off the Rose Bowl game.

Immediately negotiations were started to transfer the Rose Bowl game outside the Western defense command jurisdiction to an area where it could be played with permission of the Army.

At Corvallis, Oreg., C. V. Rusek, president of the Pacific Coast Conference, said definite suggestions already had been made to play the JapsCheer Product Of Western World: Football a la U. S.

Tokyo, Dec. 14.—(Official Radio Received by the Associated Press)—The Japanese sports public took probably its last look this year at the American type of football today when a post-season doubleheader was played at Korakuen Stadium.

In a regulation 11-men game the "Whites" beat the "Reds," 12 7, while in a 6-man game the Kwanto "old boys" held the youthful Misuho Gakuen team to a 7 to 7 tie.

Although the sport originated in a country with which they now are at war, a sizable crowd of Japanese cheered enthusiastically.

Clippers Stop Paterson, 33-0

By the Associated Press

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 14.—The Wilmington Clippers handed the Paterson Panthers a crushing 33-to-0 defeat today to gain the finals of the American Pro Football Association play-offs.

Bottling up the Panthers' vaunted aerial attack, the Clippers scored single touchdowns in each of the first three periods and topped off the victory with two more in the closing quarters on sensational runs of 32 and 68 yards by Paul Prettyman.

The first score came on a forward-lateral play good for 28 yards with Jack Ferrante going over.

Jersey City Goes To Final Round

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 14 (AP).—A 59-yard touchdown drive and an accurate boot for the extra point today gave the Long Island Indians a 7-to-6 victory over the Jersey City Giants and placed them in the final round of the American Professional Football Association play-offs.

John Rogalla kicked field goals of 22 and 33 yards for all the defending champions' points.

Sprints of 19 and 18 yards by Jules Koshlap, former Georgetown University star, featured the Long Island touchdown march in the third period. Fullback Joe Maddox went over from the 3 and Hayard Sanford booted the winning point.

Petworth C. A. Wins

With Johnny Mandez hitting the basket for 14 points, the Petworth Citizens Association five nosed out Greenbelt, 35 to 34, on the losers' court.

Olympics Tie Eagles, 2 to 2

By the Associated Press

Boston, Dec. 14.—The Boston Olympics and Washington Eagles battled to a 2-2 overtime tie today in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League duel in which the Boston team twice came from behind to deadlock the game.

By the deadlock Washington remained as the circuit's only team that the Olympics have failed to beat. The Eagles have won two and tied one of three matches.

Washington took a 1-0 lead at 3:35 of the opening period, despite the fact it was short-handed through a penalty to Defenseman Art Lessard. Paul Courteau put in the goal, unassisted, after pulling one of his patented sneaks through both enemy

Red Sox Beat Out Nats For Batting Honors

Ted Williams Officially Takes Individual Batting Title; Travis Finishes Second

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The reliable report of late September—that Ted Williams was the new batting champion with an average of .406—was authenticated yesterday by the American League's official statisticians who produced figures to substantiate the feat of the young Red Sox slugger.

The official 1941 averages were something of a compliment, too, to the Washington club in two respects. (1) the revelation that the Nats had the league's second-best team batting average and (2) that Cecil Travis was the man whom Williams beat for the league batting crown.

Travis, enjoying his peak year against American League pitching, slugged for an average of .359 to beat out Joe DiMaggio for runner-up honors by 2 points. However, he trailed the fancy-hitting Williams by 47 points.

Williams' super-clouting was a factor in the team batting triumph of the Red Sox, who led all clubs in collective hitting with a mark of .283, beating out the Nats by 11 points. Only the Red Sox and Washington clubs showed a team batting figure of more than .270. The pennant-winning New York Yankees finished third among the teams in hitting with a .269 figure, a point better than the Athletics.

Fourth in Runs

The Nats went to bat more than any club in the league and were fourth in run-scoring, a department led by the Red Sox, whose 865 runs were 35 more than the Yankees attained. In permitting opponents' runs, the Nats were fifth in the league, with the Yankees having the best record in that phase of play.

Washington made more hits than any club save the Red Sox, but the lack of power in the Nats' line-up is revealed by the table showing Washington fifth in total bases. The Nats were third in two-baggers, second to Cleveland in triples, and seventh in home runs. Washington compiled only 52 homers in contrast to the Yankees' league leadership with 151.

George Case's prolific stealing of bases lifted the Nats into second place among the teams in that department with the Chicago White Sox leading the league with 91 thefts. The Nats stole 79 bases. The White Sox were caught stealing 54 times, however, to win that dubious distinction of leadership.

Only .300 Hitter

Travis was the only Washington regular to hit more than .300, although Rookie Mickey Vernon missed that select circle by only one point in his first full year in the majors.

With his lofty .406 figure, Williams became the first American League hitter since 1923 (when Harry

Barons Whip Lions, 6 to 3; Goalie Is Star

By Jack Munhall

The fast-breaking, close checking Cleveland Barons put a temporary stop to Washington's hopes for the Eastern Division lead last night by smashing the Lions' two-match winning streak, 6-3, in an exciting American League encounter at Uline Arena.

Cleveland's victory coupled with New Haven's 4-3 defeat of Hershey gave the Barons the Western division lead over Hershey, by a single point.

Lashing out with a lightning-like first period offensive that netted three goals in seven minutes, the Barons were never headed as Goalie Bill Beveridge thrilled 2758 paying Barons with his superb stops that cut off many a potential Washington point.

Beveridge, subbing for the injured Moe Roberts, the veteran Barons' net tender who is rated one of the best in the circuit, kicked out 30 Washington shots, topping off his busy evening's work with 13 saves in the final period.

The Lions, with the exception of their first period lapse which helped Cleveland to a pair of goals within 33 seconds, played pretty good hockey.

Desilets Scores

Joffre Desilets, with two goals, and Les Cunningham, with a goal and two assists, were the top Cleveland scorers, while Lew Trudel rammed in a pair of nice shots for the Lions to remain in the thick of the individual scoring race.

Cleveland's devastating early barrage came without warning and a time when the Lions were threatening to inundate Beveridge with a flood of goals of their own. Beveridge, however, turned aside rushes by Jack Whittaker and Burt Janke, and then the Barons were off.

Cunningham grabbed the puck, carried it inside Washington territory and then relayed it to Desilets,

Rose Bowl Officials Suffer $264,000 Pain

By the Associated Press

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 14.—Cancellation of the annual Rose Bowl football game cast considerable disappointment today over this site of the historic New Year's Day classic, but the reason—the war—was thoroughly and patriotically understood by all.

Directors of the contest, recognized as the daddy of all post-season gridiron bowl games since its heretofore unbroken record started back in 1916, began immediate preparations for refunding deposits on more than 60,000 tickets, aggregating $264,000, which already had been sold.

Most of the tickets were of the $4.40 class, with boxes priced at $5.50 and some seats at $3.30.

Not only was the cancellation a disappointment to Athletic Director Percy Locey, who had planned to lead the first Oregon State College football team to the Rose Bowl, but it put a decided damper on Coach Wallace Wade of the other team, Duke.

This would have been the fifth time for Wade to bring a Southern team to the historic contest—three from Alabama and two from Duke—and he was especially anxious to avenge the 7-3 upset victory University of Southern California scored over his Blue Devils at their last appearance here in 1939.

Contest directors, who recently have had an office force of more than 30 persons working 12 hours a day mailing tickets and otherwise carrying out plans for the game, said the task of refunding the fans' money probably would start tomorrow. They estimated the work already has cost between $15,000 and $20,000.

The huge Rose Bowl, which normally seats 88,000 and can accommodate approximately 90,000 through use of auxiliary seats, will be idle on this New Year's Day for the first time since it was built in 1923. The game had been held for seven years prior to that, but was held in Tournament Park.

One game was played back in 1902 as an experiment, but it didn't prove satisfactory. No other contests were held until 1916.

In 1918 and 1919, when many of the college gridiron players were engaged in first World War

Byron Nelson, With 269, Wins Miami Open 2d Straight Time

Sub Par 66 Beats Hogan By 5 Strokes

Snead Has 275 In Annual $10,000 Golf Headliner; Worsham in Money

By the United Press

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14.—Defending Champion Byron Nelson, his game improving with every hole of the back nine, fired a par-shattering 66 today to defeat a star-studded field of professional golfers and capture top honors in the $10,000 Miami Open for the second successive year.

His 72-hole total of 269 was five strokes better than the card of Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., money-player who led the field for the first three days of the four-day tournament.

Nelson's great round, which included seven birdies, gave the Toledo, Ohio, star the top prize of $2500. Hogan, playing a ragged game today, had a 72, two over regulation figures, but his 72-hole total of 274 was good for second money—$1250.

Sam Snead Third

Sam Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., two-time winner of this tournament, blew his game after a brilliant start this morning but got a 69 for a 275 and third place—worth $1000.

Lewis Worsham was the only pro from Washington, D. C., to finish in the money, finishing with a three-over par 73 for a 289 total and $25. His other rounds were 69-73-74. Leo Walper missed by four shots with three 74s and a 71 in the second round for 293.

Nelson's game was, as he admitted, "just average" when he left the starting tee. He got into trouble several times on the front nine and came to the half-way point with a one over par 36. The tide turned on the twelfth, where he dropped a four-foot putt for a birdie three.

On the next hole, he canned a five-foot putt for another birdie and the gallery of more than 1500 knew that Nelson was "hot."

He parred the short fourteenth hole and then came through with another one-under-par on the 540-yard fifteenth. His game reached the peak on the next two holes as he chipped in from off the green on the sixteenth for a birdie two and repeated the performance on the next hole.

Nelson Repeats

It was only the second time in the 16-year history of the tournament that the same golfer had won it two years in succession. Gene Sarazen, who won the event each year from 1927 to 1931, was the only other man to turn the trick.

Hogan's performance was a disappointment to many of the gallery. The year's leading money winner, he had been considered the strongest threat in the record field of 214 this year.

Tied for fourth place with 277's were National Open Champion Craig Wood, now of Miami Beach, and Jim Ferrier, former Australian amateur champion, now a professional at Elmhurst, Ill., who received $650 each.

Ben Loving, of Miami Beach, finished next with 281 and received $500. Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., last year's runner-up, and Bill Heinlein, of Noblesville, Ind., tied for the next spot with 282's which were worth $350.

Picard, Smith Out

Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y.; Jack Grout, West Pittston, Pa.; Jack Patroni, Manchester, Vt., and Ed Wysowski, New York, were tied with 283.

Trailing the field were such "name" golfers as Ky Laffoon, Tommy Armour, Johnny Bulla, Henry Picard, Dutch Harrison, Sarazen and Horton Smith.

Bill Stembler, of Miami Beach, captured the trophy awarded the leading amateur. He had a 72-hole total of 290. One stroke behind was former National Amateur Champion Dick Chapman, of Coral Gables, Fla.

Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio, 203, 68—269, $2500.
Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., 202, 72—274, $1250.
Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., 206, 69—275, $1000.
Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 210, 67—277, $650.
Jim Ferrier, Elmhurst, Ill., 208, 69—277, $650.
Ben Loving, Miami, 214, 67—281, $500.
Bill Heinlein, Noblesville, Ind., 211, 71—282, $350.
Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., 215, 67—282, $350.
Edmund Wysowski, Kewanee, Ill., 214, 69—283, $212.50.
Jack Patroni, Manchester, Vt., 210, 73—283, $212.50.
Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y., 213, 70—283, $212.50.
Jack Grout, West Pittston, Pa., 212, 71—283, $212.50.
Frank Moore, Belleville, Ill., 213, 71—284, $112.50.
Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., 213, 71—284, $112.50.
Ky Laffoon, Chicago, 211, 73—284, 284, $112.50.
Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., 213, 71—284, $112.50.
Tommy Armour, Boca Raton, Fla., 210, 74—284, $112.50.
Billy Burke, Bellair, Fla., 213, 72—285, $75.
Tony Penna, Dayton, Ohio, 215, 71—286, $75.

Lorraine Gulli Again Takes Davis Sweeps

Lorraine Gulli won the Meyer Davis Sweepstakes, oldest women's duckpin tournament in Washington, for the eleventh time in 15 years yesterday with a ten-game score of 1234 at Lucky Strike Alleys. Miss Gulli's victory was worth $35 as only a small field of 26 competed.

Lucille Young was 56 pins back in second place with a 1178 total, worth $17.50. Miss Gulli had sets of 603 and 631 while Mrs. Young had 573 and 605.

Lucy Rose had block totals of 611 and 540 for 1151 and third place of $10. Ingomar Moen and Mabelle Hering tied for fifth place with 1144 scores and divided $13.

Gladys Lynn's consolation game prize of 125 in the first block was the highest of the tournament while Betty Lehman had 137 for high game out of the money in the second block. Corinne Hauser's 613 set and Ruth McClintic's 631 won consolation block prizes. The latter's 631 tied Miss Gulli's finishing five-game total for the highest of the day.

Miss Hauser was the first block leader with 613 to Mrs. Rose's 611 and the winner's 603. The 11-time champion took the lead at the eighth block and won easily, rolling 399 for the last four games. Miss Hauser had only 522 in the second block while Mrs. McClintic's opening 511 left her too far back despite her second five-game block.

Maple Leafs Whip Red Wings, 4 to 0

Detroit, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—The Toronto Maple Leafs routed the Detroit Red Wings, 4 to 0, in a National Hockey League game tonight.

Held to a close 1-to-0 lead until less than five minutes of the game remained, the Leafs loosed three quick goals to retain their league lead with a record of 11 wins and 4 losses.

Center Billy Taylor opened the Leafs' scoring late in the second quarter when he broke away from the entire Red Wing team and raced alone to the goal. Taylor scored again at 16:39 of hte third period on assists from Left Wing Dave Schriner and Right Wing Lorne Carr.

New York, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—The Montreal Canadians defeated the Brooklyn Americans tonight, 4-2, in a National Hockey League game before a crowd of 10,139 to drop the Brooklyn club to last place in the standings.

The Canadians scored three markers in the first period. Tony Graboski scored the first marker, Ken Reardon the second, and John Quilty the third.

2 New Stallions Join Trot Champs At Hanover Farm

By the Associated Press

Hanover, Pa., Dec. 14.—Hanover Farms, which has turned out some of the harness racing world's most celebrated champions, today claimed the greatest array of stallions ever collected under one roof, and co-owner H. G. Shepherd wouldn't be surprised if a super speedster results.

Arrival of Spencer Scott, world's champion trotting stallion, and Billy Direct, world's fastest harness horse and champion pacer, brought the farms' colony of trotters and pacers to ten with records of 2 minutes or better. Four Hambletonian winners are among the ten.

"We've always turned out good horses," declared Shepherd. "I wouldn't be surprised if we turned out some new sensations."

Hanover colts last season took 70 per cent of the stakes and futurities in which they were entered.

Bears' Five Beats Dodgers

The Washington Bears, colored professional court tossers, opened their season yesterday by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 46-33, at Turner's Arena.

With "Kid" Shaback and Ben Auerbach leading the way, the Dodgers were off to an early lead in the first of three periods, electrifying the crowd with overhand shots off the backboard, and nifty shots from sidecourt that ended the period in their favor, 18-10.

"Tarzan" Cooper, with two of his famous tap shots, and Sidat-Singh, with a couple of southpaw shots from scrimmage, evened the count at 18-all early in the second period, and from that point the Bears were never headed. Gershon, with two baskets from sidecourt, was the only Dodger able to count. The period ended, 31-22.

Johnny Isaacs and "Pop" Gates, former Renaissance players, in the final period, displayed their fancy work, sending loopers through the basket from various angles of the court, until the count stood 46-37, with five minutes to play, when the Bears froze the ball, to the delight of the fans, allowing Shaback only to add up an additional 6 points.

The Bears will engage the Bronx Yankees next Sunday afternoon at the Arena.

Marty Servo Challenges Red Cochrane

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 14.—Welterweight Champion Red Cochrane received his second "free challenge" in 24 hours today when Coast Guardsman Marty Servo, of Schenectady, N. Y., offered to donate his entire purse to the Coast Guard relief fund for a shot at Red's crown.

At Summit, N. J., where Cochrane is training for Friday's nontitle bout with Bobby Britton at Miami, Fla., Willie Gilzenberg, the champion's manager, said Cochrane could not consider any title defense until the national emergency lessened.

Gilzenberg explained that Cochrane had been concentrating on his new job as a boxing instructor in the United States Navy and could not possibly take time off to train for a championship fight.

Cochrane, a boatswain's mate, received a brief furlough to condition himself for the Britton bout.

Former Champion Fritzie Zivic, who was supposed to have an agreement for a return go with Cochrane, offered yesterday to fight it out for the title and to give to the Navy Relief Society any money he might make out of it. Zivic made the offer after fighting a ten-round draw with young Kid McCoy, of Detroit, Friday night.

Syracuse Grid Mentor Still Likes His Reversed Center

By Whitney Martin

Wide World Sports Columnist

New York, Dec. 14.—(Wide World)—Ossie Solem plans to stick to his rear-drive center idea at Syracuse next year. The genial mentor is satisfied with the way it worked out this year, and already is planning to embroider it a little to increase the effectiveness.

Solem's bustling pivot man faces away from the defense when he centers the ball, and this virtual sprinter's position provides an extra blocker in the backfield, as a fast man can pass the ball and pull out to join the interference.

Solem doesn't think the fact that an opposing center might come in on the beam so fast as to send the center scooting on his face is any handicap.

"Watch the centers closely in the moving pictures," he says. "You'll notice that about 75 per cent of the time a center, even the best of them, ends up on his nose after passing the ball. Our man might be pushed from the rear, but he'd have a better chance of retaining his balance than if he were pushed from the front.

"I'm sure we did better this year than we would have done with the center in the accepted position. For instance, I don't think we could have marched through Wisconsin, a bigger, stronger team, as we did were it not for our center being able to take part in the offense.

"A good, big, fast backfield man would make an ideal center under our system. We would have done even better this year had there not been the debate over the legality of the center's position."

Baseball is as much concerned over the lighting situation right now as it is over the possibility of so many young players entering the service that the rosters of minor league clubs would be sadly depleted.

The lighting situation has two angles. First, and particularly in the Southern States where there has been a shortage of rainfall which fills the reservoirs which provide the water which develops the power, there is a possibility that night games might be eliminated to conserve power.

And second, there is a possibility that leagues along the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards will be unable to play at night because the brilliantly lighted fields practically would be beacons for hostile aircraft.

And without night baseball, minor leagues would fold up like pocket knives. It was night baseball that was the savior of many a minor circuit. That, and major league clubs which poured in dollars and took the fall for losses when leagues were emitting their last gasp.

As for prospective player losses to the Army, the Brooklyn organization already has some 22 players in the service, and is receiving letters almost daily from farm youngsters saying they have joined up or their number is up in the draft.

And that's just one club and its farms.

Washington U. Grid Coaching Prospects Few

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Dec. 14.—They're looking for a football coach at the University of Washington.

The job became officially open after the dismissal Saturday of James Merlin Phelan, head coach for 12 years. Ousted with him were assistants Chester (Cotton) Wilcox and Ralph (Pest) Welch.

Irish Jimmy, ever a good man with a phrase, had just one statement about the severance. "It looks," he said, "like another Pearl Harbor job." Later, he added he would look for another position.

Athletic Director Ray Eckmann said he had not the slightest idea who the new coach would be.

Olson Suggested

Twelve hours after the dismissal, only one favorite-son nomination had been made. Sports Editor Dan Walton of the Tacoma, Wash., News-Tribune suggested Cliff Olson, coach of the finest small college offensive College team near Tacoma. The Lutherans have lost only one game in two years and have run up one of the finest small collge offensive records in the country.

For any coach, the Washington job is a make-or-break spot. Since 1908, there have been five coaches, three of them holding sway for 30 of the 33 years. And the shadow of Gilmore Dobie is the liveliest ghost in the stadium. Gloomy Gil, in nine years from 1908, won 58 games, tied 2 and lost none. Enoch Bagshaw, here for years in the roaring twenties, never did as well, but he did win 63, against 6 ties and 22 losses.

Phelan, fresh from a Big Ten championship at Purdue, arrived in 1930 with a touch of braggadocio. "If teams aren't tough," he said, "we don't want to play them."

Faced Tough Ones

He proved his boast the last four years, opening three times against Minnesota, and once against Pittsburgh in the first year of deemphasis for the Panthers. Washington did not win but it played. His all-time Washington record was 65 wins, 9 ties and 36 losses. Washington won the Pacific Coast Conference title in 1936 and lost to Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl January 1, 1937; finished in the first division most of the time and was never at the bottom. Since the Round Robin schedule was started in 1936, Phelan's teams rank first in composite conference standings for 1936 through 1941.

Washington supporters liked playing big teams. They cried loudly when they learned Minnesota was off the 1942 schedule. But they also liked a winner. Several times, Washington has been picked as a pre-season Coast favorite. But Stanford spoiled things in 1940 and three teams spoiled them again this year. Phelan's teams developed a tendency to win the tough ones and lose the set-ups. And the Rose Bowl honors went elsewhere.

Waldorf Bows To British, 1-0

The Washington-British soccer team clung to second place in the Washington Suburban Soccer League yesterday by downing Waldorf, 1-0, at Gonzaga Field. Regal, meanwhile, had little trouble holding its lead with a 5-2 edge on Maryland Sport Club at Piney Grove, Marlboro, in the only other game, nosed out Sandy Spring, 2-1.

Ship Executive Wins Rich 'Chase

Agua Caliente, Mex., Dec. 14 (AP).—Ship Executive, 9-year-old son of Man O' War, won the $1000 Coronado Steeplechase today to inaugurate the winter steeplechase season at the Agua Caliente track.

Ship Executive came in a length ahead of Yammer in the 2-mile race over 13 jumps, and returned $8.60, $4 and $2.20. He was an entry of Mrs. R. H. Crawford, of Baltimore, Md.

Yammer paid $11.40 and $8.80. Notley, third, returned $4.60.

G. W. to Be Underdog Against Oklahomans

JOHNNY NEWMAN, OKLAHOMA AGGIE GUARD

All of District's Unbeaten Teams to Face Major Opposition; Aggies Here Wednesday

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The District's big three college court teams and two members of the Mason-Dixon Conference got by their season's openers last week, Maryland in surprise fashion, but the odds are against all five of the unbeaten teams continuing their pace through this week's heavy pre-Christmas card.

All of them will doubtless be underdogs in their major tests of the week: George Washington against Oklahoma Aggies at Riverside; Georgetown at Temple, Maryland at West Virginia; Catholic U. at Loyola and American vs. Georgetown on Tuesday. In addition Columbus opens its schedule this week but hardly figures to get by Rider. Gallaudet is the only local team to meet defeat thus far.

George Washington has the hardest task of the lot in Coach Hank Iba's Aggie five, whose 39-30 defeat by last year's Metropolitan champion C. C. N. Y. five Saturday night in Madison Square Garden was no disgrace. City College has been touted as a repeater for the Greater New York court crown.

The Oklahoma Aggies' Friday night victory over the highly regarded Niagara outfit looked even more impressive yesterday when Niagara handed Villanova a 15-point defeat. The Philadelphians had previously been regarded as one of the East's better clubs.

Meet G. W. Wednesday

The Missouri Valley Conference quintet will meet St. Joe's in Philadelphia tonight in the feature of a double-header which includes Temple and Oregon. They will rest here Tuesday in preparation for Wednesday's 8:45 meeting with the Colonials in the first Riverside Stadium game of the season.

George Washington looked a bit rough in its opener with Wake Forest on Saturday but it's a safe bet that they will be ready for the Oklahomans after a few practice sessions with Coach Bill Reinhart today and tomorrow. Reinhart expects to scout the Aggies tonight in Philadelphia.

Maryland's surprising victory over Richmond Saturday night indicates that Burt Shipley may have some sophomore wonders at College Park. They will receive another road test tonight against a doubtful quantity in William and Mary in Williamsburg and should they get by the Indians will really be up against it Friday against West Virginia at Cumberland. The Terps have already won more conference games than they won last season.

Georgetown's 66-point total against Western Maryland last week despite the usual rough edges of an opening game performance makes it look bad for American U. tomorrow night at Tech High, but it will be a different story when they meet the Temple Owls in half of a Philly double bill on Saturday.

Needs Reserves

Coach Elmer Ripley apparently wasn't kidding when he said he had a good first club but was dubious as to his reserves. He used his starting five mixed with Danny Gabbianelli, last year's high-scoring freshman, for 37 of the 40 minutes against the Green Terrors. If his big six can maintain a 40-minute pace against the Owls, Georgetown may remain unbeaten going into the big G. W. game January 15.

Catholic University's young club, lacking height and college experience, managed to get by with three-point margins over Mount St. Mary's and Gallaudet but the Cardinals go against the class of their conference tonight in Loyola of Baltimore and Coach Carmen Pirro is merely hoping for the best.

Columbus, after a 10-year absence in District college court circles, takes on Potomac State, Rider and Lockhaven Teachers from Wednesday through Saturday, with Thursday open. Coach Ben Kail is working with a squad dominated by local boys. Rider has a basketball reputation among the bigger schools but the other two should be in Columbus' class.

Clark Willing To Coach Illini If He's Called

By the Associated Press

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 14.—George (Potsy) Clark, once an assistant coach at the University of Illinois, is willing to return to his alma mater as head coach if he's wanted.

Clark, now coach of the University of Grand Rapids, a school with an enrollment of about 400, said here today he had not been contacted by Illini athletic officials seeking a successor to Bob Zuppke, nor had he made application for the job. Then he added:

"However, if Illinois wants me and believes I am the man for the job, I'd probably accept."

Clark said he had been informed unofficially that the Illinois athletic committee intends to interview many of the scores of applicants before reaching a decision.

Clark, whose quarterbacking on the 1914 and 1915 Illinois teams ranked him as one of the Illinois football greats, coached the backfield one year under Zuppke, in 1919. Later he coached at Michigan State College, University of Kansas, Butler University and three professional teams, Portsmouth, Detroit and Brooklyn. He accepted his present post in December, 1939.

"I like my position in Grand Rapids," Clark added, "and whatever may happen in the future is up to the committee at Illinois."

Richmond Defeats Kenosha, 29 to 13

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Richmond Arrows, with former University of Tennessee gridders taking leading roles, beat the Kenosha, Wis., Cardinals 29-13 here today before a crowd of about 3000.

Twenty-three of the Arrows' points were scored by Lex-Vols. Sammy Bartholomew, Don Edmiston and Web Hubbell made touchdowns, Ray Graves added a field goal and a placement, and Bob Suffridge another placement.

U. C. L. A. Squad Leaves for Florida

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP).—The University of California at Los Angeles football team left today by train for Jacksonville where it will play the University of Florida Saturday. Thirty-three players are making the trip.

Rifle Club Elects

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 14.—Garnett Shipley has been elected president of the Martinsburg Rifle and Pistol Club. Other officers named were Charles G. Aul, vice president; Ronald Batterson, secretary-treasurer, and Floyd Mauck, executive officer.

Bethesdans Top School Title Hopefuls

If such a thing is settled at all this year, the 1941-42 schoolboy basketball championship of Washington will go to one of five or six teams which can already be named. This despite the fact the season is only a week old, several clubs haven't played a game yet, and none of the 25 eligible quintets in this vicinity have played more than three times.

Public school fives already have been eliminated from action in the tournament which annually caps local scholastic competition. The recently announced decision of the superintendent of schools' office to abide strictly by a no-postseason game rule kills interhigh chances for the title. It also destroys Roosevelt's hopes of defending the Duke University tournament crown in Durham, N. C.

By further elimination of teams whose play to date has revealed excessive weaknesses, real contenders are cut to a select few. These are Gonzaga, the defending champion; St. John's, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Montgomery Blair, Washington-Lee and possibly George Washington, of Alexandria. The latter's real strength will not be known until all its eligible players report.

Barons Boast Edge

At this writing the Barons of Bethesda-Chevy Chase have the edge. Three straight triumphs are behind the charges of Coach Al Vogt which suffered a first-round beating at Durham last year as Roosevelt's Rough Riders romped to the title. Included in that record is a 33-31 margin over the same Rough Riders, achieved in a third extra period.

The Barons' power will get an acid test this week in two games, with Coolidge tomorrow and with Eastern on Friday. It was Coolidge's young club which upset Gonzaga, 23-19, last week, and Eastern is expected to have one of the best of public school fives, though it has yet to enter formal competition. If the Barons survive these threats their capture of the city title will be almost a foregone conclusion.

The Week's Schedule:
MONDAY
Gonzaga at Roosevelt, 3:30.
C. H. M. A. at Friends School, 3:30.
TUESDAY
Bethesda-C. C. at Coolidge, 3:30.
Tech at Washington-Lee, 3:30.
Georgetown Prep at Wilson, 3:30.
G. W. High at Eastern, 3:30.
WEDNESDAY
Coolidge vs. G. W. Frosh, Riverside, 7:30.
Woodward at Chamberlain, 3:30.
THURSDAY
Central at G. W. High, 3 p. m.
Baltimore C. C. at Wilson, 3:30.
Stanley (Va.) High at Wash.-Lee, 3 p. m.
FRIDAY
Eastern at Bethesda-C. C., 3:30.
Western at Gonzaga, 3:30.
Tech at Blair, 3 p. m.
C. H. M. A. at Woodward, 3:30.
Alumni at Mount Rainier, 7:30.
Tripleet (Va.) at Wash.-Lee, 3 p. m.

Royal Business Meets Eight Rivals at Charles Town Today

Final Week Card Lures Best Horses

Rough Time, Saran And Others to Tackle 'Queen;' Card Also To Test Roman Boy

The highly successful Charles Town fall meeting enters its final six-day span today and President Albert J. Boyle has expressed the opinion that business and interest will remain at a high pitch.

Although the track took a severe soaking on Saturday from the snow, sleet and rain, Track Superintendent Henry Erickson's crew continued their 24-hour vigil in order to keep the racing strip in the best possible condition for today's program.

Racing Secretary Fred Burton, who has been presenting high-class cards during the first 12 days, has come up with another well-balanced seven-race program. The headline attraction will be the Russ Hodges Trophy Purse and Radio Station WOL, of Washington, D. C. will present the winning owner with a $25 Defense Bond.

"Queen" to Race

Prominent in the field named overnight are Capt. Evart Johnston's consistent mare Royal Business, "The Queen of Charles Town" set a new standard for one and one-eighth miles in her last effort on December 10.

Royal Business' task on Monday will be far from an easy one as she must face E. M. Johnson's Rolious, winner of the Chateau Martin Handicap, Mrs. J. Y. Christmas' Rough Time, easy winner of the Rome Schwagel purse, and R. B. Hall's Residue, clever victor of last two efforts during the present meeting.

The remainder of the field includes J. Barkley's Irish Lancer, A. V. Galotta's Saran, B. T. Pitts' Five o' Four, J. Menendez's Clapair and Mrs. W. B. Arndt's Bold Risk.

Test for Roman Boy

Limit fields have been named for the other six events. In the first race, the Charles Town sprint champion, Roman Boy, will be on display. The son of Ha Ha will meet a field that may make him sorry he didn't stay in the stall. Last Bet, a winner at this track and something of a dash king at Pascoag last fall, will be in action as will Junior Prom, a front-running winner last week. Other speedsters slated to march postward are Dainty Ford, Paper Girl, Roving Eye and Phair Ydler.

After today's card only two handicaps remain on the program, one on Wednesday and another on Saturday. These races as well as today's Russ Hodges Purse will be broadcast by Walter Haight and Grant Pollock over a hook-up that includes Washington's WOL, Frederick's WFMD and Winchester's WINC.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Jockey Sammy Palumbo has packed his tack and will not ride again at this meeting. He will spend the winter at his farm in nearby Pennsylvania. While the veteran has ridden winners during the session here he has lacked spark. The Italian-American rider isn't getting any younger and cold weather riding hasn't agreed with him in recent years. Then again, the competition is keener at the December sessions. Another rider who has bid goodby to the meeting is Apprentice Joe Dattilo. He left for his home in St. Louis while topping the jockeys at the meeting. He plans to visit with his parents and then travel to Florida. Two birthdays were celebrated last Saturday at the track. It was the natal day of Charles J. Gormley, jr., of the official family and of Danny Scocca, the Washington jockey who rode six winners last week. By the way, today is Art Brown's birthday. He is 76. Eddie McCann, of the Racing Form staff, is on the mend after undergoing an appendectomy in a Martinsburg hospital. W. J. Daly will ship the stable of Mrs. Helene W. Boyle to Hot Springs after this meeting and the unit will be rested until the Oaklawn meeting begins. Last Saturday's feature race was named "The Spirit of Jefferson" in honor of the oldest weekly newspaper in the State of West Virginia. The first edition was printed in 1844. Trainer Sid Boniface, who had a successful season on the Maryland milers, was a visitor and said he would ship horses owned by Henry Hecht and E. G. Hackney to winter quarters at Columbia, S. C. Ice on the wires made communication out of Charles Town a difficult task last Saturday. The telephone and telegraph companies put up a game battle. Walter Haight is still trying to figure out if anybody heard him chewing the fat over the radio. Walter Haight, the colt, is still chewing, unmindful of the high price of hay and oats. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—ROMAN BOY is the champion of this abbreviated sprint route and is the natural pick in any company hereabouts. LAST BET won last out and is dangerous. JUNIOR PROM had all kinds of speed in that victory here last week and will be a keen factor.

Second race—PIPER'S TUNE breaks off the rail and may make the most of that position. ERIN'S GIRL has been close consistently this fall and is likely to close with a rush. YANKEE LAD belongs close with this kind.

Third race—SARANITE turned in a good effort last out and will be at home in the going. Needs only the right ride. CHIEF CHEROKEE promises to have the track he loves and will be close. JEANE JOCK for the minor award.

Fourth race—IN PORT probably will like the off going and will be a tough one to beat in this sprint. SCOOTIE gets in light and is dangerous. MISTY EYE has speed and belongs close.

Fifth race—BECOMLY is the class of this field and I see no reason for mistakes. BUTCHER BOY is a dangerous contender and has a good Bowie race as a recommendation. GLITTER GIRL for the minor award.

Sixth race—ROUGH TIME is likely to go to the front of these and should stay there. He has class and will be at home in the rough going. RELIOUS is fit as hands make horses and is a threat. ROYAL BUSINESS will not have her fast track but belongs in the money circle.

Seventh race—ALIMONY KID was kidding us last out. I'm going to give this one another chance. SAY JUDGE is consistent and belongs in the first flight in this field. HOT MAN for the show end.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take JUNE DATE, STADIUM and DARK FRIEND.

Uline Arena Unveils Mat Card Tonight

Goldie Ahearn comes back as a wrestling promoter at Uline's Arena tonight when he teams up with Jack Pfefer in the promotion of a five-event novelty show at 8:30 o'clock.

For their first show Ahearn and Pfefer have rounded out an attractive wrestling program. Double features headlining the show and restricted to a one-hour time limit are to bring together Bobby Bruns, American claimant of the world's heavyweight, vs. The Swedish Angel and Tony Martinelli vs. Karol Krauser.

he fiery Martinelli and smooth-working Krauser wrestled to a spectacular two-hour draw here two years ago. The scientific and popular Bruns will be favored to wear down and defeat the rougher working Swedish Angel, whose claims to the title of the world's ugliest human remains unchallenged.

A probable show-stealer revolves around a riotous wrestling royal in which 260-pound Abe Simon, hero of a 13-round stand against World's heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis, will be installed as referee and empowered with the right to use his fists.

This free-for-all, hampered by few restrictions, will involve Chief Bamba Tabu, Seminole Indian; Pierre DeGlane, champion of France; King Kong Marshall, Oklahoma cowboy, and Adolf Von Schacht, monacled Austrian.

Not until 12:11 of the second period was Boston able to score on Leith Dickie. Then Chaisson connected on passes from Dumond and Gronsdal.

Most of the action came in the last period as Les Hickey sent the Eagles out in front again, at 1:02, with the help of Len Burrage and Kenny Ullyot, only to see the Olympics flash back 11 seconds later to tie the count on a marker by Jack Wade, assisted by McGill.

Thereafter both defenses tightened up to the extent that both teams had difficulty working the puck into scoring position. Courteau left the match in the third period when he received a leg cut that required three stitches.

Rovers Win, 5-4, Over Johnstown

By the United Press

New York, Dec. 14.—The New York Rovers defeated the Johnstown Blue Birds, 5-4, in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League game here this afternoon before a crowd of 12,846.

Each team scored once in the opening period and the Rovers had a 2-1 lead at the end of the second session. However, all the action was confined to the final stanza which saw three tallies by each side and eight penalties, three of them majors.

Orioles Defeat Skeeters, 5 to 4

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles tonight defeated the River Dale, N. J., Skeeters 5 to 4 in a nip and tuck Eastern Amateur Hockey League match that was tied up twice in the late stages.

The Orioles scored three times in the opening period and twice in the third. River Vale registered once each in the first and second periods and twice in the third.

Crimmins Leads Duckpin Tourney

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP).—Johnny Crimmins, of Detroit, held his lead tonight as the all-star bowling tournament neared its conclusion, with 10 games yet to be rolled by all 12 contestants. Crimmins had won 29, lost 15 and tied 1 game through the 45-game mark early this evening. Second was Joe Norris, of Detroit.

Lew Jenkins, Sammy Angott Fight for Title

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 14.—Champions and former champions will attract the attention of fight fans throughout the country on this week's national boxing program.

Lew Jenkins, the Sweetwater, Tex., boy who holds the New York and California version of the lightweight title, and Sammy Angott, of Washington, Pa., who is recognized as champion by the N. B. A., top the list. They meet in a 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden Friday night. The winner will be recognized as undisputed world's champion.

The semifinal brings together Petey Scalzo, former N. B. A. featherweight titleholder, and Allie Stolz in an eight-rounder.

"Pittsburgh" Jackie Wilson, who recently won the N. B. A. featherweight crown, meets Richard Lemos, the man he beat for the crown in a 12-round title go at Los Angeles Tuesday.

Freddie (Red) Cochrane, who dethroned Fritzie Zivic as the welterweight champion, goes in a ten-round nontitle bout against Bobby Britton at Miami, Fla., Friday.

Here and there of importance: Ken Overlin meets Mose Brown at Pittsburgh tomorrow, and at Cleveland Thursday a dual card shows Billy Soose against Jimmy Reeves, of Cleveland, and Mike Kaplan tackling Jackie Wilson, of Los Angeles. All of these are ten-rounders.

Durham Seeking Duke-Oregon State

Rose Bowl game in a city other than Pasadena.

So far Soldier Field at Chicago, and Durham, N. C., home of Duke University, have been mentioned as possibilities. Duke officials suggested Durham.

"We are open to any sound proposition to hold the game at some inland city, said Percy Locey, Oregon State College graduate manager. This is the first year in its history that Oregon State won a place in the Rose Bowl game.

Police Defeat Michelbach

Alexandria Police Five, one of three co-leaders in the Heurich Amateur Basketball League, was extended the limit to stay on top yesterday, nosing out Michelbach Furniture, 42-38, in the Heurich gym.

The Policemen were never able to get far ahead, but they led at the half, 23-17.

Senate Beer and Jacobsen Florists also retained their top standings, the first by outscoring Jewish Community Center, 58-47, and the second by swamping the Northeast Falcons, 45-29.

Boesch Meets Fraley on Mat

By way of rounding up the best wrestling talent available in supporting bouts for the feature match between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, the former world's titleholder, and Big Jim Henry (Green Hornet), Promoter Joe Turner yesterday announced the booking of two strong scraps for Thursday night's benefit show at Turner's Arena.

The Washington Post Neediest Family Fund is benefiting from the mat card to the extent of 10 per cent of the proceeds, and Promoter Turner stated that he would leave no stone unturned to get the best for this Christmas Cheer show.

In the semiwindup Pat Fraley, the veteran Pacific Coast ace, and Paul Boesch, the Long Beach, Long Island, adonis, will fight it out, with indications that the winner may be pitted against the winner of the Lewis-Henry battle in the very near future.

In a special 30-minute bout Lou Plummer, the Baltimore bad boy, who worked to a 30-minute draw last week with Leo Numa, erstwhile University of Washington football star, will meet Len Macaluso, former All-American footballer from Colgate and leading scorer of the Nation in his senior year.

Promoter Turner announced that he had received word from Strangler Lewis that he had gone into intensive training for the match with The Hornet.

activities, the games were between service teams. The Marine Corps defeated Camp Lewis, Washington, 19 to 7 in 1918, and the following year a Great Lakes Naval Training Station team beat a Marine aggregation 17 to 0. Each contest was witnessed by approximately 25,000 spectators.

College games were resumed in 1929 with Harvard trouncing Oregon 7 to 6.

Sacred Heart Five Loses In Upset, 18-9

Sacred Heard, defending champion in the Parochial School Basketball League which opened yesterday at Gonzaga and St. John's gyms, was the upset victim of a clever Blessed Sacrament five, 18-9, on the Gonzaga floor.

In other clashes at the same site Holy Name romped over St. Joseph's, 20-7; St. Aloysius nosed out Lady of Lourdes, 17-13; St. James scored a near-shutout over St. Michaels, 23-3; and St. Gabriel swamped St. Anthony, 18-4.

Action at St. John's was featured by St. Matthews' 31-4 trouncing of Holy Trinity.

Barons Defeat Lions by 6 to 3 who ghosted through the Lions' defense and beat Goalie Paul Gauthier with a waist-high hooker.

This was at 2:20. Thirty-three seconds later the Barons had made it 2-0, with Desilets feeding the rubber to Cunningham for a goal highly similar to the one he had just made.

The ensuing four minutes were scoreless but at 6:54 Cleveland ran its advantage to 3-0. But Cook counting on a like-annointed long shot that bounced in off Gauthier's stick. The Washington goalie flung his pole in front of the chest-high shot and the puck struck the stick a glancing blow.

Opening the second period, Washington broke through for its first score. Trudel registered it at 1:57 on a spectacular solo dash through the entire Cleveland team. Mysteriously, the scorer credited Stu Smith and Peggy O'Neil with assists.

Barons Come Back

The Barons retaliated almost immediately. Don Deacon swooped in close to the net, to loft the second rebound past a prostrate Gauthier. Previously the Washington goalie had saved off Jake Milford and Earl Bartholomew who were given assists.

Smith, who scored three goals Saturday night as Washington beat Philadelphia, made the Lions' second point with the help of Alex Singbush and Trudel. After one Washington sortie had ended with Trudel knocking the puck out of the Cleveland defensive zone into neutral ice, Singbush set up a nealty timed play. He gave the puck to Smith as the latter skated hard over the line and Smith beat Beveridge at 12:44.

Whatever hopes Washington rooters might have had of a comeback victory faded quickly in the final period when Cunningham counted at 2:39, Locking assisting and Desilets punched in his second at 9:19, Cunningham again assisting. Trudel's second marker slid in at 10:49, O'Neil getting an assist.

Connie Tudin, who returned to the Lions from Les Canadiens only Saturday, played on defense, supplanting the injured Allen Shields.

Buffalo Trips Philadelphia, 2 to 0

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Buffalo Bisons defeated the Philadelphia Rockets tonight, 2-0, before 7,309 fans in the first meeting this season between these American Hockey League rivals.

Dede Klein opened the scoring in the first period, after a three-man rally with Max Bennett and Jack Toupin. The Bisons added their second goal 28 seconds after the opening of the second period.

REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR!

Italian Prince Is Taken Off Clipper by FBI

PRINCE TORLONIA.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—An American relative of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, of Rome, disclosed today that Federal agents had seized the 29-year-old Italian noble as he was prepared to leave the country.

His aunt, Mrs. Charles A. Moore, of Greenwich, Conn., described as "outrageous" his arrest and internment at Ellis Island with 502 other persons the Federal Government has rounded up as "suspicious enemy aliens."

The prince is the son of the late Don Marino Torlonia, Duke of Poli and Prince di Civitella Cesi, and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, of New York City, formerly of Brooklyn, who divorced the young prince's father in 1928 and regained American citizenship.

Prince Torlonia was permitted to fly to this country three weeks ago to visit his mother, who is still critically ill in her Park Avenue apartment. Warring powers cut red tape to permit his entry, and Britain assured him safe passage.

Mrs. Moore said her nephew was seized by Federal officers who "simply took him to Ellis Island."

N. J. Gas Blast Kills Workman, Injures Four

Edgewater, N. J., Dec. 14 (AP).—A blast, felt throughout the metropolitan area, killed a workman at Spencer Kellogg & Sons today, injured about 40 other persons, none seriously, and caused much property damage.

Archibald Sandford, 34, of Englewood, was blown to bits, police said, when a tank used for storing hydrogen gas exploded. Police said the company had defense orders for the gas, manufactured in a two-story brick building as a byproduct. The company makes linseed oil products.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and naval intelligence officers were investigating. No cause was determined immediately. B. F. Wood, plant superintendent, said the company loss would probably rise to $250,000 if they were unable to replace machinery.

Some 200 homes in Edgewater, North Bergen and Cliffside Park had windows blown out or were otherwise damaged. Sandford was to have become a member of the Englewood fire department tomorrow after six years' employment at Kellogg. He was to have quit work at 8 p.m.

Trumbull White, Editor, Dies at 73

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Trumbull White, 73, former magazine editor, author and explorer, died yesterday after a short illness.

White, a native of Winterset, Ia., began his career as a newspaperman in Chicago, covered the Cuban insurrection of 1897 and made several exploring trips to Asia.

Senator's Two Sons Named Cadet Officers

Two sons of Senator William H. Smathers (Democrat), of New Jersey, have been named officers in the cadet corps at the Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Va., it was announced yesterday.

Jay B. Smathers has been appointed a captain and his brother, Ben F., has been appointed platoon sergeant. The Smathers family lives at the Mayflower Hotel.

Other youths from Washington and vicinity who have been appointed officers in the corps include:

Rutland D. Beard, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Beard, 4708 Chevy Chase Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Md., corporal; Frederick W. Berens, jr., son of F. W. Berens, 324 East-West Highway, Chevy Chase, first lieutenant; James V. Middleton, son of Charles W. Middleton, 2446 North Ohio, Arlington, corporal; Guy R. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith, 1630 Harvard Street Northwest, corporal, and Mason D. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Thomas, 1620 North Ade Street, Arlington, first sergeant.

Sarah B. Brooks, Wife of Retired Newsman, Dies

Mrs. Sarah Bernetta Brooks, 78, wife of T. Howard Brooks, retired Washington newspaperman, died last night at her home, 2821 Twenty-eighth Street Northwest, following a long illness.

A native of the District and a former school teacher here, Mrs. Brooks was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Henry McNantz.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Dr. Richmond A. Brooks; four nieces, Mrs. Louise Underwood, Mrs. Lee Sudwarth, the Misses Anne and Louise Repetti; seven nephews, Frank, Charles and Harry Underwood, and Joseph, Fred, Vincent and Edward Repetti.

Services will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. in St. Thomas Apostle Catholic Church, 2661 Woodley Road Northwest, with interment to follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Clagett Funeral Scheduled Today

Funeral services for John E. Clagett, 83, of Gaithersburg, Md., retired farmer, who died on his farm near Gaithersburg Saturday after a long illness, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Grace Methodist Church, Gaithersburg. The Rev. William J. Elliott, pastor of the church, will officiate and burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg.

Mr. Clagett was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clagett and lived his entire life on the farm. His father also was born and died there. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Spencer Ward, Darnestown, Md., and Miss Estelle Clagett, Gaithersburg, and seven grandchildren. He was the father of the late Rev. Raymond B. Clagett, who at the time of his death about a year ago was pastor of the Methodist Church at Fredericksburg, Va.

Nazi Religious Affairs Head Dies

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 14 (AP).—Dr. Hans Kerrl, German minister of religious affairs since 1935, died in Berlin, D. N. B. reported tonight.

After the war of 1914-18, he entered the National-Socialist Party, and in 1928 became a member of the Prussian legislature. He was elected president of that body a year before the Nazis took over. The then chancellor, Franz Von Papen, named him Reich Commissioner for Prussia. From this post he went to Prussian justice commissioner under Hitler; then Prussian minister of justice; Reichminister without Portfolio, in June, 1934, and to his post as minister for church affairs in July, 1935.

Flier Lets Jap Bomber Escape, To Doom—as He Expected

By the United Press

Manila, Dec. 14.—A nonchalant American airman drove an unsuspecting Japanese bomber downward Friday into a crash against the volcanic rocks of Corregidor Island, at the entrance of Manila Bay, it was learned today.

Corregidor lay immediately beneath a low-hanging cloud bank when the American, apparently a naval fighter, caught up with the bomber just above the clouds.

The Japanese, unable to escape, took a fast dive into the cloud bank.

The American, familiar with the locality, ceased his pursuit, slowly dropped beneath the clouds and landed on the sea alongside the heavily fortified island.

A soldier from Fort Mills shouted from the shore, asking what was wrong.

"I was following a Jap bomber when he drove downward," the pilot replied. "I didn't have to follow because I knew there was a rockpile underneath.

"Let's look around."

A short search broght them to the wreckage.

The bomber had smasked squarely into the rocks of Corregidor beneath the cloud bank.

While the soldier gaped, the pilot took off and returned to the sky, where he gave further help in breaking up the Japanese attack.

Mutual Aid Plan

By Roger W. Babson

Solving Farm and Rail Problems

"I wish I had the pull with the county agent that John Jones on the other side of town has" . . . "The present plan of helping agriculture is very unfair to the honest farmer" . . . "I got a check for $125 today for doing something which I have done every year for 20 years." . . . "Can't some farm aid plan be devised of which the crooks cannot take advantage, something not only foot-proof but gurglar-proof?"

ROGER W. BABSON

The above are a few extracts from letters recently received. As a result, I have been studying the farm problem. I find that the Federal Government is now returning each year about one billion dollars to the farmers in the form of various kinds of bonuses. Politics, carelessness, and even injustices have crept into this distribution. These troubles can increase every year until pandemonium reigns. The distribution of this money can become so complicated and create so much hard feeling—neighbor against neighbor and all against the Government—Congress will sometime lose its patience and wipe out the whole business. It is for the interests of farmers, therefore, to quit the policy of "Let's get all we can while the getting is good!" Instead they should seek some fool-proof simple method of accomplishing better results with more fairness and less waste.

The problem has become further complicated by President Roosevelt allowing the railroad employes a wage increase of $325,000,000 with the sub-rosa promise to the railroads of a further rate increase when lower freight rates are needed. I, therefore, want to tell of a plan which will save both the farmers and the railroads. I will call it the Prince Plan after the name of Frederick Prince who first suggested it. It should interest every taxpayer as well as every farmer and railroad bondholder. Politicians, however, will not like it; neither may some county agents and labor leaders.

Instead of paying the farmer on the present set-up which encourages him to plant as little as possible, the Prince plan allows him to plant all he wishes, but gives him a reduction in railroad rates and protection against unfair foreign competition Interview 100 farmers and 95 of them will tell you that they could make a fair profit on their products if it were not for transportation costs. The difficulty is that the farmers, fruit growers, and live stock raisers are suffering from too high freight rates. In many instances the freight amounts to more than the price of the product at the farm. This plan also gives farmers freedom to raise what they wish and to sell for what they wish.

The railroads will reply: "But we are as hard up as the farmers. Just now we are making money; but after the war we will be in worse condition than ever. We need higher, rather than lower, freight rates. To add to our troubles our railroad employes have now been given a raise which will cost us over 300 million dollars more a year." I reply by saying that we do not want the railroads to lose a dollar. The Government should send the railroads a check each month equal to the amount the railroads reduce their freight rates for the benefit of the farmers and increase their wages for the benefit of the brotherhoods.

As you see, this lower-freight rate plan has several advantages: (1) It treats all farmers alike, whether Republicans of Democrats. (2) It eliminates arguments with the county agents. (3) It greatly reduces the cost of supervision. (4) It saves taxpayers' money. In short, instead of having to get information from millions of farmers and mail millions of checks, it would be necessary for the Government only to mail a few hundred checks. Under this plan all parties—farmers, railroads, labor and consumers would be better off. In the end, the farmers' well-being and the Nation's well-being are one and the same thing. Only as more is produced, is there more to divide in the form of wages, salaries, interest on savings accounts, and dividends.

The whole system of restricting production to build up prices, or of raising railroad freight rates to increase income, is "cock-eyed." We get richer as a Nation only as we produce more and reduce costs, not as we produce less and raise prices, wages, or freight rates. The farmer, who is willing to live out on the prairie away from the advantages of the city, should receive some compensation for doing this. The natural way to compensate him is through rebating freight rates, not by raising them. Perhaps my best argument in favor of this plan is the fact that most market gardeners, fruit growers, and others living close to the cities are making money now. In other words, it is the freight rates that are raising havoc with the farmers and now we are talking about raising them more!

Some exporting bounty that will protect the farmer from foreign competition should also be considered, perhaps something like the McNary-Haugen bill. This provides a certain rebate, or subsidy, on what is sold abroad below a reasonable price. No politics or unfairness could work into such a program. The Government knows exactly what is being exported and where it is going. They can base checks thereon and distribute the money, as Senator McNary has so well worked out. The details of this I am not now discussing. The two, however, must go together. One is the "lock" and the other is the "key"; one the "hatchet" and the other the "handle."

Metals Inventor Dies at New Haven

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14 (AP).—Dr. Charles H. Howland-Shearman, 75, inventor who developed a method of applying tremendous pressures to bring about the cold flow of metals, died today after a long illness.

Dr. Howland-Shearman went to England in 1935 and used his principle in building a precision press which involved five million pounds of pressure. Associates here said the press was being used "somewhere in England" to turn out aircraft parts and armor plate. Since his return to the United States, the inventor designed a similiar press here which has not yet been built, and was experimenting in the development of steels able to withstand enormous pressures.

Hoover's Funeral Set for Tonight

Memorial Services Are Held by Elks

Annual memorial services were held by Columbia Lodge and Morning Star Lodge of colored Elks last night, the former at John Wesley Church, and the latter at Shiloh Baptist Church. Columbia Temple and Forest Temple, and the auxiliary units, drill teams, bands and nurse corps joined in the rites.

Eulogies of the deceased were delivered at the Columbia Lodge and temple ceremony by Mrs. Julia West Hamilton, and at the Morning Star and Forest Temple ceremony by E. H. Lawson and Mrs. Florine Pogue. Ceremonies were directed by Mrs. Annie Adams and Lottie Barnes. Exalted Rulers Russell Bowser and Leo S. Holton officiated in the opening and closing exercises.

Contract Bridge

"Would you kindly settle an argument between my left hand and my right?" asks G. M. B., of Princeton University.

"Some time ago as declarer I butchered the following hand. The kibitzers immediately declared that the correct line was obvious. I agreed—provided one had a preview of the defenders' cards; but that without that help a third line of play should be chosen, theirs being as bad as bad could be.

"They insisted that it was only luck that this suited the actual distribution. To settle the question for my own satisfaction, I have been dealing the East and West hands except the diamond suit marked at the first trick. I find, however, that I run into situations where it is difficult to decide impartially just what I or the defenders would do. I send you one of the worst of these, and only two of the hands, so that you cannot be biased:

"North was dealer and neither side vulnerable. Using the Culbertson 4-5 no-trump convention, the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	4 NT.	Pass
5 NT.	Pass	6 NT.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 2 ◇

"North plays the three, East the king. If South drops the six, what will East do, and for what reason?

We would suggest that East return the jack of spades and put the guess of the spade finesse up to declarer immediately. He would then be forced to risk a losing finesse or go up with the ace, thus destroying the squeeze situation which will otherwise develop in spades and hearts.

WINNIE WINKLE — This Surprise Is Awful — BY BRANNER

NOW YOU FIND YOUR FRIEND, WE GO HOME, SENOR?
NO, CUSCUS! THIS WHITE MAN IS NOT FRIEND I CAME HERE TO FIND!
WELL HAVE TO GO BACK INTO THE JUNGLE AND HUNT FOR HIM!
NO! DON'T DO THAT—IT WON'T DO ANY GOOD, MR. MANLEY!
WHY??? IS BILL WRIGHT DEAD?
IT'S A LONG STORY— I'D BETTER TELL IT FROM THE BEGINNING—

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

GEE, UNCLE ELBY! YOU KNOW THAT SAXAPHONE THAT TH' SCHOOL LOANED ME TO PRACTICE ON? WELL, SOMETHING AWFUL'S HAPPNED! — — —
I THINK I'VE LOST IT!

JANE ARDEN — Clean Up — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

EVEN FOUND THEIR SUPPLY OF PENCIL BOMBS—THAT PROVES THEY ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE EXPLOSIONS!
GREAT WORK, JANE!
WE'VE CLEANED UP THE WHOLE SPY RING—THERE WERE NINE OF THEM—
ONCE WE GOT WHITEY HERE, THE REST WAS EASY!
HOW'S YOUR CHIN, WHITEY?
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW YOU GOT HIM TO SQUEAL—
OH WHITEY HOPED WE WERE BLUFFING—BUT WAS AFRAID WE WEREN'T!
IT WASN'T A BLUFF—THEY'D HAVE BLOWN ME UP!
YOU MUST HAVE BEEN READING MY MIND!
THAT'S THE ANSWER, JIM— WHITEY HAS IMAGINATION AND A MEMORY— HE REMEMBERED WHAT HE TRIED TO DO TO TUBBY!

SUPERMAN — Ironic — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

WHEN CLARK KENT AND LOIS LANE CALL UPON LEM STUART, TALENT SCOUT FOR MAMMOTH FILM STUDIOS, HE NOTES CLARK'S RESEMBLANCE TO THE MAN OF TOMORROW AND OFFERS HIM THE LEADING ROLE IN THE FORTHCOMING MOVIE TO BE BASED ON THE ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN!
YOU—WANT ME—TO GO TO HOLLYWOOD AND PLAY SUPERMAN IN A MOVIE?
STOP HESITATING, MAN! THIS IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME. GIVE THE WORD AND I'LL ARRANGE YOUR SCREEN TEST AT ONCE!
BUT—I'M A NEWSPAPER MAN.... NOT AN ACTOR!
STOP GUBBLING, CLARK! ACCEPT— BEFORE HE CHANGES HIS MIND!
WHAT DO YOU SAY, KENT?
("THIS IS CERTAINLY AN AMUSING DILEMMA! SHALL I PORTRAY MYSELF IN THE MOVIES? I'D LIKE TO LEARN WHY SOMEONE IS SO ANXIOUS TO PREVENT THE SUPERMAN MOVIE FROM BEING PRODUCED— AND THIS MAY BE MY OPPORTUNITY!—")
I— I'LL DO IT!!
SPLENDID!
CLARK KENT.. MEEK, FRIGHTENED OF HIS OWN SHADOW, PORTRAYING THE ROLE OF ULTRA-COURAGEOUS SUPERMAN! IT'S TOO MUCH FOR MY SENSE OF HUMOR!

Every year, for a great many years, Arch McDonald has played the role of Santa Claus at WJSV's Christmas party—he's the only member of the staff who has what might be called the requisite roly-poly build.

Every year for the Cross Roads Theater, Arch McDonald does his bit for dramatic art. His last two appearances have been in the name parts of "The Old Soak" and "The Show-off." Again Arch's bluff appearance and manner may have something to do with this—although he stoutly maintains it's only his superior histrionic ability that had him so chosen.

Arch McDonald is too well known a sports commentator for us to have to say anything about that. Ditto his activities as a popular master of ceremonies at dinners, entertainments and what have you. But it might be informative to add that Arch is also a singer. People around WJSV distinctly remember an occasion last year when he did a special all-night show for WJSV's "They Need Shoes" campaign and a listener called in to say he'd contribute $50 if Archie would sing a song. And Arch did—albeit it must be added he hasn't done so since.

This is by way of giving you an idea of the well-rounded sort of man Arch McDonald is—no puns intended. And to announce that tonight he goes on the air over WJSV in a program to be heard every week-day night from 11 to 11:30. It's called "Moon Dial." Probably it's enough to say that it will be Arch McDonald, music and news, for a half hour.

GOSH, CONNIE! DID YA HEAR..? THE BOSS IS GONNA SELL THE PAPER!... HE'S GOT A JOB IN HOLLYWOOD, WRITIN' FOR THE MOVIES!
YES, DINGBAT.. HE TOLD ME! I UNDERSTAND ANGEL VARDEN ARRANGED IT ALL! SO SWEET OF HER!
HE TOLD YOU? THEN YOU AN' HIM AIN'T MAD ABOUT.. LIH...
ABOUT ANGEL? NO... BUT, TELL ME FRANKLY, WHY IS ANGEL SO MUCH MORE.. ATTRACTIVE.. THAN I AM?
WELL.. I DUNNO.. I RECKON IT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A SPORTY CONVERTIBLE AN' A SEDAN!
GEE, CONNIE!.. I DIDN'T MEAN TO GET FRESH WITH YOU!
THAT'S ALL RIGHT, DINGBAT! MAYBE A FRESH APPROACH IS EXACTLY WHAT I NEED!

MICKEY FINN — Occupational Deferment — BY LANK LEONARD

IS SOMETHING WRONG, PHIL?
I'LL SAY THERE IS! WHY WAS THIS MAN PLACED IN CLASS 2-B INSTEAD OF 1-A?
WHY HE IS A DEFENSE WORKER OVER AT THE SKYHIGH AVIATION PLANT —AND WE HAVE AN AFFIDAVIT STATING THAT HE IS A NECESSARY MAN!
I'D LIKE TO SEE THAT AFFIDAVIT!
YOU WILL NOTICE THAT IT IS SIGNED BY THE GENERAL MANAGER OF THE PLANT!

MR. AND MRS. — The Paramount Issue — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL and ELLISON HOOVER

WAY PRICES ARE GOING UP, NOBODY KNOWS WHERE HE'S GOING TO GET OFF!
IT STATES HERE WE'RE HEADED STRAIGHT FOR INFLATION!
AND ON TOP OF IT ALL COME NEXT YEAR'S INCOME TAXES!
OH, JOE! THIS PAPER SAYS IT'S BEEN YEARS SINCE THERE WAS SO MUCH EXCITEMENT WHETHER HAIR SHOULD BE WORN SHORT OR LONG!

DIXIE DUGAN — No Telephone? — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

UNNERVED BY THE MYSTERIOUSNESS OF THE "INN WITHOUT GUESTS", MICKEY INSISTS ON CALLING HOME!
I WONDER WHY THEY DON'T HAVE PHONES IN THE ROOMS?
THEY NEVER DO IN SMALL PLACES LIKE THIS. IT'S PROBABLY ON THE DESK!
THEN WHY DON'T THEY HAVE ONE ON THE DESK?
THERE MUST BE ONE IN THE HALLWAY!
WHY DON'T THEY HAVE ONE IN THE HALLWAY?
??? MAYBE THERE'S A BOOTH IN THE DINING ROOM—
WHY DON'T THEY HAVE A PHONE AT ALL ???
GOLLY—I DON'T KNOW—
